The public will perceive from the present number of the Catholic Almanac and Laity's Directory, that no exertions have been spared to render it worthy of their patronage. The additional embellishments, the improved form and typographical execution of the work, are all evidences of the continued desire on the part of the editor to effect that object. While he solicits the indulgence of a liberal community for any inaccuracies that may be discovered in the religious statistics of the country, he respectfully requests the co-operation of the Rt. Rev. Bishops and the Rev. clergy, in contributing to the usefulness of the periodical, by communicating, before the 1st of August of every year, any information they may deem interesting to the Catholic public. With this aid it cannot fail to present a correct and comprehensive view of the state of religion in the United States. The historical account, promised in the last number of the Directory, has been unavoidably postponed.

SOLAR AND LUNAR ECLIPSES FOR THE YEAR 1838.

There will be four Eclipses this year; two of the Sun and two of the Moon.

The first is a total Eclipse of the Sun, the 25th day of March, at 4 o'clock, 40 min. afternoon, invisible here; this Eclipse will be visible on the south Pacific ocean, and west coast of South America.

The second is a partial Eclipse of the Moon, the 9th day of April, in the evening; visible in all the United States,

Beginning at 7 o'clock, 28 min.	Ecliptic - - - 8 o'clock, 57 min.
Middle - - 8 o'clock, 58 1-2 min.	End - - - 10 o'clock, 19 min.

7 1-8 digets will be eclipsed on the upper north part of the Moon, from the south part of the earth's shadow.

The third is an annular Eclipse of the Sun, the 18th day of September, visible in all the United States. This Eclipse will go central and annular over Pennsylvania and some of the adjoining States; beginning 110 degrees from the lowest point of the Sun, or 70 degrees from the Sun's vortex, or highest point, at 2 o'clock, 59 min. afternoon; the Moon will be central before the Sun at 4 o'clock, 21 1-2 min. The Sun will appear in the form of a round shining ring, about one-half diget broad all round the Moon. The Moon will appear total before the Sun at 4 o'clock, 181.2 min., and touch the eastern edge of the Sun at 4 o'clock, 24 1.2 min., after having been 6 min. total before the Sun. The end of the Eclipse will be at 5 o'clock, 33 min. afternoon.

This Eclipse varies in all places over which the annular Eclipse will go, according as they are more or less north or south, on one or the other side of the central line, which the Moon, in passing over the Sun's disc, will make with its shadow on the surface of the earth. At all places that are not under the central line, the Sun's ring will be of unequal breadth, at the middle of the Eclipse. In Washington and Baltimore the breadth of the Sun's ring will be on the upper part of the Sun only 25 min., and on the low part 50 min. broad, the difference of the Sun and Moon being at that time one min. and 15 seconds of a degree. The inhabitants of New York will see the Sun's shining ring on the low part nearly of the same breadth, as the inhabitants of Baltimore see the ring on the upper part of the Sun.

The Central Eclipse will pass over Canada, over the east part of Lake Huron, over Lake Simco, 6 miles east of Williamsburg, and 15 east of York in Upper Canada, crosses over the west part of Lake Ontario, enters the State of New York, 20 miles below the Falls of Niagara, passes 8 miles west of Batavia, and 12 miles east of Angelica, in the State of New York; goes over the east part of Pennsylvania, 12 miles east of Wellsboro and Williamsport, crosses the Susquehanna 20 miles above Sunbury, goes over Reading and Westchester, crosses the river Delaware 20 miles below Philadelphia, goes over the south part of New Jersey, enters on the Atlantic ocean at Cape May, where the Eclipse with Sun-set ends.

The fourth is a partial Eclipse of the Moon, the third day of October, at 9 o'clock, 25 min. forenoon, therefore invisible here; it will be visible in New Holland, on the south Pacific ocean and East Indian.

EXPLANATION.

Ap signifies Apostle—App Apostles—M Martyr—MM Martyrs—P Pope—B Bishop—C Confessor—D Doctor—Pr Priest—Ab Abbot—V Virgin—Wid Widow—SS Saints—D M Days of the Month—A C before Christ—A D in the year of our Lord—D W Days of the Week.

Doub. signifies double—semid semidouble—simp simple. White—Red—Purple—Green—Black—denote the color of the ornaments of the day.—Feria is a day for which no Saint's office is appointed. Festivals of obligation are in capitals. FD. signifies Festivals of Devotion. † marks the days of indulgence.

As to the color of the Sacerdotal Vestments in the Church Service, the white is used on the Feasts of our Lord, of the B. Virgin, and of all the Saints who are not Martyrs. The red is used at Whitsuntide, on the Finding and Exaltation of the Cross, and on the Feasts of the Apostles and Martyrs. The purple or violet, which is the penitential color, is used on all the Sundays and Ferias of Advent, and of the penitential time from Septuagesima till Easter; as also on Vigils, Ember-days, and Rogation-days, when the Office is of them. Green is used on all Sundays and Ferias, from Trinity Sunday to Advent, exclusively, and from the octave of the Epiphany to Septuagesima, exclusively, whenever the office is of the Sunday; but in the Paschal time the white is used. The black is used on Good Friday, and in Masses of Requiem for the dead, which may be said on any day, that is not a Sunday or a double, except the days from Palm Sunday to Low-Sunday; and during the Octaves of the Epiphany, of Pentecost and of Corpus Christi.

HOLYDAYS OF OBLIGATION.

The Circumcision of our Lord.—The Epiphany.—The Annunciation of the B. Virgin.—Easter Monday.—The Ascension.—Whit Monday.—Corpus Christi.—The Assumption of the B. Virgin.—All Saints.—The Nativity of our Lord.

FASTING DAYS.

Wednesdays and Fridays in Advent. Every day in Lent, Sundays excepted. The Ember-days, which occur four times in the year, viz: the Wednesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays, 1. Immediately after the first Sunday in Lent. 2. In Whitsun Week. 3. Immediately after the 14th of September. 4. Immediately after the third Sunday of Advent. The vigils of Whitsunday, of SS. Peter and Paul, of the Assumption, of All Saints, and of Christmas. When a fasting day falls on Sunday it is observed on the Saturday preceding.

DAYS OF ABSTINENCE.

All Fridays in the year. When Christmas falls on Friday, abstinence is not of precept. Every day in Lent, unless a dispensation to the contrary be granted.

COMMANDMENTS OF THE CHURCH.

1. The Catholic Church commands her children, on Sundays and Holy-days of obligation, to be present at the great Eucharistical Sacrifice, which is called the Mass, to rest from servile work on those days and to keep them holy.

2. She commands them to abstain from flesh on all days of fasting and abstinence; and on fasting days to eat but one meal.

3. She commands them to confess their sins to their Pastor at least once a year.

4. She commands them to receive the Blessed Sacrament at least once a year, and that at Easter, or at least between the 1st Sunday of Lent and Trinity Sunday.

DECREE

Of the Sacred General Congregation de Propagandâ Fide, held on the 28th June, 1830, for the extension of the time allotted for the Paschal Communion.

WHEREAS, in the Sacred General Congregation de Propagandâ Fide, held on the 28th of June, in the year 1830, there was read the memorial, written by the Most Rev. and Right Rev. Fathers, the Archbishop of Baltimore, and the Bishops of the United States of North America, in their Provincial Council, celebrated in the month of October, 1829, in which they requested our Holy Father, that because of the scarcity of priests, the distance of stations, and a custom already existing, he would grant for all those dioceses, faculties to extend the time to fulfil the precept of Easter Communion, from the first Sunday in Lent to Trinity Sunday, both included: the Sacred Congregation, upon the report of the Most Eminent and Most Rev. Cardinal Peter Caprara, were of opinion and decreed that his Holiness should be requested to grant the desired favor.

Moreover, the said opinion of the Sacred Congregation having been reported to our Holy Father Pius VIII., by Divine Providence Pope, by the Right Rev. Castraccius Castracane, Secretary of the said Congregation, his Holiness, at an audience on the 26th day of September, 1830, kindly approved thereof and granted the requested faculties.

Given at Rome on the 16th day of October, 1830.

CARDINAL CAPELLARI, Prefect.
C. CASTRACANE, Secretary.

DECREE

Of the Sacred Congregation De Propagandâ Fide, at a general meeting, held on the 20th day of May, 1833, relative to the precept of Abstinence.

WHEREAS, the Most Reverend James Whitfield, Archbishop of Baltimore, and other Prelates of the United States of America, have, for many weighty reasons, applied to the Apostolic See, praying for a dispensation from the observance of abstinence on the day of St. Mark the Evangelist, on the Rogation days, and likewise on all Saturdays that are not restricted by the precept of fasting, the Sacred Congregation De Propagandâ Fide, in a general meeting on the 20th of May, 1833, on motion of his Eminence Cardinal Lewis Lambruschini, gave it as their opinion and decreed that his Holiness should be solicited to grant the said dispensation for Saturdays not restricted by a fast, during the space of ten years, but indefinitely for the feast of St. Mark and the Rogation days.

When this Decree of the Sacred Congregation was submitted to the consideration of his Holiness, Pope Gregory XVI., by the Secretary, the Rev. Father Angelus Mai, in an audience obtained on the 9th of June, 1833, his Holiness graciously approved it in every point, and granted the said dispensation according to the tenor of the Decree.

Given at Rome on the 22d of June, 1833.

CARDINAL PEDICINI, Prefect.

BAPTISM.

"He that believeth, and is baptised, shall be saved."—Mark, xvi. 16.

Any lay person can administer the sacrament of baptism in case of necessity, and consequently every Christian should know how to perform this ceremony.

Private baptism, which should always be given when a child is in evident danger of death, is administered in the following manner:

Take common water, and pour it three times on the head of the infant, in the form of a cross, saying at the same time, "I baptise thee in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." When the person conferring baptism is pronouncing the above words, he should be in the very act of pouring the water on the child.

A parent should not baptise his own child, unless no one else could be procured who knew how to do it; otherwise he would contract an impediment of spiritual affinity with his consort.

It is a dangerous and highly improper custom carelessly to defer for several weeks the administration of baptism.

When a child has been privately baptised in case of necessity, it should, if it survive, be taken to the Church, in order that the ceremonies may be supplied; and the clergyman should be informed at the time that the infant has already received private baptism.

The sponsors, that is, the godfather and godmother in baptism, are bound to answer for the child, to make a profession of faith in his name, and to see afterwards that he be instructed in his religion, if this duty be neglected by the parents. Hence it is plain that the sponsors should always be members of the Catholic Church; and it would be very improper in a parent to request any person not a Catholic to act in that capacity, because it cannot be reasonably expected that he who dissents from our holy faith should assume the responsibility of looking to the religious education of a Catholic child; or that he should be qualified to accomplish this duty.

The sponsors should also know their prayers, and be acquainted with the principal mysteries. One sponsor is sufficient in baptism, but there cannot be more than two.

The name given to a child at its spiritual regeneration should be that of a saint of the New Testament, whom it should be taught from its early years to consider as a special patron and intercessor at the throne of grace.

The priest or person who baptises and the sponsors contract a spiritual affinity with the person baptised and with the parents of that person; which affinity is an impediment to marriage. But the godfather and godmother do not contract this alliance with each other. When a person has been privately baptised, and is afterwards presented by the sponsors to receive the solemn blessing and unction, no spiritual affinity is contracted.

CONFIRMATION.

"They laid their hands upon them and they received the Holy Ghost."—Acts, viii. 17.

They who approach this sacrament should be in a state of grace. Hence confession and absolution are necessary if the person to be confirmed is in a state of mortal sin.

It is more suitable that persons to be confirmed should be fasting at the time they receive this sacrament.

If they take an additional name, as is customary on that occasion, it should be that of some saint, whose protection they should frequently invoke, and whose example they should strive to copy in their life and actions.

No person confirmed should, upon any account, leave the Church, until he receives the solemn benediction which is pronounced by the bishop, after the sacrament has been administered.

As Confirmation imprints a spiritual character on the soul, it cannot be received more than once.

HOLY EUCHARIST.

"Unless you eat the flesh of the son of man, and drink his blood, you shall not have life in you."—John, vi. 54.

Every one of the faithful of both sexes, who has attained the years of discretion, is bound, under pain of mortal sin, to receive the holy communion worthily at Easter, or during the paschal time, that is, between the first Sunday of Lent and Trinity Sunday.

He who neglects this duty, not only commits a grievous sin, but subjects himself to excommunication and exclusion from christian burial, which dreadful punishment the bishop has power to carry into effect, if he shall deem it expedient.

We do not satisfy the precept of the Church on this point by an unworthy communion.

The following are the requisite dispositions for receiving the Holy Eucharist in a proper manner: 1. We should be in a state of grace, that is, free from mortal sin. 2. We should be free, as much as possible, from venial sin, at least from affection to it, or from a willingness to commit it. 3. We should have actual devotion, being penetrated with sentiments of a lively faith, a profound humility, a sincere sorrow for sin, a firm confidence in God, an ardent charity, and an earnest desire of being united to Jesus Christ.

Persons who are to communicate should be fasting from midnight, and those who are in doubt as to having broken their fast should consult a clergyman.

Communicants should be decently and modestly dressed, and should approach the holy table with that exterior reverence which indicates interior piety of the heart.

The use of the communion cloth is not to wipe the mouth, either before or after communion. It is to prevent the sacred Host, or any particle of it, from falling to the ground, if it should accidentally drop from the priest's hand or the mouth of the communicant. Hence the cloth should be held as high as the breast, in such a manner as to form a kind of plate or receiver. The head and body should be kept upright and steady, the eyes cast down, the mouth moderately open, and the tip of the tongue resting on the under lip, but not protruded.

When the priest lays the sacred Host on the tongue, the communicant should not catch at it, nor hastily bow down his head, nor press the sacrament with his lips or teeth, but draw in the tongue gently, and closing his mouth, allow the host to moisten a little and then swallow it. If it cleave to the roof of the mouth, it should be gently removed with the tongue.

After communion he should retire leisurely to his place, having all the appearance of one who has found a treasure, and feels that he is the living tabernacle of God. He should refrain for some time from spitting and coughing, and em-

PENANCE.

"Whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them: and whose sins you shall retain, they are retained."—John, xx. 23.

All the faithful of both sexes who have reached the age of discretion, are obliged to confess their sins at least once a year. The violation of this precept is a mortal sin.

To perform this duty with the requisite dispositions, the penitent should, after having implored the light of the Holy Ghost, endeavor to call to mind the sins he has committed in thought, word, action and omission. The time employed for this examination of conscience should be proportionate to that which has elapsed since his last confession. Then, by suitable reflections on the malice of sin, and by fervent prayer, he should excite in his heart a sincere sorrow for having offended God, and a firm determination to avoid sin and the occasions of it.

After this preparation, the penitent should present himself before the minister of Christ, and, having made the sign of the cross, asked the priest's blessing, and recited the Confiteor down to through my most grievous fault, he should commence his confession by declaring when he was last at the holy tribunal, whether he was then absolved, whether he approached the holy communion, and whether he has fulfilled the sacramental penance. He should then proceed to accuse himself with candor, humility and precision, of all the sins he has committed since his last confession, after which he concludes the Confiteor, saying, therefore, I beseech the blessed Virgin Mary, &c.

He should listen with respect and attention to the instructions of the confessor, and endeavor carefully to comply with them. The penance enjoined should be performed at the appointed time, or if no particular time be designated, as soon as our convenience will permit.

EXTREME UNCTION.

"Is any man sick among you? Let him bring in the priests of the Church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil, in the name of the Lord: and the prayer of faith shall save the sick man, and if he be in sin, they shall be forgiven him."—James, v. 14, 15.

It is a most mistaken notion to defer the reception of this sacrament until a sick person is in imminent danger of death, or in such a state that there can be but little hope of his recovery.

On the contrary, a Christian should be anxious to receive it in any illness that will probably terminate fatally, because one of the effects of this sacrament is to restore the sick person to health, if it be conducive to his spiritual welfare or conformable to God's will.

As this sacrament is, as it were, a supplement of the sacrament of penance, the Christian, when he receives it, should excite himself to sincere sorrow for all the sins of his life, mortal and venial, and make an offering of his life into the hands of God, as an atonement for his sins, and in union with the intention which Jesus Christ had in offering his life to his Father on the cross for our sins.

When the priest anoints the eyes, ears, nostrils, mouth, &c., the Christian should, at each unction, ask pardon of God for all the sins he may have committed by that particular sense, viz. by his sight, hearing, smell, taste, speech, touch, &c.

HOLY ORDERS.

"Neither doth any man take the honor to himself, but he that is called by God, as Aaron was."—Hebrews, v. 4.

As God could not more grievously punish the faithful than by sending them ignorant or wicked priests, so it is the duty of every Christian to pray most earnestly to God that he would vouchsafe to send none but ministers after his own heart into the vineyard. These prayers should be specially joined with our fasting during the Ember days, when the sacrament of Holy Orders is usually conferred.

MATRIMONY.

"This is a great sacrament; but I speak in Christ and in the Church."—Ephes. v. 32.

There being no circumstance in life that bears a more important relation to the spiritual welfare and eternal salvation of a Christian, than his entrance into the marriage state, it is a duty which he owes to God and to himself to proceed in this matter with great prudence and serious reflection.

In the choice of a partner, he should be governed, not by worldly or ambitious views, but by those considerations only which are conducive to his happiness in this life and in eternity. "Marry thy daughter well," says an inspired author, "and thou shalt do a great work, and give her to a wise man." Were this holy admonition more strictly observed, were we to follow the advice of St. Austin, who exhorted the young women of his time to look more to the virtues of a man than to any temporal or personal advantages he possessed, we should not witness so frequently the unhappy consequences of marriage-life; nor would our age be so fruitful in those vices and disorders which arise chiefly from injudicious and precipitate unions, or from an improper mode of domestic government and of youthful education.

The parties to be united should, if possible, obtain the consent of their parents, should be free from all impediments to marriage, should draw down upon themselves, by a pure and holy intention, by fervent prayer, and the practice of good works, the favor and blessings of the Almighty; they should be, moreover, instructed in the obligations of the matrimonial state, and in the principal mysteries of religion, and approach the sacraments of penance and the eucharist, in order that, being free from sin, they may receive the special graces attached to the sacrament of marriage. The confession of their sins should be made in due time to prepare themselves for the reception of absolution, before the nuptial ceremony is performed.

Marriage cannot be contracted by persons within the fourth degree of kindred without a dispensation; and, if attempted, it is invalid. Spiritual kindred contracted by baptism or confirmation is an impediment to marriage. A dispensation is also requisite for the marriage of persons, one of whom is baptised and the other not baptised.

It is forbidden to solemnize marriage from Ash Wednesday to Easter Sunday, and from the first Sunday of Advent till after the 6th of January.

SICK CALLS.

All sick calls in a parish should be made at the clergyman's house, at a timely hour in the morning. If this reasonable rule were adhered to, it would save the clergy from much unnecessary labor, and the people from many disappointments, which they should justly ascribe to their own want of system.

On Saturdays, the eves of holy-days, and other days which are generally devoted to the confessional in the parish churches, clergymen should not, if possible, be called away from this very important duty. Unless in case of absolute necessity, sick calls should not be made on Saturdays or Sundays, when the clergy have so many other duties to attend to.

It is the duty of the people to conform to whatever regulations may be made by the clergy, on these and other matters connected with religion, in their respective parishes. All things should be done in order, according to the advice of St. Paul.

When the clergyman is called to attend a sick person, every thing that he requires for the administration of the sacraments should be furnished, as decently as possible, in the room or place where the sick person lies, viz. a small table covered with a towel or a clean linen cloth, on which should be laid a candle, a vessel of holy water, with an asperges a small vessel of common water for the purification of the priest's fingers after the administration of the Holy Viaticum, and a napkin for the sick person at the time of communion. As the priest generally brings the blessed sacrament on those occasions, every thing should be so becomingly prepared according to their means, as to show the great respect of the inmates for Jesus Christ, and the high value they set upon the honor thus rendered to their house in the visit of their Lord and Redeemer.

Whilst the priest is administering the Viaticum and Extreme Unction, the assistants should devoutly offer up their prayers to God on behalf of the sick person, to implore that he may receive those sacraments with the necessary dispositions.

CONDUCT IN THE HOUSE OF GOD.

"Reverence my Sanctuary." Lev. xxvi. 2.

"Lord! I have loved the beauty of thy house, and the place where thy glory dwelleth."—Psalms, xxv. 8.

CATHOLICS, who believe the real presence of Jesus Christ in the holy Eucharist, cannot show too much respect for the temple of God. A few practical hints on this subject may be better than a labored dissertation.

1st. Persons, whilst in the church, should, as much as possible, avoid coughing, spitting, and all manner of noise, as nothing unclean or offensive should be seen or heard in the temple of God.

2d. They should be remarkably clean in their dress and person, and avoid the slightest appearance of foppery or indiscretion.

3d. Whilst they appear in a respectful posture, they should avoid all ridiculous gestures, forms or attitudes.

4th. All who can read should use their prayer books, unless when meditation may be preferable.

5th. Mothers should take care not to disturb the congregation by bringing children under the age required.

6th. On Ash-Wednesday, every Catholic should approach the priest in a respectful manner to receive the ashes, and on Palm Sunday, act in a similar manner to receive the palm.

7th. Catholics should take care never to turn their backs to the altar when the Blessed Sacrament is exposed: but kneel in a respectful posture.

8th. Children serving at Mass should not be allowed to answer the priest in a hurried manner, but in an edifying way.

9th. Communicants should approach to, and proceed from the altar, in the most recollected manner, and also to and from the confessional in a similar way.

10th. Communicants should take care to hold the communion cloth in a proper manner, and on no account run out of the church in haste, after approaching the holy altar.

EXERCISE FOR SUNDAYS AND HOLYDAYS.

SUNDAY being peculiarly called the Lord's day, should be more immediately consecrated to Him.

The best means to sanctify this day, (and the same may be said of special holydays,) in addition to those of every other day, may be thus briefly mentioned.

1st. To abstain from all servile or unnecessary worldly work.

2d. To hear Mass with particular devotion.

3d. To hear a sermon or exhortation.

4th. To approach the holy sacraments with proper dispositions.

5th. To attend vespers or evening song.

6th. To give more time to prayer, meditation and spiritual reading.

7th. To perform some of the spiritual or corporal works of mercy.

8th. To be more than ordinarily cautious to avoid sin and its occasions, and to increase in virtue.

Short Daily Exercise for all Catholics.

Let a love of God, a desire of serving him, and of devoting every hour and every work to his glory, induce you to adopt the following regulations.

1st. Rise early, not only to avoid sloth, but to discharge well, and in proper time, every duty.

2d. Faithfully discharge the duty of morning prayer, and devote some time to meditation.

3d. If possible, assist at Mass and offer it to God for a particular intention.

4th. Have fixed hours for business, meals, &c. and usefully fill up your time.

5th. Give, every day, some time to spiritual reading, or, if not able, supply it by some devout aspiration, or the remembrance of some pious lecture.

6th. Avoid not only sin, but its occasion, and endeavor more and more to conquer your predominant passion.

7th. Be exact at evening prayer, and examine your conscience on what evil you have done, what good you have omitted or done negligently.

8th. "In all your works, remember your last end, and you shall never sin."

A RELIGIOUS LIBRARY.

"Attend unto reading, to exhortation, and to doctrine."—Tim. iv. 13.

1. Youths or others not well instructed in religion, may use the following books: Christian's Guide, the Catechism of the diocess, Fleury's Historical Catechism, Hay's Catechism, Grounds of Catholic Doctrine, Catholic Christian Instructed, Poor Man's Catechism, Glover on the Sacraments, Virtuous Scholars, Challoner's History of the Old and New Testament, Instructions for first Communion.

2. Young persons more advanced in their education may read Gobinet's Instruction of Youth, Youth's Directory, Following of Christ, Christian Perfection, Practical Reflections, Sinner's Guide, Models for Young Men, Young Ladies' Mirror, Alton Park, Prize Book, Piety Exemplified, the Testament, Reeve's History of the Bible, Gahan's History of the Church, Father Rowland, Mrs. Herbert, Butler's Lives of the Saints.

3. Adults and those who devote themselves particularly to works of piety and religion, (in addition to the Bible, the Following of Christ and Butler's Lives,) may consult the Spiritual Combat, Pious and Devout Christian, Bourdalou's Retreat, Elevation of the Soul, St. Francis' Devout Life, Memorial of a Christian Life, Challoner's Meditations, Hornihold on the Sacraments and Commandments, Butler's Feasts and Fasts, Layman's Ritual, Cochin on the Mass, Dr. England's Ceremonies, Reeve's History of the Church, &c. Among the more useful prayer books, may be mentioned the following: Catholic Manual, Pious Guide, Garden of the Soul, River's Manual, Christians' Guide, Children's Companion, Pocket Missal, Key of Paradise, Visits to the Blessed Sacrament, Devout Communicant, Month of Mary, Stations of the Cross, &c.

4. Those who wish to acquire a knowledge of Controversy, may read, Fletcher's Spirit of Controversy, Bossuet's

Salvation.

There is one thing necessary. St. Luke. x. 42. What doth it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul? St. Matt. xvi. 26. God created you without your concurrence; but he will not save you without your co-operation. St. Aug. You have become a debtor to the wise and the unwise, while you neglect your own interests.—St. Bernard.

EXPLANATION OF THE
Sundays and principal festivals of the year.
FEASTS IN GENERAL.
Though there is no day which the Christian should not spend in a holy manner, by abstaining from sin and doing good works; he is, nevertheless, obliged to sanctify more particularly certain days which God reserves to himself and the Church sets apart for that purpose. These days are Sundays and Holydays.
The Sunday or the Lord's day, is that on which God commenced the creation of the world, and on which our Saviour rose from the dead. It is kept by Christians in lieu of the Sabbath, which the Israelites celebrated on Saturday, because God rested on that day, after having created the world.
The Church has likewise thought proper to impose on her children the obligation of sanctifying other days in the year, in honor of the mysteries of our redemption, or to commemorate the eminent virtues of the Blessed Virgin and the Saints, and to place before us their admirable example.
The sanctification of those days consists, 1st, in abstaining from servile work, from all commerce and

The obligation of sanctifying other days in the year, in honor of the mysteries of our redemption, or to commemorate the eminent virtues of the Blessed Virgin and the Saints, and to place before us their admirable example.

The sanctification of those days consists, 1st, in abstaining from servile work, from all commerce and

Time.

Man's days are as grass; as the flower of the field so shall he flourish. Ps.cii.

Time.

The days of man are short, and the number of his months is with thee; thou hast appointed his bounds, which cannot be passed.—Job, xiv. 5. Behold now is the acceptable time, behold now is the day of salvation. 2 Cor. vi. 2.

One moment of that time which is lost would purchase an eternity of happiness. St. Jerom, ad Cyp.

Devotion to the Mother of God.

Hail, full of grace, the Lord is with thee; blessed art thou amongst women! St. Luke, i. 28.

O name, under which no one should despair! St. Austin. We know that the Blessed Virgin Mary has acquired so much merit in the sight of God and possesses so much power in Heaven that she can never fail to obtain the object of her wishes. St. Anslem.

The devout christian, therefore, will find much to occupy him, in again adoring Jesus Christ in the humiliation of his birth, in contemplating that infinite love for man which he already manifests by the effusion of his blood, and in renewing his confidence in the mercy and goodness of Him who takes the name of Saviour, because he is to save us from sin and hell. He should also look back with regret upon the past years of his life, and form a generous resolution to employ more profitably the year which has just commenced, imploring for that purpose the light and grace of the Holy Ghost.	3	1	34, AM.

Lent.

Now, therefore, saith the Lord: be converted to me with all your heart, in fasting, and in weeping and in mourning. Turn to the Lord your God, for he is gracious and merciful, patient and rich in mercy. Joel, ii. 12, 13.

Fast, because you have sinned; fast that you may avoid sin in future; fast, in order to obtain the grace of God.—St. Chrysostom.

Meditation.

With desolation is all the land made desolate: because there is none that considereth in his heart. Jerem. xii. 11. Unless thy law had been my meditation, I had then perhaps perished in my abjection. Ps. 118.

All our improvement is the result of reading and meditation. By reading we learn what we knew not before; by meditation we preserve this knowledge. St. Isidore.

Charity for our neighbour.

All things, therefore, whatsoever you would that men should do to you do you also to them. St. Matth. vii. 12. Let us not love in word, nor in tongue, but in deed, and in truth. St. John, 1, 3, 12.
We should always be charitable; for this is an obligation from which we can never be released. St. Austin.

which Mary made of herself to God in her infancy, when presented in the temple by her pious parents, St. Joachim and St. Ann. Let us make an offering of ourselves to God under her auspices, and resolve to be more faithful in the discharge of our various duties.

Annunciation.—The Annunciation is both a feast of Jesus Christ and of his holy mother, because it was on this day that the Word was made flesh, and Mary became the mother of God. To remind us of this mystery, which should excite our most fervent gratitude, the Church exhorts us to recite the Angelus three times every day, and calls our attention to it by the sound of the bell. In saying this prayer we should endeavor also to secure to ourselves the protection of the Blessed Virgin, repeating with all possible devotion, the salutation of the angel, hail full of grace, &c.

Visitation.—On this festival we commemorate the wonders wrought by Mary in her visit to her cousin St. Elizabeth; when, at the very sound of her voice, St. John was sanctified in his mother's womb, and received the use of reason to know and adore his Redeemer. St. Elizabeth was likewise filled with the Holy Ghost, and received the gift of prophecy. The grace we should implore on this day is a visit from Jesus and Mary to our souls.

Compassion of the Blessed Virgin.—The object of this feast is to honor the unutterable affliction which desolated the soul of Mary at the foot of the cross. The devout Christian should sympathize with her at the sufferings of Jesus Christ, and beg, through her intercession, a sincere and heartfelt sorrow for his sins, and an ardent love for his Divine Saviour, who endured so much pain and ignominy to expiate them.

Assumption.—The Assumption of the Blessed Virgin is the greatest of all her feasts. On this day we honor her happy death, which, after that of her divine son, was, above all, the most holy and the most precious in the sight of the Lord. We also commemorate her glorious assumption into heaven, where she is elevated above angels and arch-angels, with a special claim to our homages, and ardently desires to promote our real interests.

Feast of all Saints.—The Church has instituted a single feast in memory of all the Saints, to obtain abundant mercy from God, by employing a great multitude of intercessors; to exhibit that union which exists between the Saints on earth and those who are in heaven, and to show that we are all called to a holy life; because, there being among the Saints persons of all ages, of all sexes and of all conditions, no one can find a pretext for not becoming solidly virtuous.

Feast of All Souls.—To pray for the dead is a pious duty which the Church authorizes, and which she has always religiously practised. Her intention on this day is that the faithful should offer up their prayers to God for the repose and happiness of all their departed brethren; that their supplications should be accompanied with alms-deeds, mortification and other works of satisfaction, which will make them more efficacious; and lastly, that they reflect upon their own exit from the world, which will induce them to be more careful in avoiding sin and performing the duties of a christian life.

Ember Days.—The four ember weeks in the year, are times of public prayer, fasting and procession, partly instituted for the successful ordination of priests and other ministers of the Church; which is commonly performed at those seasons; and partly to thank God for the fruits of the earth and implore a continuance of them.

Rogation Week.—The next but one before Whit-Sunday is so called, because on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, rogations (from rogo, to pray) are used by the Church, not only as a preparation for the feasts of Christ's glorious ascension and pentecost, but also to supplicate the blessing of God on the fruits of the earth.

Advice of St. Francis of Sales on the Holy Sacrifice of Mass.

Endeavour to assist at mass every day, that you may jointly with the priest, offer up the holy sacrifice of your Redeemer to God his Father for yourself and the whole Church. The angels, says St. John Chrysostom, always attend in great numbers to honour this adorable mystery; and we, by associating ourselves to them, with one and the same intention, cannot but receive many favourable influences from such a holy society. The choirs of the triumphant Church, and those of the Church militant, unite themselves to our Lord in this divine action, that with him, in him, and through him, they may ravish the heart of God the Father, and make his mercy all our own. O what a happiness it is to a soul, devoutly to contribute her affections for obtaining so precious and desirable a treasure!

Should some indispensable business prevent you from assisting in person at the celebration of this sovereign sacrifice, endeavour at least to send your heart thither, to assist thereat by a spiritual presence, uniting your intention with that of the faithful; and using the same interior acts of devotion in your closet, which you would use, in some church, represented to your imagination.

Now to hear Mass, in a proper manner, either really or mentally, you must, 1. From the beginning till the priest goes up to the altar, make with him your preparation; which consists in placing yourself in the presence of God, acknowledging your unworthiness, and begging pardon for your sins. 2. From the time he goes up to the altar till the Gospel, consider the coming into, and the life of our Lord in this world, by a simple and general consideration. 3. From the Gospel till after the Creed, consider the preaching of our Saviour, and protest that you resolve to live and die in the faith and obedience of his holy word, and in the communion of the holy Catholic Church. 4. From the Creed to the Pater Noster, apply your heart to the mysteries of the death and passion of our Redeemer essentially represented in this holy sacrifice, and which, with the priest and the rest of the people, you must offer, to the honour of God the Father, and for your salvation. 5. From the Pater Noster to the Communion, strive to excite a thousand desires in your heart, wishing heartily to be for ever united to our Saviour by everlasting love. 6. From the Communion till the end, return thanks to Jesus Christ for his incarnation, life, death and passion; as well as for the love he testifies to us in this holy sacrifice: conjuring him to be for ever merciful to you; to your parents and friends, and to the whole Church; and finally humbling yourself with your whole heart, receive devoutly the benediction of God, which our Lord gives you by the ministry of his officer, the officiating priest.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTICE
OF HIS EMINENCE

LATE ARCHBISHOP OF BORDEAUX,

AND

FORMERLY BISHOP OF BOSTON.

John Lefèvre de Cheverus was born at Mayenne, in France, on the 28th of January, 1768. His family was highly respectable. Having been sent to Paris for the purposes of education, he there embraced the ecclesiastical state, and at a very early age was preferred to a benefice by Louis XVIII. before his accession to the throne of France. In the prosecution of his studies he distinguished himself no less by his natural penetration than by his amiable disposition. As a beneficiary, he was assiduous in reciting the office of the Blessed Virgin, and already evinced those pious inclinations which were afterwards so strongly developed in the discharge of his public duties.

At this period, he was on terms of intimacy and friendship with the late Abbé McCarthy, one of the most celebrated preachers in France, who often expressed to Mr. Cheverus his desire to teach him the English language; but the latter declined, thinking it would be of little service to him in the ecclesiastical state.

On the 18th of December, 1790, he was ordained priest at the last public ordination in Paris, before the revolution. The canons of the Catholic Church requiring a candidate for the order of priesthood to have completed his 24th year, a special dispensation from the holy See became necessary for his promotion; Mr. Cheverus being at that time not quite twenty-three years of age. The bishop of Mans, to whose diocese he belonged, noticing his superior talents and acquirements, applied for this dispensation, in order to have the advantage of his support, at so threatening and perilous a period. Shortly after his ordination he was appointed pastor of the Church in his native parish, and vicar general of the diocese; but not being willing to take the constitutional oath, he could not obtain possession of his cure, and was obliged to exercise the holy ministry in secret, amidst continual opposition and alarm. The storm of the revolution now grew fiercer and darker every hour, and the infuriated spirit of Paris was pervading every village and hamlet in France, particularly those in the vicinity of the capital. In some places, however, the clergy had a strong hold on the affections of the people; and this was strikingly the case at Mayenne. The municipal authorities endeavored to persuade Mr. Cheverus to take the oath; but on account of his popularity and influence, were fearful of proceeding, at first, to acts of violence. On one occasion, they entered the church with a military force, while he was at the altar offering up the holy sacrifice of Mass. In the midst of this solemn service he turned and asked them what they wanted; the reply was, we come to make you take the constitutional oath, or go with us to prison. He requested them to wait till he had gone through the service, and he would give them an answer. But the excitement of the congregation at this outrage was such that the military thought it prudent to retire for the time, and press the subject no further.

The situation of Mr. Cheverus at this period was alarming. For several months he thought each day would be the last of his life; and at one time it was rumored that he was to be carried away or assassinated. Much less solicitous for his own safety than the people were whom he served, he exhorted them not to commit any rash act in his defence, but to remain peacefully at their homes. Being urged by the municipal authorities to quit the town, he declared his determination not to abandon his flock unless he was taken by the shoulder and driven away; upon which he was immediately conducted out of the city, and concealed for some time among his friends.

In the summer of 1792, he, with the bishop of Dol and several other clergymen, were ordered to repair to Laval, where they were obliged to report themselves every day to a civil officer. A month having elapsed in this manner, they were transferred to a convent, where they were confined for a fortnight, momentarily expecting to hear the doors grate upon their hinges, and to see the murderer with his dagger at their breasts. Here they were in a state of great destitution for a few days, until relieved by the friends of humanity and religion. Delivered from this captivity by a decree forcing the clergy to seek a home in foreign countries, Mr. Cheverus obtained a passport for England, and on his journey thither passed through Paris, where he was concealed on the second and third of September, the memorable days of the massacre of the clergy.

On his arrival at Dover, he could not speak a word of English. He then regretted not to have followed the advice of his friend the Abbé McCarthy. In 1793 he took up his residence in the house of a Protestant clergyman, who, in addition to his pastoral duties, was preparing five or six young men for the university. Mr. Cheverus employed himself in giving them lessons in the languages and mathematics; and from their conversation he acquired some knowledge of the English tongue. Finding in the neighborhood a few Catholic families who had no pastor or place of worship, he obtained permission from the bishop of the London district to officiate for them. While in England he was invited and strongly solicited to take charge of a college at Cayenne; but this he fortunately declined, as the clergy in that country did not escape the persecution of the times.

In 1795, the Abbé Matignon, doctor and professor of Sorbonne, with whom he had been acquainted in Paris, invited him to become his associate in Boston. Mr. Cheverus, after some hesitation, determined to accept the offer, and arrived at Boston on the 3d of October, 1796. Shortly after that period bishop Carroll offered him the pastoral charge of St. Mary's church in Philadelphia, and of other places; but his attachment had become so strong for Dr. Matignon, that he could not think of leaving him. They lived together on terms of the closest friendship, and labored with one accord in discharging the duties of their profession. By their joint efforts the number of Catholics was considerably increased in Boston, and notwithstanding the many difficulties they were forced to contend with, they succeeded in making arrangements for the erection of a church. At the head of the subscribers to this laudable undertaking, was the President of the United States, at that time, the venerable John Adams. This gentleman had, during a long and eventful life, professed the most liberal sentiments on religious subjects, and had often, amidst bigotry and fanaticism, most fearlessly avowed them. The church, though it advanced slowly for want of funds, was at length completed; and, on the 29th of September, 1803, it was dedicated to the worship of God by the Right Rev. John Carroll, under the title of the Holy Cross. It is the same building that is now styled the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, with the exception of the extensive addition made to it a few years ago by the present bishop of the diocese.

Mr. Cheverus, though a resident of Boston, did not confine his pastoral solicitude to that city. The Catholics in the neighborhood, as well as those more remotely situated, were alike the object of his vigilant zeal; and, in his exertions to relieve their spiritual wants he was not unfrequently exposed to the most serious hardships. He was often seen, by day and by night, entering upon his journey with his staff in hand, like the primitive missionaries of the Church, not to disturb the faith of others, but to assist some humble Catholic, who was dying among strangers, and whose soul was panting for the last consolations of the religion he professed. Often he continued his travels to the wilds of Maine, to instruct and comfort the few Catholics in that country; but the great object of his visit was to enlighten and cherish the sons of the forest in that region, and at each visit he spent two or three months among the Passamaquoddy and Penobscot tribes.

After the Concordat of 1801, the friends of Mr. Cheverus were anxious for his return to France, and the letters of his family were most urgent upon the subject. At one moment he was near yielding to their entreaties; but the distress of the Catholics in every part of the country at the thought of losing him, and the reasons offered by bishop Carroll, with his love of Dr. Matignon, prevailed over the solicitations of his transatlantic friends. His determination, however, was not formed without a struggle: his affections called him to Europe, his affections retained him in America; but at length he announced to his flock that the conflict in his mind was over, that he would stay among them and would willingly share their good and ill-fortune.

In the year 1808, it was thought by bishops Carroll and Neale, then the only Roman Catholic prelates in the United States, that the cause of religion required the erection of additional Sees; and Dr. Matignon, on account of his eminent qualities, and the high estimation he enjoyed, was proposed for the diocese of Boston. But, without informing his colleague of the matter, he, in concert with bishop Carroll, prevailed upon the Holy See to appoint Mr. Cheverus to the office. In the month of April of the same year, his Holiness established four new bishoprics in the United States; those of New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Bardstown. The bishop of New York, the Rt. Rev. Luke Concannon, then in Italy, was appointed the bearer of the Apostolic letters; but he died at Naples before he reached his diocese, and the bulls were not received in this country until the year 1810. On the 1st of November of that year, Mr. Cheverus was consecrated at Baltimore; and the Abbé Matignon, his superior and his guide, thought himself honored in being his subject and assistant. Their intercourse continued what it had always been, with perhaps this exception, that the bishop redoubled his kindness and attentions to his friend, in proportion as the latter advanced in years.

In bishop Cheverus were united all the piety and zeal of a christian prelate, with literary and scientific acquirements of a high order. He read Greek and Hebrew with great readiness; he spoke and wrote Latin as a vernacular tongue; and was often heard to say, that if he were to make an argument for his life, he should prefer before competent judges, to use the Latin, believing that his thoughts would flow more rapidly in that language than in French or English. He had made himself master of the difficulties of the English; but he began the study of it too late to become entirely rid of the French accent. This, however, did not diminish the sweetness of his elocution.

The sermons of bishop Cheverus were for the most part extemporaneous, and in the form of moral and religious lectures. They were succinct and sweet effusions of piety and affection; at times, however, he poured out his feelings and reasonings in all the graces of composition and charms of eloquence. Whoever heard him, will never forget his address to his flock, on the news of the Sovereign Pontiff's release from confinement and return to his ancient dominion. Other joys at the same moment crowded upon his mind, and he indulged his feelings to the full tide of his delight. His manner was sincere and devotional, his style pure and refined, his voice clear and melodious, and every thing he said seemed to flow from pure and elevated feelings, and reached every fibre of affection in the breast of his hearers. With a sound judgment, he suited his arguments and course of reasoning to his subject, and no one went from his presence without acknowledging the delight he felt at being in the society of such a man, or without believing himself improved by holding communion with such a spirit.

His variety of talent was remarkable. He knew how to accommodate himself with perfect ease to all grades of society, and understood the business and habits of all. Accessible at his house at all times; and ever glowing with hospitable feeling, he conciliated the esteem and affection of every one who had an opportunity of knowing him. Protestants as well as Catholics flocked around him, and reposed implicit confidence in his judgment and friendship.

They not only consulted him themselves, but they taught their children, in every painful or delicate exigency of their lives, to call on him for counsel and direction.

Bishop Cheverus was a good citizen of his adopted country. He never lost an opportunity of teaching his flock the blessings flowing from the government under which they lived, and kept alive in their breasts a warm and constant patriotism. In the last war with England, when Boston was threatened with an attack from the enemy, and voluntary contributions of labor became necessary, to make arrangements for a proper resistance, he several times went out to work at the head of his flock, assisting in building ramparts and breastworks for defence. He was a minister of peace, but instructed his followers that self-defence was not only a law of nature, but a dictate of religion. Friendly to our literary associations, he encouraged them as far as his means would allow him. When the Boston Athenæum was commenced, he assisted the enterprise by liberal donations from his extensive library; and at his departure from this country, that valuable and flourishing institution was not forgotten in the distribution of his books.

The 19th of September, 1818, was a day of profound affliction for bishop Cheverus; he lost his friend, Dr. Martignon. His occupations having increased, he labored indefatigably in the performance of his arduous duties, and though his health was evidently sinking under his exertions, not a complaint was heard from his lips. In 1822, when the Baron de Neuville, who had been residing in this country, returned to France, he represented to Louis XVIII. the impaired state of the bishop's health; and spoke so favorably of his virtues, his talents and amiable qualities, that the king was very desirous of securing his services in that country which had given him birth. Not long after, he received a letter apprizing him of his nomination to the bishopric of Montauban, and requesting him to sail immediately for France. His family in that country seemed to place their whole happiness on this event; but after the first emotions of pleasure, awakened in his breast by the kind remembrance of his transatlantic friends, had passed away, he looked round upon his flock, and deeply felt how hard it would be to part with them forever. If for a moment he thought of home, his duties and attachments here caused a struggle at his heart and brought him back to our shores. Not only his flock were in distress at losing him; influential people of the Protestant faith joined with his own, to detain him; and after a short conflict within himself, he came to the determination of declining the appointment to the see of Montauban. The memorial, signed by two hundred gentlemen of the first distinction in Boston, was sent to the Prince de Croÿ, Grand Almoner of France, which fully evinced the respect in which he was held in this country, and the importance of his services among us. After this communication was sent to France, he thought the question of his translation was at an end: but it was not so. The solicitations were renewed from such high authority, that they came to him in the nature of a summons which could not be refused; and he commenced his preparations for an early departure. A few days previous to his leaving Boston, his flock presented him with an address, expressing the warmest attachment for him and their profound regret at the loss they were about to suffer. He left Boston in September, 1823, for New York, to embark from that place for France. The parting scene was one of a most touching character. Protestants and Catholics crowded round him, dissolved in tears to think they should never see him again; and the last accents of his blessings were mingled with the moans of grief at his departure.

The prelate embarked from New York, on the 1st of October, in the ship Paris, accompanied by the Rev. Mr. Morainville, who for many years had been pastor of St. Patrick's church, Baltimore, Md., and who, worn out by his incessant labors in the ministry, was compelled, amidst the tears and sighs of his congregation, to quit the theatre of his truly apostolic zeal, and seek in his native clime the melioration of his enfeebled health. When they reached the English channel, the vessel was overtaken by a violent tempest, and on the 31st of October, they were thrown upon the French coast near the Hague. Though exposed to the greatest dangers, they were safely conveyed from the wreck to the town of Auderville, not far distant, without having suffered any serious calamity. Here the prelate received every attention from the pastor of the place, and officiated in his church on the feast of All Saints. The clergy in the vicinity also came to present him their respects, and congratulate him on his happy escape from the perils of the ocean.

It was not without feelings of the liveliest joy that bishop Cheverus, after an absence of more than thirty years, found himself again in his native land, and surrounded by clergymen some of whom had been his companions in exile. From Auderville he went to Cherbourg, and thence to Paris, where he had the pleasure of meeting many of his ancient acquaintances. At length having proceeded to Mayenne, where his family had long and anxiously looked for him, he visited all his relatives in the city and surrounding country, preached at Mayenne, Laval, Ernée and other places, and delighted every one by his amiable and engaging manners.

His arrival at Montauban, the 28th of July, 1824, was accompanied with every demonstration of joy and respect on the part of the inhabitants. Protestants as well as Catholics, in conjunction with the public authorities, went forth to meet him, evincing with rival efforts the high regard they entertained for their prelate. Here, as at Boston, he gained the affections of every heart. Every one was struck with the simplicity of his manner and the charms of his disposition. Many incidents are related of him which show the admirable facility he had of meriting the love of his people, and the devotedness with which he studied their welfare. Having understood that one of the parish priests of his diocese was not on good terms with the mayor of the city in which he lived, the bishop called on this officer who was then at Montauban, and without reprimanding him or entering upon any explanation of the matter, he told him simply, in a most affectionate manner, he had a favor to ask of him. The mayor immediately expressed his extreme willingness to render him every service in his power; upon which the bishop embraced him on the cheek, and said, carry that to your parish-priest. Overcome by this amiable expedient, the mayor could not but promise that all causes of complaint would in future be forgotten, and that a reconciliation between him and his curate was already effected.

When the river Tarn overflowed its banks, and threatened with destruction the lives and property of the inhabitants in that district, bishop Cheverus manifested a zeal and benevolence which were highly and deservedly extolled in the public journals of the day. Wherever danger appeared there was he seen, with his head uncovered and wading up to his knees in water, encouraging, more by his example than by his words, those who were aiding the unfortunate people to save their effects. He wished them to go to his house, to enjoy every convenience and comfort he could possibly extend to them in their suffering condition; proving himself, on this occasion, a worthy imitator of the illustrious Fenelon, who has observed that bishops as well as others had their day of battle. Charles X. was no sooner informed of the noble conduct of the prelate, and of the generous sacrifices he had made in that emergency, than he ordered five thousand francs to be forwarded to him, which were transmitted with a very flattering letter from the minister, the bishop of Hermopolis.

During Lent bishop Cheverus preached three times a week in his Cathedral; and, on the occasion of the jubilee in 1826, his instructions were much more frequent. At that time, he had the happiness of reclaiming from his disorders a religious who had broken his vows during the revolution, and seemed to be reckless of his eternal welfare. He visited him several times, induced him to sign a retraction of his faults, and afterwards delivered a very impressive sermon on that consoling topic.

In the month of July, 1826, the see of Bordeaux became vacant by the death of archbishop d'Aviau, whose piety, prudence, and amiable disposition had justly won for him the highest esteem and veneration. The distress of the inhabitants in being deprived of so valuable a man, was extreme; and it was thought by the minister of France, that the best compensation for so great a loss would be the appointment of bishop Cheverus to that important station. He was accordingly nominated to the see of Bordeaux before the end of July, and shortly after he was promoted to the peerdom; a favor the more distinguished as no one shared with him the honor of his elevation. Archbishop Cheverus arrived at Bordeaux on the 14th of December; but his reputation had long preceded him. The affliction of all who belonged to his former diocese, the glowing colors in which they represented his virtues, his charity, his amability, his simplicity of manner, had prepossessed every mind in his favor. But the kind disposition of the prelate, the great tact and wisdom he exhibited in the first acts of his administration, far surpassed the expectation of the public, who seemed to have found in their good archbishop another Aviau, so affable was he at all times, and so zealously devoted to their welfare.

Archbishop Cheverus was the father of his clergy. He not only received with kindness the priests of his diocese, when they visited Bordeaux, but expressly declared his desire that they should have no other table than his, unless their friends or relatives in the city invited them elsewhere. He was equally pleased in entertaining his friends in Bordeaux, and strangers who called to see him; deeming it a great point to keep up a friendly intercourse with his diocesans, and particularly with his clergy, who were all perfectly well known to him. Politics were discarded from his parlour: even before the revolution of July, he had enjoined a strict silence in relation to those subjects. Such was his prudence that, notwithstanding the diversity of opinion and the warmth of party spirit; the most inflammatory papers of the times did not dare to animadvert upon his sentiments or conduct. Only once was he represented to have spoken too strongly in the pulpit; but the charge soon fell to the ground, and was well known to be incompatible with his habits of wisdom and reserve.

On the subject of the ordinances of the 16th of June, 1828, when the bishops of France were assembled in different places for their consideration, archbishop Cheverus appeared to dissent from his colleagues. Undoubtedly he did not approve of the ordinances, nor did he consider it expedient to adopt the memorial presented to the King by Cardinal de Clermont Tonnerre, in the name of the French Hierarchy. Certain passages of the memorial were too strongly expressed; but this difficulty was soon removed and the matter brought to a close.

After the revolution in July, 1830, all those who had been raised to the peerage by Charles X. were deprived of this distinction. On that occasion, the following article was inserted by archbishop Cheverus in the papers of Bordeaux: "Without approving the measure of exclusion affecting the peers created by Charles X., I am exceedingly happy to find myself out of the political world, and I am determined never to accept any office or function of that description. It is my desire to live in the midst of my flock, and to exercise among them a ministry of charity, union and peace. In my instructions, I shall teach them to obey the existing government, and shall not fail to inculcate that duty by my own example. Both my clergy and myself, with those who have been committed to our charge, will pray incessantly for the prosperity of our beloved country. The inhabitants of Bordeaux have become still dearer to my heart, and I thank them cordially for the friendship they have thought proper to extend to me. My fondest wish is to live and die among them; but with no other title than that of an archbishop and a friend."

From this period till that of his death, our worthy prelate left his diocese but once, and that was on the occasion of his nomination to the cardinalship. Occupied solely with the duties of his station, he visited his flock and saw every thing thrive under his wise and peaceful government.

The high reputation he every where enjoyed, was a shield that protected his clergy during the most disastrous times, and averted from his diocese the unfortunate troubles that were witnessed in so many other places. While several prelates, with their ecclesiastics, were obliged to leave their homes, archbishop Cheverus remained at his post, and was always on terms of amity with those who were in power. Mr. de Preissac, a civil officer of distinction, though a protestant, took great pleasure in affording him every facility for the execution of his plans, and the other protestants of Bordeaux were not less favorably disposed. The good archbishop was at a loss to account for the attentions and civilities he received from all classes of society. "I am completely spoiled," he used to say, "and I have always been spoiled, but I know not why." The fact was, his modesty concealed from him what was obvious to every one else, and attracted universal esteem.

The eminent and amiable qualities of archbishop Cheverus had, ever since the year 1832, awakened a general desire of seeing him decorated with the purple; but the troubles in Italy were for a long time, an obstacle to the presentation. Far from taking any active interest in his promotion, he was much surprised to find that he had been selected for the honors of the cardinalship, and told his friends plainly that the dignity belonged to another person. In his letter to the Sovereign Pontiff, on that occasion, he spoke of the red hat as an object of pure indifference to him, unless it came from the good will of his Holiness, and had no difficulty in saying that the honor should have been conferred on some other prelate.

On the 1st of February, 1836, the Pope declared him Cardinal, and he repaired to Paris where the red cap was presented to him by an officer of the Apostolic Chamber, and on the 9th of March he received the red hat, with the ceremony usual on such occasions. Shortly after, his Eminence visited his family, from whom he had been separated for many years, and then returned to his diocese, from which it was painful for him to be absent. Having been solicited to spend a few days in his former diocese of Montauban, he complied with the request of his friends, and excited by his presence a real enthusiasm among the people. But alas! these emotions of joy were soon to be followed by the most poignant grief. The health of Cardinal Cheverus had for some time been visibly declining, and he seemed to anticipate some fearful occurrence. On the 13th of July, in the afternoon, he expressed a wish to make his confession, though it was not the day on which he generally approached the sacrament of penance. During the night he appeared to suffer much uneasiness, and in the morning he was found to be in a state of insensibility. The sacrament of Extreme Unction was immediately administered, and prayers were offered up in the different churches of the city. Notwithstanding every effort of medical skill to arrest the progress of the disease, it became gradually more violent, and on the 19th the Cardinal breathed his soul into the hands of God. It would be difficult to describe the grief and consternation that pervaded the diocess upon the announcement of this melancholy news. On the evening of the 19th an immense concourse of persons, of every class, assembled at the archiepiscopal palace, to bid a last adieu to the worthy prelate whom they had looked upon as a father and a friend. Grief was depicted in every countenance. Ah! what an excellent man we have lost, exclaimed some wiping the tears from their eyes, while others responded in mournful accents: the poor will never forget him. Could he have known that these eulogies would have been pronounced near his earthly remains, how much more glorious would they have appeared to him than the dignities that had been conferred on him, and to which he had never aspired! Cardinal Cheverus loved to mix with his flock, and exhibit a most sincere affection in return for the respect he universally received. Not long before his death he was heard to say, "pray to God that I may not be scorched by this red robe: I was much more happy without it, and I fear lest he should tell me one day, you have received your reward in this life." Providence did not permit him to enjoy this honor for a long time, but the memory of his virtues will be ever graven upon the hearts of those who knew him. A fine mind, a most amiable disposition, extraordinary prudence, and eminent piety had won for him not only the respect and esteem of his clergy and the faithful under his charge, but even of those men who were strangers to religion. His funeral service was performed on the 26th of July, in the Cathedral of Bordeaux, with great pomp and solemnity.

MOUNT ST. MARY'S THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

NEAR EMMITSBURG, MD.

Connected with Mount St. Mary's College is an Ecclesiastical Seminary, which is principally dependent on the college for its support. Considering the great disadvantages under which Catholic Schools of this nature have been and are as yet, doomed to labour in this country, this one has been peculiarly successful. It is chiefly indebted for the good it has done, to its venerable founder, and another individual of the most elevated character, profound and varied knowledge and indefatigable zeal, the Right Rev. Simon Gabriel Bruté, now R. C. Bishop of Vincennes, who for many years previous to his nomination to that see, was Professor of Theology and Lecturer on Sacred Scriptures in this Institution. It has sent forth more than fifty Priests, all of whom have been partially, and many of the most eminent of them, entirely educated in this Institution, and by its own resources, although no permanent provision has ever been made for its support, and until within the past year no appeal was ever addressed to those, whose spiritual wants have been thus largely supplied by it. The present number of students in the seminary is 20.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE,

IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The COLLEGE is situated on the northern bank of the Potomac, and commands a full view of Georgetown, Washington, the Potomac, and a great part of the District of Columbia. Its situation is peculiarly healthy. The distance between the College and the Capitol being only an ordinary walk, the students have an opportunity of hearing, occasionally, the debates of Congress, and the pleadings of the Supreme Court; always, however, attended by their Prefect.

On the first of May, 1815, the College was raised by Congress to the rank of University, so that the course of studies is calculated to fit the Scholars, if they remain long enough in the College, for the usual academic honors. During their whole stay in the College, the strictest attention will be paid to the morals of the students, and they are always under the eye of one or more of the Prefects—even in their walks and recreations.

The course of ordinary studies is completed in seven years; at the completion of which, if the scholar have made sufficient proficiency, he may receive the degree of Bachelor of Arts. When a scholar presents himself to be received into the college, he is examined by the Prefect of Studies, and placed in that class for which his prior acquirements may have fitted him. He then passes in regular succession to the end of Logic and Moral Philosophy. If he remain longer, and study the higher branches of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, he may take the degree of Master of Arts.

The academic year commences on the 15th of September and ends on the 31st of July.

1st. In the lowest school, or Class of Rudiments, the scholars study the first elements of the Latin and English grammars, Reading, Spelling and Parsing, and read in Latin the select letters of Cicero. They study a part of the history of the Old Testament, and the first elements of Geography. They are exercised in easy Latin and English compositions, and commence the Greek Grammar.

2d. During the next year (third Class of Humanities) the students read the select letters of Cicero, Phædrus and Græca Minora. They are exercised in Greek, Latin and English Composition. They study the history of the Old and New Testaments—and the Geography of North America. The English Grammar is particularly attended to.

3d. In the second Class of Humanities the students read Nepos, Cæsar, Ovid's Metamorphoses and Elegies, and finish Græca Minora. They are exercised in writing Greek, Latin, and English Prose, and study a course of Ancient History, comprising Egypt, Assyria, and Persia—and the Geography of South America and Europe. The English is particularly attended to.

4th. In the first Class of Humanities, the students read Sallust, Cicero's minor works, Virgil's Eclogues, and a portion of his Æneid, Lucan's Dialogues, Xenophon and Anthology. They are exercised in composing Greek, Latin and English Prose—study Latin Prosody, and are instructed in the elements of versification. They study a course of Mythology, the History of Greece, and the Geography of Asia and Africa.

5th. In the Class of Poetry—The students read select orations of Cicero, part of Livy, the Æneid of Virgil, select parts of Catullus, Tibullus, and Propertius, the Odes of Horace, and his art of Poetry, Xenophon, Thucydides, and Theocritus and Homer. They are exercised in Greek, Latin, and English Compositions, both in prose and verse—study the history of Rome, and a course of Ancient Geography.

6th. In Rhetoric—The students read select portions of the following authors:—Quintillian, Cicero de Oratore, De Inventione—some of his orations, Juvenal and Persius, Horace's Satires and Epistles, Livy, Demosthenes, Homer, and Sophocles. They are exercised in Greek, Latin, and English Compositions, both in prose and verse; and study a course of the History of the United States.

7th. This year a course of Logic, Metaphysics, and Ethics, and a course of Natural and Experimental Philosophy are studied. As the students in this class are supposed to be good Latin scholars, the Lectures on Logic, Metaphysics, and Ethics are delivered in the Latin Language. The Lectures on Natural Philosophy are in English, and the exercises are in the same language.

All the students are instructed, for one hour and a quarter every day, in Mathematics, of which there are three Classes:

In the lowest Class of Mathematics, the students are taught Algebra, and study some of the first books of Euclid.

In the next Class—Solid Geometry, Spherics, the use of the Globes, Conics and the Calculus.

The students who are not sufficiently advanced to commence Algebra, are divided into three separate Classes of Arithmetic, and have distinct Professors. There are also two Classes of Caligraphy for the younger students.

There are three Professors of French, among whom the students are divided according to their proficiency, and instructed one hour every day.

During the whole course, great attention is paid to composition, particularly English. There will be always a class of book-keeping for the convenience of those who wish to learn it. The Italian, Spanish and German languages will be also taught if required; but, together with Music, Drawing, Dancing, Fencing, and other similar accomplishments, they will form additional charges.

The College possesses a select library of fourteen thousand volumes, the use of which is granted to the senior students without any additional charge.

There are two examinations in the year; the minor one in February or March, and the other immediately before the commencement, which will always be a day of public exercises, towards the end of July.

No student is admitted who cannot read and write, and who has not a good moral character.

As the members of the College profess the Catholic religion, the exercises of religious worship are Catholic, but members of every other religious denomination are received, of whom it is only required, that they assist at the public duties of religion with their companions. Were not this enforced, no proper order, such as should be found in large literary institutions, could exist in the College.

No student will be permitted to leave the College on visits of any length, oftener than once a year, viz: at the great vacation; if his parents or legal guardians live in the District, he will be allowed to visit them once a month, but not oftener—and he must then always return to the College before night. Experience has proved that mere complimentary visits have given occasion to disorders. No student, therefore, will be allowed to visit any person except his parents or legal guardian.

Every student on entering the College, must bring with him one suit of clothes, as uniform—which is, in winter, a blue cloth coat and pantaloons, with a black velvet waistcoat; in summer, white pantaloons with a black silk waistcoat, are used—this dress is only used on public occasions.

He must likewise bring with him two suits for daily wear, for which no particular colour is prescribed; six shirts, six pairs of stockings, six pocket handkerchiefs, three pairs of shoes, a hat, and a cloak, or great coat; also a silver spoon, marked with his name; these articles, if not brought by the student, will be furnished by the College, and included in the first bill.

The annual pension for board, tuition, washing and mending linen and stockings, for use of books, (philosophical and mathematical excepted) pens, ink, and writing paper, slates and pencils, medical aid and medicine, is $200. All charges must be paid half yearly in advance.

No extra charges except those which are specified, viz: the Italian, Spanish, and German Languages, and the books necessary for their study, Music, Drawing, Fencing, and similar accomplishments, all which will form extra charges.

If parents wish the College to supply their sons with clothing, a deposit is required by the College equivalent to the probable expense for clothing for six months. The term clothing is understood to comprehend shoes, caps and any and every article of wear. None of which will be furnished by the College unless a deposit, equivalent to the probable expense, be made.

With regard to pocket money, it is desired that little should be granted: whatever sum parents or guardians may choose to allow their sons or wards, must be deposited in the hands of the President of the College, who will give it out to the students in such manner as he thinks the occasion requires.

Half boarders are received at $90 per annum, to be paid half yearly in advance.

N. B. A regular account of board, tuition, &c. will be sent every six months in advance. It is earnestly requested that immediate remittances be made to the full amount, as the circumstances of the College cannot allow any considerable delay. If within two months after the account is sent, payment be not made, the President is directed to send the pupils home to their parents or guardians.

All letters of application for admittance are to be directed to the President.

Georgetown, D. C. August, 1835.

The following Rev. gentlemen are attached to the Institution :

ST. JOHN'S LITERARY INSTITUTION,

FREDERICK CITY, MARYLAND.

This school now in operation eight years, continues to afford the means of acquiring a classical education, on terms accommodated to all.

The number of enquiries of late, from distant parts of the country, respecting the institution, are thus briefly answered. Each scholar is required to pay, on entering, fifty dollars, which entitles him to a place in the school, until he completes the course adopted by the institution, without any other charges for tuition. Three dollars a year is to be paid also in advance by each student, for fuel, ink and servants' wages. Parents unable to make the donation of fifty dollars, (which is applied to pay off the debt incurred for the buildings) can have their sons educated, by paying the sum above mentioned for fuel, &c. No scholar received unless he knows how to read and bears a good moral character.

The institution aims chiefly at a classical education, without losing sight of the English and Mathematical departments. French is also taught. Four professors are employed, in separate rooms, with their respective classes.

Rules for conduct are prescribed, and enforced by the superintendence of one of the professors.

There are two examinations each year: the one private, the first week in March; the other public, the last week in July, after which bulletins are sent to parents—stating the proficiency, conduct, &c., of their sons. On the first Tuesday in August, the exhibition and distribution of premiums take place at 3 o'clock, P. M.—from this day the annual vacation commences, and ends on Monday after the 15th of September;—no other vacation during the year.

Four or five boarding houses have been opened for the accommodation of boys from a distance, and others may be found—their charge is $100 per annum, for board, washing and mending, payable half yearly in advance. Should a student be taken home on account of sickness or in vacation, a proportionate deduction will be made, for the time of his absence by the proprietors of boarding houses.

The undersigned does not receive boarders, but prescribes regulations to the respective houses, and sees as much as he can, by himself or others, that they are observed. Strict attention is paid to religious instruction, as also to religious observances, both essential to form the moral character of youth.

JOHN McELROY.

CARMELITE CONVENT, Baltimore.

The Order of the Carmelites is one of the most ancient religious communities in the Church. They received their rule in the year 1209, from Albert, Patriarch of Jerusalem. From Mount Carmel, the place of their institution, the Carmelites soon spread themselves over different parts of Europe, and furnished the Church with many of its most distinguished prelates, orators and writers. The rule, though rigid, is not severe: and experience has proved that it may be observed by persons of a very delicate constitution.

The Carmelites fast eight months in the year, wear wool-len clothing, and sleep on straw beds. They never eat flesh meat except in case of sickness, when the physician prescribes the use of it. The sick obtain every comfort the house can afford.

The austerity of their rule having been mitigated by Pope Eugenius IV., the Carmelites were no longer obliged to keep the cloister; but in the 16th century, St. Teresa restored the Order to its primitive discipline.

The community now established in Baltimore was founded in 1790, by the Rev. Charles Neale, who brought with him from Europe four nuns, three of whom were Americans, and one an English lady. They settled in Charles county, Md., and under the direction of their pious founder, they soon became a flourishing convent. The members of this branch of the Carmelite Order, observe the reformed rule of St. Teresa. They recite the Divine Office, and offer up their daily prayers, fasts, and other good works, for the benefit of souls, the necessities of the Church, and particularly for those who labor in the vineyard of our Lord.

DIOCESS OF BOSTON.

The diocese of Boston, which embraces all the New England States, viz: Massachusetts, Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Connecticut, was established in 1808, by Pius VII., and the Rev. John Cheverus, at that time associated with the Rev. Dr. Matignon in the pastoral care of the Boston congregation, was appointed its first bishop. (See his life, page 47.) Upon his translation to the See of Montauban, in France, the Right Rev. Benedict Fenwick was charged with the government of the Diocese. He was consecrated by the Most Rev. Ambrose Marechal, in the Cathedral of Baltimore, on the 1st of November, 1825.

MOUNT ST. JAMES' SEMINARY,

WORCESTER, MASSACHUSETTS.

This Institution, which is now opened for the reception of youth, is situated on that most delightful eminence which bounds the flourishing town of Worcester on the south, called by the Indians, (it being the site of their former village,) Pakachoag, or "hill of pleasant springs."

The course of instruction comprises all the branches of a sound, correct and practical English education, such as will qualify youth for usefulness in the various avocations of life.

When the pupils, who, upon their entrance should have completed their eighth year, are well grounded in the essential rudiments of Spelling, Reading, and Grammar, they proceed to Writing, Arithmetic, and Book-keeping, practically inculcated for general utility.

The next course embraces Geography, illustrated by the use of Maps and Globes, Elementary Astronomy, Ancient and Modern History, and Composition—for the important acquirement of which, passages from works of the best and most elegant writers of the day are selected.

The expenses for board, tuition, lodging, washing and mending, are eighty dollars per annum, to be paid quarterly in advance.

DIOCESS OF DETROIT.

The See of Detroit, which comprises the State of Michigan and the North Western Territory, was established by the reigning Pontiff Gregory XVI., in the year 1833, and the Rt. Rev. Frederick Rézé, a native of the kingdom of Hanover, and administrator of the diocese of Cincinnati, after the demise of the Rt. Rev. Edward Fenwick, was appointed its first bishop. He was consecrated at Cincinnati, on the 6th of October of the same year, by bishop Rosati, of St. Louis.

COLLEGES, CONVENTS, AND SCHOOLS.

ST. PHILIP'S COLLEGE—Cote du Nord-est.

Near Detroit, Michigan,

UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE

RT. REV. DR. REEZE, BISHOP OF DETROIT.

The course of instruction pursued in this college will embrace the Latin, Greek, French, and English, languages, Poetry, Rhetoric and Oratory—Reading, Writing, Geography, Mathematics and Book-keeping. A favorable opportunity to become well conversant with the French language, will be found in the intercourse with the pupils, whose native tongue is French.

The price of the scholastic year is fixed at the moderate sum of 100 dollars, including board and tuition, payable quarterly in advance. Washing, mending, medical attendance and medicine, at the expense of the parents. No deduction will be made for absence except in cases of protracted sickness or dismissal, neither in consequence of a student's leaving the College before the end of the quarter.

Rev. Mr. DE BRUGN, *President of Studies.

ST. ANN'S HIGH SCHOOL.

DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

This school, or seminary, under the patronage of the Rt. Rev. Dr. Rézé, bishop of Detroit, is superintended by William McDonagh, late principal of the English, Classic and Mathematical Academy, Great ship street, Dublin.

Youth are here speedily, yet solidly prepared for College, for mercantile or professional pursuits, and the strictest attention is paid to the formation of their morals and manners.

English, so difficult of attainment, to those unacquainted with its idiom, is facilitated "in transitu," by grammatical analyses, and proper pronunciation of the language.

Composition and Declamation are practised at stated periods—the varieties of style pointed out, and oratorical action and delivery exemplified and elucidated.

In Penmanship, peculiar pains are taken in tracing its various forms, whether plain, angular, text or ornamental; whilst Geography, that delightful study, is illustrated by the best maps and the use of the globes.

With these subjects, the system embraces, Arithmetic, both mental and by figures—Book-keeping by single and double entry—Euclid's Elements of Geometry, with other consecutive and useful branches of Mathematics. Ancient and Modern History, Natural and Moral Philosophy, Botany, French, the Greek and Latin classics, and, in a word, every thing calculated to form the character of the scholar, the gentleman and the christian.

In performing this arduous, though "delightful task," of rendering the rising pupil useful to society, and happy in himself—the Principal calls for the co-operation of parents and guardians, to quicken the child's diligence in his studies at home, and cause his prompt attendance at school hours; whilst on his part and that of his assistants, he pledges himself to devote all that attention and assiduity to the duties of his avocation, which their importance and his experience tell him they demand.

TERMS.—For the English course, viz. Orthography, Reading, Grammar, Geography, Writing, Arithmetic, Composition and Declamation—$5 per quarter.

For Greek and Latin, with the above items, as also Book-keeping, Geometry, and the higher branches adverted to above, $8 per quarter.

French, $4 per quarter.

Fuel 1 shilling per month during the cold season.

Payments to be made quarterly in advance. No deduction for absent days, unless those occasioned by sickness.

Further particulars to be known by applying to Mr. McDonagh, at the school-house, which is situated on the French church lot, corner of Randolph street and Michigan avenue; or to the Right Rev. prelate, the Very Rev. Mr. Badin, Rev. Mr. O'Cavanagh, Gen. John R. Williams, or Hon. Judge McDonel.

ECCLESIASTICAL, RELIGIOUS, CLASSICAL AND CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS.

The ECCLESIASTICAL SEMINARY of St. Francis Xavier, at Cincinnati, has for its object to educate young gentlemen for the service of the Church. Within the last two years it has sent three students to the Propaganda, in Rome, and prepared five priests for the diocesan missions. It contains at present nine students.

CONVENT OF DOMINICANS, at St. Joseph's, near Somerset, Perry co. The following gentlemen reside here: Rev. N. D. Young, Prior, Rev. A. F. Van de Weyer, Rev. J. H. Clarkson, Rev. George J. Wilson: The Very Rev. R. P. Miles, Provincial of the Order, resides alternately here and at St. Rose's, Kentucky.

There is a college now in progress of building on the Convent grounds, which will soon be finished, and will afford young gentlemen as many facilities for acquiring a thorough English, Classical and Mathematical education, as are enjoyed in other literary institutions of the Union. The prospectus of this establishment will be published next year.

CINCINNATI ATHENÆUM.

A good education is universally considered the greatest blessing which a parent can confer upon his child. It prepares him to occupy, at a more mature age, a useful if not conspicuous station in society, and to hold in proper estimation those social duties he will be required to fulfil. We can say with confidence, that unceasing efforts have been and shall continue to be made, to secure to the pupils of the Athenæum this advantage.

The collegiate course embraces the Greek, Latin, English, German, French and Spanish languages. Special attention will be given to the various branches of Mathematics, Elocution, History, Writing, Geography, the use of the Globes, and in general to whatever is usually considered essential to a complete course of English studies. As the study of the Latin language will not interfere with the acquisition of these branches, we trust that every pupil will be permitted to obtain a knowledge of the ancient classics. The brilliant works of the ancient philosophers, historians, orators and poets, have preserved their lustre through all preceding ages; they diversify the labour of study, by their elegance of conception and purity of diction, and are universally admitted to be a correct standard of taste; while the methodical arrangement of thought and the judicious distribution of time, which a regular course produces enables the youthful mind to learn many things simultaneously, without confusion or embarrassment of its ideas. We hope, therefore, that these sources of elegant polite, and useful knowledge, will not be sealed to the pupils of the Athenæum, by an unenlightened preference for what is falsely termed the useful to the ornamental.

A new and splendid philosophical apparatus has been lately imported from Paris for the use of the College.

COLLEGES AND ACADEMIES.

CATHOLIC COLLEGE OF VINCENNES.

This new institution founded by the Right Rev. Dr. Bruté, will be conducted by the Rev. Mr. Vabret, and some other clergymen of his friends, and it is hoped it will obtain a due share of the esteem that the other Catholic Colleges have uniformly enjoyed throughout the United States. Dr. Bruté was formerly president of St. Mary's College, in Baltimore; afterwards the Superior of the Ecclesiastical Seminary attached to the College of St. Mary's, near Emmitsburg, so long under the care of Dr. Dubois, now Bishop of New York. When he was appointed to the newly erected see of Vincennes, it was expected that some institution would be established under his direction in that town, so favorably situated for education and the cultivation of literature and the sciences. The first attempt to meet the desire of his special friends and of his fellow citizens is now making. As usual, it is under many untried difficulties; the Bishop however, is confident that success may at least sufficiently justify the undertaking, and knowing the abilities, intentions, and devotedness to duty, with which his friends begin their task, he recommends their enterprize with honest earnestness, and trusts to Providence and parents for its greater future development.

The exercises of the College will commence on the 2d of October. Virtue as well as knowledge being the object of a sound education, the discipline of the College will be mild and parental, but all its rules properly maintained. Boarders will not be admitted more than fifteen years old, or less than ten, nor from other institutions without proper testimony.

As for the religious exercises of the house, the pupils will all be required to attend them, as it is necessary for the good order of the house; but there will be no interference with their liberty of conscience. The course of instruction will embrace successively, all the branches of classical education. Competent teachers are secured.

ST. LOUIS UNIVERSITY.

MISSOURI.

This literary establishment was incorporated by an act of the Legislature of the State, on the 28th of December, 1832, under the name and style of the "St. Louis University," and empowered to distinguish merit by literary honors and rewards, and generally, to have and enjoy all the powers, rights and privileges usually exercised by literary institutions of the same rank.

PLAN OF INSTRUCTION.

The course of instruction embraces both a Mercantile and Classical education, but so conducted, that the student may apply himself to either or both of these, according to his destination, or the desire of his parents.

The Mercantile Department embraces Reading, Writing, the English and French Languages, Poetry, Rhetoric, History, Geography, Mythology, Book-keeping, Arithmetic, Algebra, Geometry, the use of the Globes, Trigonometry, Mensuration and Surveying.

The Classical Department, besides the above specified subjects, comprises the Latin and Greek Languages, Logic, Metaphysics, Moral and Natural Philosophy, and the higher branches of the Mathematics.

The Spanish, if required is taught to the students of both departments, without any additional charge.

The English is the ordinary language of communication in all the classes, the French and Spanish excepted; but the students speak French and English indiscriminately, during the hours of recreation.

TERMS.

The terms, including all the branches above specified, as also washing, mending, doctor's fees and stationary, payable half yearly in advance, are $150 per annum, and $10 entrance. Music, Drawing; and extraordinary attendance during sickness, form extra charges. Medicines and School-books are furnished at store prices.

Should the parents wish to have the washing and mending done at home, a deduction will be made of $15 per annum; and should they wish to employ a physician different from the one in attendance, or run the risk of paying a full bill, a deduction of $4 per annum will be made; and $6 will be deducted if the stationary be furnished by the parents.

ST. MARY'S COLLEGE,

BARRENS, PERRY COUNTY, MISSOURI.

The neighborhood in which this College is situated ranks among the most healthy in the West. A high, rolling country, salubrious air, and ample space for exercise, will, through the paternal vigilance of the tutors, ensure and fortify the health of the youthful student.

The course of instruction embraces, Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, Geography, use of the Globes, Book-keeping, History, Poetry, Algebra, Geometry, Theoretical and Practical Surveying, Astronomy, Moral and Natural Philosophy, Chemistry—the French, Spanish, German, Italian, Latin and Greek languages. The Faculty being empowered to confer degrees, exact the same conditions from the candidate for academic honors as are exacted in other Colleges or Universities; but they freely admit young gentlemen, who, seeking but a commercial education, do not wish to study the Latin and Greek languages, and who do not graduate. The professor for each of the modern languages, named above, will be one for whom that language is his mother tongue, and who speaks it in its utmost purity.

The terms, including boarding, tuition, washing, mending, doctor's fees, and use of library, are $150 per annum, payable half yearly in advance. Should parents wish their children to be furnished by the College with clothing, bed, and bedding, &c., they will please to deposite in the hands of the Rev. John Boullier, treasurer of the institution, a sum sufficient to meet the probable expense. Half-yearly communications on the health and progress of the pupils will be addressed to parents or guardians. The scholastic year begins on the 2d of November, and ends on the 26th of September. The present number of students in the College is 80.

AT KASKASKIA, ILLINOIS.

The number of professed Sisters in this Institution is eleven. There are four Novices and three Postulants. The Sisters have a flourishing Academy under their charge, the plan and terms of which are shown in the following prospectus.

Young Ladies Academy of the Visitation,

AT KASKASKIA, ILLINOIS.

M. ELLEN FLANNIGAN, Directress.

The situation of the Academy is near the village of Kaskaskia, commanding on one side a full view of the beautiful river of the same name, as it winds its course beneath a ridge of lofty hills, and on the other overlooking a considerable portion of the village. The site is not only picturesque, but, at the same time, one of the healthiest in the Union, the air being pure and salubrious, the water wholesome and agreeable, and the course of exercise such as must contribute to the preservation of health and strength.

PLAN OF INSTRUCTION.

The course of instruction, commencing with the elements of an English Education, embraces Orthography, Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, English and French Grammar and Composition, Geography, Sacred and Profane History, Ancient and Modern Chronology, Mythology, Poetical Composition, Rhetoric, Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy, use of the Maps and Globes. Also—Music, Vocal and Instrumental, on the Harp, Piano and Guitar; Painting in Water Colors, and on velvet, Plain and Ornamental Needle-work, Tapestry, Lace and Bead-work, &c.

REGULATIONS.

The scholastic year commences on the second Monday in September, and is terminated by a general examination of the classes, which commences on the last Monday of July, and is closed on the Wednesday following by the exhibition and distribution of premiums. To these succeed the annual vacations, which the pupils are allowed to spend either with their parents and relations, or at the academy.

The Schools are suspended in the afternoon on Wednesdays and Saturdays, and during these intervals of relaxation, the pupils committed to the guidance of one of the members of the community, are permitted to extend their walks beyond the enclosure of the Academy.

The spirit of emulation is excited by rank, variously assigned, according to the degree of excellence attained by each pupil in the different branches of education. Every month, a general report, detailing the proficiency and conduct of every pupil, is read in the presence of all the teachers and boarders, after which, a ticket is presented as a testimonial of approbation, to the young lady who has obtained the most distinguished place in her class, and merited pre-eminence by the regularity of her conduct.

The preservation of health is an object of maternal solicitude, and to promote and ensure it, wholesome diet is provided, and cheerful exercise encouraged on an extensive and agreeable play-ground.

Regularity, neatness, cheerfulness, and decorum of manners and deportment, are objects incessantly inculcated, and specially attended to by the ladies who preside over the Institution; and every effort is made by them to form and improve the hearts of their pupils, and implant in them a solid esteem and love of virtue, but without exercising any undue influence over their religious opinions.

COLLEGES FOR YOUNG MEN.

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE,

BARDSTOWN, KY.

This College is situated in the suburbs of Bardstown. The site is beautiful, and equally as healthy as any in the state, or perhaps in the Union.

The branches actually taught, are the languages, viz: Latin, Greek, French, Spanish: Mathematics in all the branches: Latin and English versification: Rhetoric, including Composition and Elocution: Mental Philosophy, Natural Philosophy, including the elements of Chemistry: Pneumatics, Electricity, &c., illustrated by experiments. The apparatus for Natural and Experimental Philosophy, is as complete as any in the western country, and will be occasionally increased by new invoices from Europe. History and Geography, with the use of the maps and globes, are taught with peculiar attention.

TERMS.

Tuition alone; in Reading, Writing and Arithmetic, per annum,	$20 00
Do. in English Grammar, Geography, and Practical Surveying,	30 00
Do. in the languages and higher branches,	50 00
Do. including Board, Washing and Mending	150 00

The expenses already incurred in procuring and importing the apparatus, and those to be incurred yearly, for the experiments, mending and replacing instruments, create a necessity of making a small extra charge of $10 per annum, for the class of Natural Philosophy.

The following are the names of the Rev. gentlemen attached to the College;

ST. MARY'S COLLEGE,

Incorporated, January 31, 1837.

This Literary Establishment, founded in 1822, has been for the last three years, under the direction of the present Conductors. Hitherto they have followed, with a few modifications, the plan adopted by their predecessors; but many circumstances now call on them for a system of education on a larger scale, and some new regulations. With this view a spacious building has been recently erected, containing two large dormitories, a library and separate halls, for recreation, lectures and classes. Two hundred boarders can be accommodated. The spirit of the Institution is already known: it will continue to promote learning and virtue, and exert itself in conformity to the character, wants, and increasing prosperity of the country.

I.

A situation agreeable and retired; the well regulated succession of study and recreation; a mild, paternal and firm government; an abundant and wholesome diet—all contribute to the health, comfort and good education of the students.

The peculiar circumstances of the Establishment, situated in the centre of a large and well cultivated farm, concur with the benevolent intentions of the Conductors, and enable them to offer all the advantages of a college on very moderate terms.

II.

The system of study embraces all the branches commonly taught in other colleges.—It is divided into two Courses—the Classical Course, and the English, or Commercial Course.

CLASSICAL COURSE.

THIS COURSE OCCUPIES FOUR YEARS.

1st. English Grammar; Rational Arithmetic; Latin commenced; Geography, and delineation of Maps.

2d. Greek and French commenced; Selectæ e profanis; Sallust; Euclid; the use of the Globes.

3d. French continued; Virgil; Cicero; Græca Minora; Surveying; Algebra; Chemistry; Astronomy.

4th. Rhetoric, and Belles-Lettres; Horace; Livy; Homer; Græca Majora; Conic Sections, and some other branches of Mathematics; Logic, Mental and Natural Philosophy.

ENGLISH OR COMMERCIAL COURSE.

THIS COURSE IS COMPLETED IN THREE YEARS.

1st. English Grammar, Arithmetic, Geography and delineation of Maps.

2d. English Grammar continued, Rational Arithmetic, Euclid, Surveying, Book-keeping, Chemistry.

3d. Rhetoric and Belles-Lettres, Algebra, the use of the Globes, Astronomy, Logic, Natural Philosophy.

There is besides a Preparatory Course, in which the students who cannot be admitted to either of these courses, are taught Reading, Spelling, Writing, with the elements of English Grammar and Arithmetic.

1. Those who are too young to study Mathematics, with advantage, shall attend the French or Spanish class, or study some other branches.

2. Students who, from their previous acquirements, or for other reasons, may not stand in need of either Course, in all its branches, shall be placed suitably to their capacity and intentions.

3. In both courses, great attention is paid throughout, to Reading, Writing and Orthography. The other branches, Elocution, History and Composition are particularly attended to in the higher classes.

4. The classes are taught every day except Sunday, and one day in the week which will be devoted to recreation, with the reserve of an hour or two in the morning, set apart for some literary or scientific exercise.

5. Suitable means of improvement, and emulation are resorted to, such as distinction of places, weekly and monthly accounts read out publicly by the President, and half-yearly Examinations.

III.

1. The scholastic year commences on the first Tuesday of September, and terminates in the last week of July, on a day appointed for the Exhibition.

2. No student is admitted for a shorter term than half of the scholastic year.

3. The Catholic Faith is professed by the Conductors, without any encroachment on the principles of students of other denominations. However, uniformity and good order, so indispensable, particularly in a large Institution, require their attendance at the public exercises of religious worship.

4. No student is permitted to leave the College during the scholastic year, except in case of sickness, and for extraordinary and important reasons, and no deduction is made for an absence of less than a month.

5. As the end of the Institution cannot be attained without a due regard to morality and discipline, any breach of either is met with proper severity, and, in some extraordinary cases, recourse is had to dismission.

7. Letters, except to and from parents and guardians, are subject to the inspection of the President.

6. Twice a year, correct Reports or Bulletins are transmitted to parents or guardians, stating the behavior, health, progress, and application of their children, or wards.

IV.

1. Board, Tuition, Washing, Mending, &c., per annum, half yearly in advance, - - - $100

2. No deduction is made for the students who go home during the annual vacation.

3. Bed and bedding, when furnished by the College, - - - - - 6

4. The only extra charges are for Music and Drawing, which will be taught on moderate terms, and for the philosophical apparatus. - - - 4

5. Stationary can be furnished by the College, - - - 4

6. Medical attendance and Medicines, unless parents prefer to pay the expenses incurred, in case of sickness, - - - - - 2

7. Books, clothes, and other articles of this nature, will be furnished, according to the intention of parents, or guardians, with a due regard to economy, and without any profit for the College. But a sum of money is to be deposited for that purpose in the hands of the Treasurer.

8. No uniform is prescribed, but it is expected that every student shall be always provided with two good suits of clothes, and other articles of clothing adapted to the season.

9. Bills of expenditure will be sent with the bulletins.

10. Parents who live at a considerable distance are requested to appoint an agent who can easily correspond with the President.

11. None are admitted as day-scholars, whose parents or guardians do not live in the neighborhood.

The following gentlemen are employed in the College:

Rev. Peter Chazelle, S. J. President.

" Wm. Murphy, S. J. Vice President.

" Thomas Legouais, S. J. }

" Vital Giles, S. J. }

" Lewis Petit, S. J. }

CONVENTS AND ACADEMIES FOR YOUNG LADIES,

Conducted by the Sisters of Loretto.

LORETTO

LITERARY AND BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

This Institution is in Marion Co. Kentucky, on the stage-road from Bardstown to Lebanon, twelve miles from each town, ten from Springfield, six from St. Mary's College, and one mile and a half from Liver's Medical Springs. It was incorporated in the year 1827, and is consequently directed by a Board of Trustees, of which the Right Rev. Dr. Flaget, Bishop of Bardstown, is Moderator.

Loretto is founded on principles similar to those of St. Joseph's and St. Mary's Colleges. The pupils are examined and encouraged during their studies, by Professors from both Colleges, and at the end of each session, a statement of their literary advancements, moral deportment, health, &c. is transmitted to parents and guardians.

The Community being numerous, are enabled to give the fullest and most prompt attention to every department. Propriety of deportment, politeness, personal neatness and the principles of morality, are objects of unceasing assiduity. The sick are attended with tenderness and regularity. The Institution is Catholic, but while it affords every facility for those who profess that faith to reduce it to practice, it carefully abstains from any encroachments on the principles of others.

All attend morning and evening prayer together, and divine service on Sundays.

The tutoresses of the Loretto Academy, as well as those who at all times preside over the pupils, have been carefully selected from the most numerous Community in the west, with a view not only to talent and learning, but also to disposition and aptitude to fashion, and habituate the young mind to what is useful, elegant and proper.

The French language is taught by French ladies—Painting by a lady who has long taught with reputation; Music by the talented Professor, Peterson; Dancing by Madame Blaique, who also has schools in Lexington, Louisville and Cincinnati.

The situation is highly salubrious, and the pleasure grounds extensive, being about twenty acres appropriated to the use of the pupils for promenade or other healthful exercises. The buildings are handsome and commodious, but owing to the continued increase of pupils, the conductors have determined to erect another large building, which, with the improvements contemplated, will render Loretto one of the handsomest and best accommodated female schools in the western country.

The branches taught are as follows:—Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, English Grammar, Geography; with the use of maps and Globes, History, Ancient and Modern, with Chronology and Mythology, Rhetoric and Composition, Botany, Optics, and the elements of Mechanics, Hydrostatics and Astronomy, Chemistry and Natural Philosophy, the French language, Needle-work, plain and fancy Marking, Lace and Bead-work, Drawing and Painting in water colors, Crayon Drawing, Painting on Satin and Velvet, Music, Vocal and on the Piano Forte, Dancing. Lessons and exercises will be given in Polite Literature.

ST. MAGDALEN'S CONVENT.

This Institution, situated two and a half miles West of Springfield, Washington County, Ky., presents, it is believed, many facilities for the instruction of YOUNG LADIES. Its locality is such as to preserve unimpaired, the health of the Pupils, so far as local causes have a tendency to influence disease:—while it is humbly conceived, that the LADY SUPERIOR, and others, who will have the superintendence of studies, are fully qualified for the discharge of their delicate and important trust. Parents and Guardians may rest assured, that every care will be devoted to the preservation of morals—and the cultivation of an elegant and gentle taste—together with an unobtrusive modesty and ease of manner, which so much contribute to elevate the feelings of the heart, and adorn the understanding.

The religion of the Institution is Catholic—But no means of artifice—of persuasion or power, will be, directly or indirectly used to control, or affect religious preference. And patronage from all sects is sought with an assurance, that all invidious distinction will be scrupulously avoided.

The Institute is under the immediate inspection of one of the Rev'd Gentlemen of St. Rose—who occasionally examines the Pupils, to encourage their progress. To reward and excite emulation, medals are distributed monthly. On the last of July a general Examination is held—and the month of August annually observed as vacation.

The course of instruction will be—Orthography, Reading, Writing, Arithmetick, English Grammar, Geography, with Maps and Globes—Philosophy, Rhetoric and English Composition—Music, Drawing and Painting; Plain and Ornamental Needle-work—Embroidery, Bead-work, &c.

CONVENT AND FEMALE ACADEMY

Of the Sisters of our Lady of Mercy,—Charleston, S. C.

The Sisters of our Lady of Mercy are a religious congregation, which was formed in the city of Charleston for the service of that diocese, in the year 1829; but since that period, it has been modified, and is now nearly perfect in its rules and constitutions. The object of this Institute is the performance of the great works of spiritual and corporal mercy, especially for the poor and neglected; also the education of female children for the laborious and industrious walks of life, by giving them a good English education, a knowledge of plain and useful work, befitting their sex and condition; solid principles of virtue and deep lessons of religion, habits of industry; economy and exertion, a love for cleanliness and order, and a spirit of cheerful content. Another object to which they are devoted, is the care of such orphans as may be committed to their affectionate attention; next to that the attendance upon the sick, the afflicted and the destitute, to whose service they may be sent in conformity with their rule, by their Superior. Their rule specifies other duties of mercy, which they may also under the direction of their Superior undertake.

The number of sisters at present is fifteen: their Superioress is Sister MAGDALEN BARCLAY. They make annual simple vows, but after five years probation, they are allowed to extend the period for which they bind themselves. It is to be hoped that in a short time they will be able to be placed in a more convenient situation, their present dwelling, though good and well placed, being far too small for their purposes. They can accommodate only a limited number of boarders, from five to fourteen years of age. The boarders are divided into two classes. Those under eight years pay for board and tuition $125 per annum, quarterly in advance. Those over the age of eight years, $150 per annum, quarterly in advance.

They have a day school in which their pupils are taught at the usual rates charged in this city.

The present number of boarders is fifteen—of day scholars, 50.

CONVENT AND FEMALE ACADEMY OF THE URSULINES,—Charleston, S. C.

Rev. Mother MARY CHARLES MCLONEY, Superior.

“ MARY BORGIA MCCARTHY, Assistant.

This Community consists at present, of five professed Nuns and a Novice, and has been incorporated by the Legislature of South Carolina. The ladies are of the congregation of Paris, and a filiation from the Monastery near Cork, in Ireland, long known as one of the best houses of education in Europe.

The Monastery consists of an extensive range of very fine buildings, on one of the best lots in the city of Charleston. Its site is most airy and salubrious, and in the most respectable neighborhood, adjoining the Cathedral, and bounded on the other side by the spacious grounds of the elegant public building, St. Andrew's Hall. It has a handsome garden attached to it, and a private chapel, besides having the Cathedral within its limits.

The accommodations for boarders, at present, will not allow the admission of more than twenty, between the ages of six and thirteen. The course of instruction pursued by the Sisters, comprehends all the branches of science and accomplishments necessary for young ladies of the highest prospects in life. The principal object they have in view, is to inculcate the most solid lessons of virtue and knowledge, in such a manner as to render the young ladies committed to their charge, useful and ornamental to society, and likely by their example to lead others in the way to lasting happiness. The terms are, for board $200 per annum, payable quarterly in advance. Tuition at the usual rates in the city of Charleston, for the several branches. Day-Scholars are received on the usual terms for tuition; but they receive no religious instruction, if it be so desired by their parents or guardians.

The number of boarders at present is five—that of day-scholars—22.

The clergy of the diocess have by their own voluntary contribution, created a small fund, for the basis, it is to be hoped, of a larger one, and which it is to be expected will be increased by the contributions of the laity, for supporting aged, infirm or destitute clergymen. This fund is at present, vested in the Bishop and two priests, as trustees, and by a statute of the diocese, each priest is bound, henceforth, to contribute thereto, in proportion to his means.

CLASSICAL AND RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS.

COLLEGE OF SPRING HILL,

ALABAMA.

Rev. JOHN BAZIN, President.

The College of Spring Hill is designed to be essentially classic. All the students, without exception, will pursue according to their age, progress, and the direction of the Council of professors, in connection with other branches; the Study of the Ancient and Modern Languages. The English, however, will be exclusively the language of communication.

Though the Regency of the College is Catholic, yet no influence will be exercised upon the pupils bred in the principles of other Christian denominations. Good order however, will require them to attend the public exercises of morning and evening prayers, and Divine service of the Sabbath. A rigid moral police will be exercised over all.

CONDITIONS.

1st. The price for the Scholastic year is fixed at Two Hundred and Sixty Dollars; one half payable semi-annually in advance.

2. The equivalent for this sum includes the board of the pupils, their washing, mending, lodging, (with some few exceptions) tuition, books, stationary and whatever else appertains to their studies.

CATHOLIC PERIODICALS PUBLISHED IN THE UNITED STATES.

The United States Catholic Miscellany, published every Saturday in Charleston, S. Carolina.—$4 per annum.

This is the oldest Catholic publication in this country. The first number was published in the city of Charleston, on the 2d of June, 1822, and has been continued, with very little intermission, to the present day, at a pecuniary loss to the diocese of Charleston, (which is the most limited in its means of all in the United States,) of at least $2,500. This paper has, within the last year, nearly defrayed its actual expenses; but the entire of the literary and publishing labor (out of the printing office) has been gratuitously performed during a period of fifteen years. This statement is given for the purpose of making known to the Catholics of the United States, how little exertion is made by them to uphold those who are placed in a forward position, to sustain the conflict which is carried on against them; and to induce them to make some exertions to defend themselves and their religion from obloquy, misrepresentation, and the persecution, by civil and political disabilities and proscription, to which it is sought to subject them.

The Truth Teller, published every Saturday, in New York—$4 per annum.

The Catholic Telegraph, published every Thursday, in Cincinnati, Ohio—$2 50 per annum.

The Catholic Herald, published every Thursday, in Philadelphia—$3 per annum. Agents for Baltimore, Murphy and Spalding, No. 1 Light street.

The Catholic Advocate, published in Bardstown, Ky., a weekly paper—$2 50 per annum, in advance or otherwise, $3.

Der Wahreits Freund, (German paper,) published weekly in Cincinnati, Ohio, at $2 50 per annum.

CHURCH VESTMENTS.

The Sisters of Providence in Baltimore, Md., take the liberty to inform the public that at the suggestion of several of the Right Reverend Bishops and Reverend Clergymen of the United States, they have made arrangements to keep constantly for sale an extensive assortment of clerical vestments. The materials for these vestments have been procured from France, at a very considerable expense, and were most of them subject to heavy duties. The Sisters of Providence humbly hope, that the effort which they have thus made to render themselves useful, will meet with the approbation and patronage of the Reverend Clergy.

The following is a list of the vestments which they have on hand, or may procure. Should orders be received for any of them, after they have been disposed of, others exactly similar can be procured in a short time, as a permanent arrangement to that effect has been made with the manufacturer in Lyons.

A complete set of vestments of red damask silk, embroidered with fine gold, consisting of a chasuble, two dalmatics and three copes, the cross, the borders, and the capes of red damask, richly embroidered with gold; lace and fringe of fine gold—the whole lined with silk, - - - - -	$750

The See of New Orleans was erected in 1793, under the Spanish government, and under the title of Bishopric of Louisiana and the Floridas. Its first Bishop was El Ilmo y Revmo Senor Don Luis Penalver y Cardenas, transferred in 1802 to the arch-bishopric of Guatemala in central America. The second was the Right Rev. L. Wm. V. Du Bourg, appointed in 1815; the third the Right Rev. Leo de Neckere, who was succeeded by the present bishop of the Diocese, the Right Rev. Anthony Blanc. He was consecrated on the 22d of November, 1835. The Very Rev. Augustus Jeanjean, is Vicar General, and the Rev. E. D'Hauw, Secretary of the Diocese.

COLLEGE FOR YOUNG MEN. ST. CHARLES' COLLEGE,

AT GRAND COTEAU, COUNTY OF OPELOUSAS.

The buildings of this Institution are now ready for the admission of pupils. It is situated at Grand Coteau, 14 miles from the town of Opelousas, one of the most healthy places in Louisiana.

The following are the gentlemen attached to the Institution:—

Rev. Nicholas Point, S. J., President.

Rev. A. P. Ladaviere, Rev. P. De Vos, Rev. J. Soller, Rev. F. Abbadie, Rev. P. Mignard, Mr. H. Duranquet, Professors.

Charles Alsberg and Joseph Chauvet, coadjutors.

CONVENTS AND ACADEMIES FOR YOUNG LADIES.

The number of religious at St. Michael's, Acadia County, is 31. Number of Young Ladies boarding in the Academy, 175. See prospectus, page 135.

The course of instruction and the terms for board and tuition are the same in the Academy at Grand Coteau, as at St. Michael's. There are, at present, 20 religious and 90 pupils in the Institution.

In the Ursuline Convent, there are 26 religious, and 100 boarders in the Academy. See prospectus, page 135.

The Ursuline Nuns have a branch of their order in the city of New Orleans, for the education of coloured females, in which the average number of boarders, is 25, of day scholars, 60. One of the main objects of this establishment is the religious instruction of old coloured people, whether free or slaves.

Congregation of our Lady of Mount Carmel.

This congregation, the mother house of which is at Avranches in Normandy, has founded an establishment in the parish of Assumption, on the Bayou Lafourche, which has flourished for the last four years. Average number of boarders, 25. It contains a few orphans and day scholars. Madame Therese, Superior.

CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS.

On the 12th of March, 1836, the Legislature of Louisiana incorporated a society, under the name and style of the "New Orleans Catholic Association, for the relief of Male Orphans," and presented one thousand dollars to the Institution, as a donation on the part of the State. The Rt. Rev. Bishop Blanc is President of the Board of Directors, who are chosen among the members of the Association. Every one who pays $5 entrance, and a monthly contribution of 50 cents, is a member of the Society. If, on entering, he pay one hundred dollars, he becomes a member for life, and is dispensed from the monthly contribution. The present number of orphans in this establishment, is 100.

St. Patrick's Female Orphan Asylum, at New Orleans, under the care of five Sisters of Charity. It contains 43 orphans.

Orphan Asylum at St. Michael's in which there are 25 orphans.

Charity Hospital at New Orleans, under the care of thirteen Sisters of Charity. The number of patients varies according to the season. It is never below 160, and seldom exceeds 360. During the time of the yellow fever, in September last, it amounted to 434.

TO THE CATHOLIC PUBLIC.

It must be a source of unmingled satisfaction for every professor of the true faith, to witness the steady march of religion over the vast territory which we inhabit. The collation of its present state with that in which we beheld it a few years since, when the first number of the Catholic Almanac was published, proves it to have advanced with a rapidity which could scarcely have been anticipated, and calls for the expression of our fervent gratitude to the Father of mercies, who has so bountifully scattered its inestimable blessings over our happy land, and so liberally encouraged the efforts of those whom he has called to labour in his vineyard. It is not our intention at this moment, to enter into the details of this flattering comparison; we reserve them for another occasion: but our object at present, is to awaken the attention of all who are zealous for the propagation of religious truth and the salvation of souls, to one of the principal advantages to be derived from the use of our humble periodical. It is intended not merely to furnish that statistical information, which will add to their general stock of knowledge and direct them in various practical purposes of life; but also, to afford them a source of real and laudable gratification, in contemplating the prosperity of our holy faith, as well as to animate them with corresponding sentiments of gratitude for these favours of the Almighty, and with a desire to co-operate, in their proper sphere, in the furtherance of so noble a cause. If we are allowed to rejoice on any occasion, it is particularly in reference to the interests of eternal life; and if there is any object we should cheerfully come forth to promote, it is that which consists in spreading among our fellow-creatures the true doctrines of Christianity, in multiplying the facilities of religious instruction for the Catholic, and removing the mists of prejudice and ignorance from the minds of our dissenting brethren. Now, by what means are the laity instrumental in the performance of this great and good work? Have they been commissioned, like the Apostles, to preach the gospel of peace? Have they received that exalted character, by which they are to be recognized as "the ministers of Christ and the dispensers of the mysteries of God?"* No; their station is of a subordinate kind; but, however inferior in point of dignity to the rank of the Apostles, it imposes duties which, if uniformly practised, must exert a most happy influence upon society at large, and vastly contribute to the dissemination of the true faith. How rich the harvest to be gathered throughout this cherished land! But how few the labourers! "Pray,† therefore, to the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth labourers into his harvest." Pray to him who alone "giveth the increase," that they who are already engaged in this sacred ministry, may prove themselves worthy of their elevated calling, and may find in the people committed to their charge, a willing disposition to comply with their salutary instructions. But that your supplications may be accepted at the throne of grace, "let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father who is in heaven."* Good example is one of the main props of religion. Where true virtue prevails, infusing itself into the words and actions of a man, ennobling his character and placing him in contrast with so many others around him, it has an irresistible charm and cannot but lead to the most beneficial results. In addition to these primary obligations of a Christian, "there are others," observe the Fathers of the late Provincial Council,† "which regard your exertions to provide for the external wants of religion, and to establish those means by which instruction will be more generally diffused, the ministry more widely extended, the spiritual wants of great numbers better attended to, and even the temporal consolations of our afflicted fellow-creatures, whether members of our church, or estranged therefrom, better secured." The erection and decoration of churches; the encouragement of Catholic periodicals and other publications which aim at the diffusion and vindication of correct principles; the relief and education of the orphan and the poor in general; the support of institutions intended to secure amongst us a succession of pious and learned clergymen, as well as to communicate science and cultivate amongst youth a pure, solid and enlightened piety, are all objects of the highest importance, and appeal loudly to the zeal and liberality of the Catholic community. As Christians, we are forced to acknowledge, that the honour and prosperity of religion are, in some measure, identified with these benevolent undertakings, and that without them, as is the case in many parts of the country, it has to struggle with difficulties of the most serious nature. It behooves us therefore, in the first place for our own peace of mind, then for the welfare of others, to "think on these things," and to contribute, as far as we can, to the extension of the true faith, by fervently invoking the blessing of the Almighty upon the work he has commenced; by exhibiting, in our lives and actions, an illustration of the principles we profess; and by a wise, liberal, and charitable administration of the temporal goods which Divine Providence has committed to our care. We shall view with tenfold pleasure the triumph of our holy religion, when associated with the consciousness that we have done our part in achieving the victory over error and immorality.

ECLIPSES FOR THE YEAR 1839.

There will be only two eclipses this year on the earth; both of the sun. The shade of the moon will go, in both, nearly over the middle of the globe.

The first is total, on the 15th day of March, at 9 o'clock 8 min. in the morning, invisible here. The sun will be totally eclipsed in Brazil, South America, and the adjoining continent and oceans.

The second is an annular eclipse, the 7th day of September, at 5 o'clock 16 min. in the forenoon, invisible here.—

This eclipse will be visible in the East Indies, and on the Indian and Pacific oceans.

EXPLANATION.

Ap signifies Apostle—App Apostles—M Martyr—MM Martyrs—P Pope—B Bishop—C Confessor—D Doctor—Pr Priest—Ab Abbot—V Virgin—Wid Widow—SS Saints—D M Days of the Month—A C before Christ—A D in the year of our Lord—D W Days of the Week.

Doub. signifies double—semid. semidouble—simp. simple. White—Red—Purple—Green—Black—denote the color of the ornaments of the day. Feria is a day for which no Saint's office is appointed. Festivals of obligation are in capitals. FD. signifies Festivals of Devotion. † marks the days of indulgence.

As to the colour of the Sacerdotal Vestments in the Church Service, the white is used on the Feasts of our Lord, of the B. Virgin, and of all the Saints who are not Martyrs. The red is used at Whitsuntide, on the Finding and Exaltation of the Cross, and on the Feasts of the Apostles and Martyrs. The purple or violet, which is the penitential color, is used on all the Sundays and Ferias of Advent, and of the penitential time from Septuagesima till Easter; as also on Vigils, Ember-days, and Rogation-days, when the Office is of them. Green is used on all Sundays and Ferias, from Trinity Sunday to Advent, exclusively, and from the octave of the Epiphany to Septuagesima, exclusively, whenever the office is of the Sunday; but in the Paschal time the white is used. The black is used on Good Friday, and in Masses of Requiem for the dead, which may be said on any day, that is not a Sunday or a double, except the days from Palm Sunday to Low Sunday; and during the Octaves of the Epiphany, of Pentecost and of Corpus Christi.

COMMANDMENTS OF THE CHURCH.

1. The Catholic Church commands her children, on Sundays and Holy-days of obligation, to be present at the holy Sacrifice of Mass, to rest from servile work on those days, and to keep them holy.

2. She commands them to abstain from flesh on all days of fasting and abstinence; and on fast days to eat but one meal.

3. She commands them to confess their sins to their Pastor at least once a year.

4. She commands them to receive the Blessed Sacrament at least once a year, and that at Easter, or during the Paschal time, which begins on the 1st Sunday of Lent and ends on Trinity Sunday.

HOLYDAYS OF OBLIGATION.

The Circumcision of our Lord.—The Epiphany.—The Annunciation of the B. Virgin.—The Ascension.—Corpus Christi.—The Assumption of the B. Virgin.—All Saints.—The Nativity of our Lord.

FASTING DAYS.

Every Friday in Advent; every day in Lent, Sundays excepted; the Ember-days, which occur four times in the year, viz: the Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays, 1. immediately after the first Sunday in Lent; 2. in Whitsun Week; 3. immediately after the 14th of September; 4. immediately after the third Sunday of Advent; the Vigils of Whit Sunday, of SS. Peter and Paul, of the Assumption, of All Saints and of Christmas. When a fasting-day falls on Sunday, it is observed on the Saturday preceding. To fast, consists in abstaining from meat, in eating but one full meal in the day, and that not before twelve o'clock. Besides this repast, a collation is allowed in the evening, which, however, should not exceed the one fourth of an ordinary meal. Milk, except to colour tea or coffee, eggs and warm fish, are prohibited at the collation. All those who have completed their twenty-first year, are obliged to observe the fasts commanded by the Church. The sick, women with child or who give suck, they who are under infirmities, who are advanced in years, or whom painful or laborious occupation will not permit to fast without great prejudice to their health, are dispensed from fasting. But every little head-ache, want of sleep, or other transient and inconsiderable indisposition, are not sufficient reasons to justify an exemption from the law. To act prudently, and with a safe conscience in this matter, we should always consult the clergyman who is charged with our spiritual welfare, and follow his advice. With respect to the time of Lent, it should be remembered that, if the bishop of the diocese grants a general dispensation to eat flesh-meat at our meal on certain days in the week, those days do not, on that account, cease to be fasting days; and it should be further observed, that fish and meat are not allowed to be taken at the same meal. They who, for good reasons, have been dispensed from this law of the Church, should endeavour to comply with it as far as their circumstances will permit, and supply what is wanting by other works of penance.

DAYS OF ABSTINENCE.

A day of abstinence is that on which we are not allowed to eat flesh-meat. These days are all Fridays in the year, and every day in Lent, unless a dispensation to the contrary be granted. When Christmas falls on Friday, abstinence is not of precept. The law of abstinence obliges all those who have attained the age of reason.

Practical Directions relative to the Sacraments.

BAPTISM.

"He that believeth, and is baptised, shall be saved."—
Mark, xvi. 16.

Any lay person can administer the sacrament of baptism in case of necessity, and consequently every Christian should know how to perform this ceremony.

Private baptism, which should always be given when a child is in evident danger of death, is administered in the following manner:

Take common water, and pour it three times on the forehead of the infant, in the form of a cross, saying at the same time, "I baptise thee in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." When the person conferring baptism is pronouncing the above words, he should be in the very act of pouring the water on the child.

A parent should not baptise his own child, unless no one else could be procured who knew how to do it; otherwise he would contract an impediment of spiritual affinity with his consort.

It is a dangerous and highly improper custom, carelessly to defer for several weeks the administration of baptism.

When a child has been privately baptised in case of necessity, it should, if it survive, be taken to the Church, in order that the ceremonies may be supplied; and the clergyman should be informed at the time, that the infant has already received private baptism.

The sponsors, that is, the godfather and godmother in baptism, are bound to answer for the child, to make a profession of faith in his name, and to see afterwards that he be instructed in his religion, if this duty be neglected by the parents. Hence it is plain that the sponsors should always be members of the Catholic Church; and it would be very improper in a parent to request any person not a Catholic, to act in that capacity, because it cannot be reasonably expected that he who dissents from our holy faith, should assume the responsibility of looking to the religious education of a Catholic child, or that he should be qualified to accomplish this duty.

The sponsors should also know their prayers, and be acquainted with the principal mysteries. One sponsor is sufficient in baptism, but there cannot be more than two.

The name given to a child at its spiritual regeneration should be that of a saint of the New Testament, whom it should be taught from its early years to consider as a special patron and intercessor at the throne of grace.

The priest or person who baptises and the sponsors contract a spiritual affinity with the person baptised and with the parents of that person; which affinity is an impediment to marriage. But the godfather and godmother do not contract this alliance with each other. When a person has been privately baptised, and is afterwards presented by the sponsors to receive the solemn blessing and unction, no spiritual affinity is contracted.

CONFIRMATION.

"They laid their hands upon them and they received the Holy Ghost."—Acts, viii. 17.

They who approach this sacrament should be in a state of grace. Hence confession and absolution are necessary if the person to be confirmed is in a state of mortal sin.

It is more suitable that persons to be confirmed should be fasting at the time they receive this sacrament.

If they take an additional name, as is customary on that occasion, it should be that of some saint, whose protection they should frequently invoke, and whose example they should strive to copy in their life and actions.

No person confirmed should, upon any account, leave the Church, until he receives the solemn benediction which is pronounced by the bishop, after the sacrament has been administered.

As Confirmation imprints a spiritual character on the soul, it cannot be received more than once.

HOLY EUCHARIST.

"Unless you eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, you shall not have life in you."—John, vi. 54.

Every one of the faithful of both sexes, who has attained the years of discretion, is bound, under pain of mortal sin, to receive the holy communion worthily at Easter, or during the paschal time, that is, between the first Sunday of Lent and Trinity Sunday.

He who neglects this duty, not only commits a grievous sin, but subjects himself to excommunication and exclusion from christian burial, which dreadful punishment the bishop has power to carry into effect, if he shall deem it expedient.

We do not satisfy the precept of the Church on this point by an unworthy communion.

The following are the requisite dispositions for receiving the Holy Eucharist in a proper manner: 1. We should be in a state of grace, that is, free from mortal sin. 2. We should be free, as much as possible, from venial sin, at least from affection to it, or from a willingness to commit it. 3. We should have actual devotion, being penetrated with sentiments of a lively faith, a profound humility, a sincere sorrow for sin, a firm confidence in God, an ardent charity, and an earnest desire of being united to Jesus Christ.

Persons who are to communicate should be fasting from midnight, and those who are in doubt as to having broken their fast should consult a clergyman.

Communicants should be decently and modestly dressed, and should approach the holy table with that exterior reverence which indicates interior piety of the heart.

The use of the communion cloth is not to wipe the mouth, either before or after communion. It is to prevent the sacred Host, or any particle of it, from falling to the ground, if it should accidentally drop from the priest's hand or the mouth of the communicant. Hence the cloth should be held as high as the breast, in such a manner as to form a kind of plate or receiver. The head and body should be kept upright and steady, the eyes cast down, the mouth moderately open, and the tip of the tongue resting on the under lip, but not protruded.

When the priest lays the sacred Host on the tongue, the communicant should not catch at it, nor hastily bow down his head, nor press the sacrament with his lips or teeth, but draw in the tongue gently, and closing his mouth, allow the host to moisten a little and then swallow it. If it cleave to the roof of the mouth, it should be gently removed with the tongue.

After communion he should retire leisurely to his place, having all the appearance of one who has found a treasure, and feels that he is the living tabernacle of God. He should refrain for some time from spitting and coughing, and employ about ten or fifteen minutes in returning thanks for the favour he has received and imploring the necessary graces.

PENANCE.

"Whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them; and whose sins you shall retain, they are retained."—John, xx. 23.

All the faithful of both sexes who have reached the age of discretion, are obliged to confess their sins at least once a year. The violation of this precept is a mortal sin.

To perform this duty with the requisite dispositions, the penitent should, after having implored the light of the Holy Ghost, endeavor to call to mind the sins he has committed in thought, word, action and omission. The time employed for this examination of conscience should be proportionate to that which has elapsed since his last confession. Then, by suitable reflections on the malice of sin, and by fervent prayer, he should excite in his heart a sincere sorrow for having offended God, and a firm determination to avoid sin and the occasions of it.

After this preparation, the penitent should present himself before the minister of Christ, and, having made the sign of the cross, asked the priest's blessing, and recited the Confiteor down to through my most grievous fault, he should commence his confession by declaring when he was last at the holy tribunal, whether he was then absolved, whether he approached the holy communion, and whether he has fulfilled the sacramental penance. He should then proceed to accuse himself with candour, humility and precision, of all the sins he has committed since his last confession, after which he concludes the Confiteor, saying, therefore, I beseech the blessed Virgin Mary, &c.

He should listen with respect and attention to the instructions of the confessor, and endeavor carefully to comply with them. The penance enjoined should be performed at the appointed time, or if no particular time be designated, as soon as our convenience will permit.

EXTREME UNCTION.

"Is any man sick among you? Let him bring in the priests of the Church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil, in the name of the Lord: and the prayer of faith shall save the sick man, and if he be in sin, they shall be forgiven him."—James, v. 14, 15.

It is a most mistaken notion to defer the reception of this sacrament until a sick person is in imminent danger of death, or in such a state that there can be but little hope of his recovery.

On the contrary, a Christian should be anxious to receive it in any illness that will probably terminate fatally, because one of the effects of this sacrament is to restore the sick person to health, if it be conducive to his spiritual welfare or conformable to God's will.

As this sacrament is, as it were, a supplement of the sacrament of penance, the Christian, when he receives it, should excite himself to sincere sorrow for all the sins of his life, mortal and venial, and make an offering of his life into the hands of God, as an atonement for his sins, and in union with the intention which Jesus Christ had in offering his life to his Father on the cross for our sins.

When the priest anoints the eyes, ears, nostrils, mouth, &c., the Christian should, at each unction, ask pardon of God for all the sins he may have committed by that particular sense, viz. by his sight, hearing, smell, taste, speech, touch, &c.

HOLY ORDERS.

"Neither doth any man take the honor to himself, but he that is called by God, as Aaron was."—Hebrews, v. 4.

As God could not more grievously punish the faithful than by sending them ignorant or wicked priests, so it is the duty of every Christian to pray most earnestly to God that he would vouchsafe to send none but ministers after his own heart into the vineyard. These prayers should be specially joined with our fasting during the Ember-days, when the sacrament of Holy Orders is usually conferred.

MATRIMONY.

"This is a great sacrament; but I speak in Christ and in the church."—Ephes. v. 32.

There being no circumstance in life that bears a more important relation to the spiritual welfare and eternal salvation of a Christian, than his entrance into the marriage state, it is a duty which he owes to God and to himself to proceed in this matter with great prudence and serious reflection.

In the choice of a partner, he should be governed, not by worldly or ambitious views, but by those considerations only which are conducive to his happiness in this life and in eternity. "Marry thy daughter well," says an inspired author, "and thou shalt do a great work, and give her to a wise man." Were this holy admonition more strictly observed, were we to follow the advice of St. Austin, who exhorted the young women of his time to look more to the virtues of a man than to any temporal or personal advantages he possessed, we should not witness so frequently the unhappy consequences of marriage-life; nor would our age be so fruitful in those vices and disorders which arise chiefly from injudicious and precipitate unions, or from an improper mode of domestic government and of youthful education.

The parties to be united should, if possible, obtain the consent of their parents, should be free from all impediments to marriage, should draw down upon themselves, by a pure and holy intention, by fervent prayer, and the practice of good works, the favour and blessing of the Almighty; they should be, moreover, instructed in the obligations of the matrimonial state, and in the principal mysteries of religion, and approach the sacraments of penance and the eucharist, in order that, being free from sin, they may receive the special graces attached to the sacrament of marriage. The confession of their sins should be made in due time to prepare themselves for the reception of absolution, before the nuptial ceremony is performed.

Marriage cannot be contracted by persons within the fourth degree of kindred without a dispensation; and, if attempted, it is invalid. Spiritual kindred contracted by baptism or confirmation, is an impediment to marriage. A dispensation is also requisite for the marriage of persons, one of whom is baptised and the other not baptised.

It is forbidden to solemnize marriage from Ash Wednesday to Easter Sunday, and from the first Sunday of Advent till after the 6th of January.

SICK CALLS.

All sick calls in a parish should be made at the clergyman's house, at a timely hour in the day. He should be called during the night only in cases of necessity. If this reasonable rule were adhered to, it would save the clergy from much unnecessary labor, and the people from many disappointments, which they should justly ascribe to their own want of system.

On Saturdays, the eves of holy-days, and other days which are generally devoted to the confessional in the parish churches, clergymen should not, if possible, be called away from this very important duty. Unless in case of absolute necessity, sick calls should not be made on Saturdays or Sundays, when the clergy have so many other duties to attend to.

It is the duty of the people to conform to whatever regulations may be made by the clergy, on these and other matters connected with religion, in their respective parishes. All things should be done in order, according to the advice of St. Paul.

When the clergyman is called to attend a sick person, every thing that he requires for the administration of the sacraments should be furnished, as decently as possible, in the room or place where the sick person lies, viz. a small table covered with a towel, or a clean linen cloth, on which should be laid a candle, a vessel of holy water, with an asperges, a small vessel of common water for the purification of the priest's fingers after the administration of the Holy Viaticum, and a napkin for the sick person at the time of communion. As the priest generally brings the blessed sacrament on those occasions, every thing should be so becomingly prepared according to their means, as to show the great respect of the inmates for Jesus Christ, and the high value they set upon the honor thus rendered to their house in the visit of their Lord and Redeemer.

Whilst the priest is administering the Viaticum and Extreme Unction, the assistants should devoutly offer up their prayers to God on behalf of the sick person, to implore that he may receive those sacraments with the necessary dispositions.

CONDUCT IN THE HOUSE OF GOD.

"Reverence my Sanctuary." Lev. xxvi. 2.

"Lord! I have loved the beauty of thy house, and the place where thy glory dwelleth." Psalms, xxv. 8.

CATHOLICS, who believe the real presence of Jesus Christ in the holy Eucharist, cannot show too much respect for the temple of God. A few practical hints on this subject, may be better than a labored dissertation.

1st. Persons, whilst in the church, should, as much as possible, avoid coughing, spitting, and all manner of noise, as nothing unclean or offensive, should be seen or heard in the temple of God.

2d. They should be remarkably clean in their dress and person, and avoid the slightest appearance of foppery or indiscretion.

3d. Whilst they appear in a respectful posture, they should avoid all ridiculous gestures, forms or attitudes.

4th. All who can read, should use their prayer book, unless when meditation may be preferable.

5th. Mothers should take care not to disturb the congregation by bringing children under the age required.

6th. On Ash-Wednesday, every Catholic should approach the priest in a respectful manner, to receive the ashes, and on Palm Sunday, act in a similar manner to receive the palm.

7th. Catholics should take care never to turn their backs to the altar when the Blessed Sacrament is exposed: but kneel in a respectful posture.

8th. Children serving at Mass, should not be allowed to answer the priest in a hurried manner, but in an edifying way.

9th. Communicants should approach to, and proceed from the altar, in the most recollected manner, and also to and from the confessional in a similar way.

10th. Communicants should take care to hold the communion cloth in a proper manner, and on no account run out of the church in haste, after approaching the holy altar.

Exercise for Sundays and Holy-days.

SUNDAY being peculiarly called the Lord's day, should be more immediately consecrated to Him.

The best means to sanctify this day, (and the same may be said of special holydays,) in addition to those of every other day, may be thus briefly mentioned.

- 1st. To abstain from all servile or unnecessary worldly work.
- 2d. To hear Mass with particular devotion.
- 3d. To hear a sermon or exhortation.
- 4th. To approach the holy sacraments with proper dispositions.
- 5th. To attend vespers or evening song.
- 6th. To give more time to prayer, meditation, and spiritual reading.
- 7th. To perform some of the spiritual or corporal works of mercy.
- 8th. To be more than ordinarily cautious to avoid sin and its occasions, and to increase in virtue.

Short Daily Exercise for all Catholics.

Let a love of God, a desire of serving Him, and of devoting every hour and every work to his glory, induce you to adopt the following regulations.

- 1st. Rise early, not only to avoid sloth, but to discharge well, and in proper time, every duty.
- 2d. Faithfully discharge the duty of morning prayer, and devote some time to meditation.
- 3d. If possible, assist at Mass, and offer it to God for a particular intention.
- 4th. Have fixed hours for business, meals, &c. and usefully fill up your time.
- 5th. Give, every day, some time to spiritual reading, or, if not able, supply it by some devout aspiration, or the remembrance of some pious lecture.
- 6th. Avoid not only sin, but its occasion, and endeavor more and more to conquer your predominant passion.
- 7th. Be exact at evening prayer, and examine your conscience on what evil you have done, what good you have omitted or done negligently.
- 8th. "In all your works, remember your last end, and you shall never sin."

A RELIGIOUS LIBRARY.

"Attend unto reading, to exhortation, and to doctrine."
Tim. iv. 13.

"Let not the authority of the writer offend thee, whether he was of little or great learning; but let the love of pure truth lead thee to read. Inquire not who said this, but attend to what is said."—A. Kempis, I, 5.

1. Youths or others not well instructed in religion, may use the following books: Christian's Guide, the Catechism of the diocess, Fleury's Historical Catechism, Hay's Catechism, Grounds of Catholic Doctrine, Catholic Christian Instructed, Poor Man's Catechism, Glover on the Sacraments, Virtuous Scholars, Challoner's History of the Old and New Testament, Instructions for first Communion.

2. Young persons more advanced in their education, may read Gobinet's Instruction of Youth, Youth's Directory, Following of Christ, Christian Perfection, Practical Reflections, Sinner's Guide, Models for Young Men, Young Ladies' Mirror, Alton Park, Prize Book, Piety exemplified, the Testament, Reeve's History of the Bible, Gahan's History of the Church, Father Rowland, Mrs. Herbert, Butler's Lives of the Saints.

3. Adults and those who devote themselves particularly to works of piety and religion, (in addition to the Bible, the Following of Christ and Butler's Lives,) may consult the Spiritual Combat, Pious and Devout Christian, Bourdalou's Retreat, Elevation of the Soul, St. Francis' Devout Life, Memorial of a Christian Life, Challoner's Meditations, Hornihold on the Sacraments and Commandments, Butler's Feasts and Fasts, Layman's Ritual, Cochin on the Mass, Dr. England's Ceremonies, Reeve's History of the Church, &c. Among the more useful prayer books, may be mentioned the following: Catholic Manual, Pious Guide, Garden of the Soul, Rivers' Manual, Christians' Guide, Children's Companion, Pocket Missal, Key of Paradise, Visits to the Blessed Sacrament, Devout Communicant, Month of Mary, Stations of the Cross, &c.

4. Those who wish to acquire a knowledge of controversy, may read, Fletcher's Spirit of Controversy, Bossuet's Exposition, Hornihold's Real Principles, Catechism of the Council of Trent, Sincere Christian, Gallitzen's Defence and Letters, Papist Represented and Misrepresented, Amicable Discussion, Answer to Faber's Difficulties, Fletcher's View, Difficulties of Protestantism, Milner's End of Controversy, Vindication, and Letters to a Prebendary, Manning's Shortest Way, England's Conversion, Moore's Travels of an Irish Gentleman, Lingard's Tracts, Controversy between Pope and Maguire, do. between Hughes and Breckenridge, do. between Purell and Campbell, Sincere Christian's Guide, Poor Man's Controversy, Faith of Catholics, Bossuet's Variations, Review of Fox's Book of Martyrs, Ward's Errata, Dictionary of All Religions.

OF PIOUS READING.

"We should always remember that the profane sciences claim only a particular portion of our time and that the study of them may be abandoned as soon as we have acquired the necessary knowledge which is required by our condition or profession in life. But the study of Christian morality which is learned in the holy scriptures and in the writings of the saints, should never be laid aside, because we can never be too well instructed on this important subject, and consequently it should occupy us during the whole period of our life. It does not suffice to know the truths of religion speculatively; they should be vividly impressed upon the mind, and be present to our thoughts, whenever the occasion presents itself of reducing them to practice. This, however, cannot be the case, if we do not frequently refresh our memory by attentive reading and devout meditation."—Essais de Nicole, tom. 2, page 263.

Joue, and the whole of the forest of Vioreau, and arrived, at six in the evening, at the town of Melleray, where we learned the way to the abbey.

At first, we followed narrow paths concealed and bordered by meadows. Further on, we entered a large wood of oaks. These were as straight as fir trees, and of a remarkable height, set thickly together, and deprived of their lateral branches. The last rays of the sun were lost among their foliage; the wind had fallen, and the silence of the place was in harmony with its sacred obscurity. A peculiar feeling of tranquillity seemed to prepare the soul to separate from the restless agitations of life, before it entered the asylum, from which they are banished forever. As we came out of the wood, we perceived a large sheet of water, and beyond it the walls of the abbey.—Never was a solitude better chosen for a cloister, and never did any scenery appear to me more romantic. The whole extent of the horizon was covered with woods; the middle space was filled by the moving mirror of waters, which "Wisdom shall praise her own self, and shall be honored in God; and she shall be blessed, saying: as the vine, I have brought forth a pleasant odour, and my flowers are the fruit of honour and riches. I am the mother of fair love, and of fear, and of knowledge, and of holy hope.—In me is all grace of the way and of the truth; in me is all hope of life and of virtue." Eccl. xxiv.

a recess at the top of the nave; the lay brothers, habited in brown, remained at the entrance. I could not help examining every thing around me; the cross, candlesticks, and even the ornaments of the altar, were all of wood. All metals are excluded from the temple of that God, who was born in a stable, and cradled in a manger, to trample upon earthly grandeur, and teach us to take off our affections from it.* The simplicity which reigns in this retreat, extends also to the costume. All ranks are confounded beneath one common habit. The reverend father abbot has nothing more than the rest, except a pectoral cross of

*Among the secluded Trappists, whose characteristic spirit is that of the most perfect renunciation of the world, and whose ceremonial is not intended for the public eye, ritual display may be very properly dispensed with in the church service. But the remark of our author would not, in a general sense, be correct, as it is certain that external pomp in the rites of religion, is productive of the happiest impressions upon the mind. For this reason, we frequently witness in the Catholic Church, a splendor and magnificence which are eminently calculated to remind us of the grandeur and perfection of Him whom we are come to adore, and whose supreme excellence we acknowledge by the sacrifice of all that is esteemed most precious and valuable on earth.

and prostrated in a line down the middle of the church, and remained a long time in that posture. At first there was a profound silence, during which nothing was heard but the pendulum of the clock beating seconds. It was as the voice of time associated with the thought of eternity. Afterwards they intoned the Salve Regina; this chant has a very grand effect. A single religious, from the bottom of the nave, begins the prayer in a very majestic tone; all the others, bowed down to the ground, answer him in a low and lengthened voice, like the accents of grief succeeding those of triumph. This latter ceremony is truly sublime. Prayer is a communication between man and God, and nothing causes greater emotion than this appeal from earth to heaven, from weakness to Omnipotence. "Why do you prostrate?" said a modern philosopher to a priest, "you will be at all times near enough to the earth." True; "but man," says a Trappist, whose letter is now lying before me, "never seems to be more in his place, than when he humbles himself before the Author of his being."

After the Salve Regina, the religious went for a moment to the

"The disciples came to Jesus, saying: who, thinkest thou, is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven? And Jesus calling unto him a little child, set him in the midst of them, and said: amen I say to you, unless you be converted and become as little children, you shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven. Whosoever, therefore, shall humble himself as this little child, he is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven." Matth. xviii. 1.

6	6 56	5 4	sets	16	I reflected on the sincerity of that faith which seeks no earthly remuneration, and looks with disdain upon riches and pleasures. Religious philosophy, like the stoicism of the ancients, despises pain; but unlike the latter, it does not indemnify itself with the homage of men; nor does it need such homage, for hope is with it. What further enables the Trappists to support every kind of austerity, is a Christian virtue, the sweetest feeling of the heart, charity . This virtue, which places the versatility of our human affections under the safeguard of divine veneration; this virtue, which makes us love God in our neighbour, unites them in holy benevolence. Equality in the relations of life, the same interest, the same hopes, the happiness of each other's company, all contribute to make them a society of brethren. In the world, we are disunited by opposite interests, but here they are attached to each other by rival virtues.

29	7 25	4 35	1 39	2	2	woollen chasuble, with woollen
30	7 24	4 36	2 40	3	3	trimming of a different color. Du-
31	7 24	4 36	3 43	3	3	ring the office, I saw some of the religious leave their places, and kneel at the foot of the sanctuary; this was a public penance which they imposed upon themselves for faults, which they thought they had committed. So many practices may seem to be minutiæ; but, it is something which brings to perfection in man the power of loving, to make his whole existence a succession of acts of divine worship.

From the church we went to the breakfast-room, where we received a visit from the F. Prior, who represented the Rev. Father Abbot, then absent from the convent. I have since had an opportunity of seeing the Rev. Abbot himself, and I cannot describe to you the charm of his conversation. Formerly he cultivated the study of the mathematics, for we are at present in France, in some degree like the people of China, where religion was introduced by the sciences. The father hotelier came to conduct us after breakfast, and took us to see the interior of the monastery, which we inspected minutely.

We went first into the dormitory, which is a long gallery, the sides of which are occupied by small separate cells without doors. Two planks, a pillow of straw and a wool-len coverlet; such is the bed of a Trappist. There he re-poses from the fatigues of the day. There is no distinction among them; the cell of the Rev. Abbot is in the middle of the dormitory, and his bed has nothing more than the others. Formerly the Abbé de Rancé allowed a straw mattress. The monks of the Convent of Laval, the only ones who are subject to that reform, make use of it at present.

They throw themselves upon this bed without undressing; for they cannot make use of linen, under any pretext whatever. They retire at eight in the evening, and rise the next morning at half past one. The Rev. F. Abbot is always up the first of the community; and it is he who rings the bell to call the religious to matins. In summer, one hour of sleep is allowed after dinner. In winter, they do not keep this hour, but go to bed at seven.

Some may say that this austere way of living is contrary to nature; but religion has other laws from society. The heart cannot be governed by the precepts of human policy. The religion of the gospel is a religion of pain and privation; Jesus Christ calls those blessed who suffer. Moreover, as a celebrated writer has said, a religious life is a combat and not a song of victory.

From the dormitory we went to the chapter-room. It is a large room where the religious assemble at fixed hours to make pious lectures, and accuse themselves in public of the faults they have committed against the rules. This they call denouncing themselves. At the farther end of the room is a figure of Christ, underneath which are written these words, at once bold and submissive: solī Deo honor et gloria; honor and glory to God alone. Around the room you read sentences from the scriptures, analogous to the sentiments with which the hearers of this Christian morality should be penetrated. They are like voices from above, to remind them of their duties. In one place you read, cultus justitiæ silentium; the practice of justice is silence; in another, sedebit solitarius et tacebit; solitary he will sit and be silent; and farther on, mens justī meditabitur obedientiam; the mind of the just man will meditate on obedience.

We visited the bake-house, the dairy, the kitchen, in short the whole establishment. In the midst of utensils of all kinds and instruments of all professions, we met with the image of Christ; it is thus that an austere recollection comes suddenly upon us in the midst of the frivolities of life. The father hotelier replied complaisantly to all our questions, and the brethren whom we met seemed anxious to show us with a smile on their lips, but by signs only, the objects most attractive to our curiosity.

There was really something mysterious in this language of signs. I could imagine that I saw those blessed spirits spoken of by Bernardin de St. Pierre, whose nature is to love one another, and who have no need of returning sentiments by thoughts, and friendship by words.

We went into the courts and into the work-shops full of lay-brothers. These brothers, who for the most part, have had no education, and almost all belong to some mechanical profession, still exercise their trades in the convent. They are masons, smiths, carpenters, &c.; and all the mechanical arts are found amongst them. Nothing that they use is made out of the house. Having made a vow to be poor and to be burthensome to no one, the Trappists earn their livelihood by the sweat of their brow.

In the garden we found the choir-monks with implements of husbandry employed in labour; for idleness is banished from this abode of piety. The fathers had put off their cowl; and only kept the under-habit confined by a leathern girdle, and over it a long narrow scapular, which was black. To see them bent down, one might have taken them for coffins covered with palls. Working in the garden, is only recreation for the choir-monks; their duty is to sing in the church and make pious lectures in the chapter-room. They are like the hermit of Parnell:

Prayer all his business, and his pleasure praise.

From time to time, we saw them interrupt their work at a signal given by one of them clapping his hands; they then raised their souls to God, and recommenced their labour. This thought sweetens their fatigues; they know that they labour for a master who will not delay their recompence.

The reproach of laziness, so often made to other monastic orders, cannot be applied to these religious.* The activity of the Trappists, their abundant alms, their vow of poverty, which they rigorously observe, will never make them burthensome to the state. Let then these pious men retire into the desert; their hearts perhaps have been wounded in the world. There are secret feelings and unknown pains, which our noisy distractions cannot soften; and what Madam de Stael says of nature, may be applied to religion, it is the only power that gives enjoyment without offending misfortune.

We remarked among these religious, some who appeared very young. They were novices. When any one applies to be received into the Convent, the Rev. F. Abbot examines his dispositions, and receives him, if he thinks proper. His noviceship lasts a year, after which, if he persists in his resolution, he pronounces his vows. The novice, as he begins here a new existence, forsakes entirely the name by which he was known in the world. That name which was the mark of civilized life, becomes lost in the name of a saint, whom he takes as his patron. On the day fixed for this ceremony, he goes to the church, and there he hears the doors shut upon him, which separates him forever from the world. His mortal life is, as it were, finished within these sacred walls; he is no longer to count time, for he begins eternity upon earth. He draws near to the altar, his head is shaved, his hair burnt, and the ashes are cast into a kind of sacrarium for this purpose. After having laid his profession upon the altar, the novice kisses the feet of all the religious, who raise him up, giving him at the same time the kiss of peace.

As soon as the novice has entered the house, he is dead to his family, as to the rest of the world. He holds no more communication with them. The F. Abbot only is informed of the deaths that occur among the relatives of any of the brethren; and he announces in the church the information he has received, to the whole community, but without naming any one; and this loss, which concerns but one, is felt by all. There is a truly solemn impression in those words, interrupting prayers in order to procure prayers, "My brethren, one of you has lost his father." Thus is the grief diminished by being divided among those men, who have all but one heart; and the holy cloister offers a new family to him who has lost his own.

* Idleness is banished from all religious orders, as the parent of every evil. No means could be more effectual in preventing it, than the regulations by which every moment of the day is filled up, being allotted to manual labor or the performance of some spiritual exercise; while, at the same time, there is the strongest inducement among religious to comply with these rules, in the conviction that their peace of mind depends on the observance of them.

The novice is placed, according to his education, among the choir-monks or the lay-brothers. If, on the other hand, this way of life appear to him too austere, and he leave the convent, every thing which he brought is returned to him; they do not even take any thing for the expense he has cost them, but they part from him as from a friend who is setting off for a distant country, and whom they shall see no more but in eternity.

If the face is the mirror of the soul, nothing can better show contentment than the countenances of the Trappists. They have all an air of serenity, and even of cheerfulness, which is quite remarkable. Like those happy shades in the Elysian fields, described by Fenelon, they desire nothing; they have every thing, while they possess nothing; their desires are filled; the world is nothing to them, because their happiness being interior, leaves no room in their heart for any thing without. Instead of taking advantage of the liberty given them in the revolution, the Trappists were so well pleased with the life they had embraced, they all emigrated. Their history is told in two words.

In 1792, the religious of the Convent of La Trappe de Montagne, who had always remained in France without molestation, from the death of the Abbé de Rancé, went to Switzerland, where they founded the Convent of Val-Sainte, near Fribourg. There, in gratitude for the divine mercy, which had enabled them to surmount all obstacles, and permitted them to persevere in their state in the midst of so many political convulsions, these Trappists who were so much pitied, and had just received the grant of civil liberty, added practices still more austere, to those which they had followed before. This produced a second reform, which dates from the year 1794.

At this period, they drew up new rules, which were printed in Switzerland, in two volumes quarto. This curious work concludes with the declaration of all the religious, from the F. Abbot to the lowest novice. They all testify that their life appears to them preferable to all the treasures of the earth, and that they would rather lose their lives than change them. The happiness of a Trappist seems extraordinary enough. The word fanaticism, is soon said; but profound philosophy knows well how much energy is given by deep feeling, to the faculties of the soul. That is truly a life of enthusiasm, which has no objects before it but death and immortality. The Trappist experiences every moment the truth of those words of Jesus Christ, "where there are two or three gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them."

The monks of the convent of Val-Sainte, disturbed by the French army in their new asylum, soon emigrated again; but their number increased, instead of diminishing; for religion always flourishes in persecution. They founded numerous colonies, all subject to the new reform. One was established at the convent of St. Susanna, in Spain, in the province of Arragon; another at Mount Brach, on the confines of Barges, in Piedmont. Peculiar circumstances prevented the success of the establishment in Russia. There were some who went into Westphalia, and others into Hungary and Canada. A second colony, intended for this latter country, was induced to remain in England, where a rich gentleman built for them a monastery, at Lulworth, near Wareham, in Dorsetshire. This place being near to Weymouth, a fashionable place of resort, was visited by the most illustrious persons in England. The Abbé Delille went to see this pious retreat, which he has celebrated in the last edition of the poem of the Gardens.

At the peace, some of the Trappist establishments, from foreign parts, returned to France. The Abbey of Melleray was purchased by the monks of Lulworth, and in 1817 they landed at Nantes to take possession of it. The epoch of their arrival will be long remembered. The captain of the frigate that brought them, was presented by the Rev. F. Abbot himself with the sword, which an officer in our army had deposited in the cloister, in exchange for the humble habit of St. Bernard.

There is something very striking in the spectacle of this faith, always persecuted, and yet always constant. The most austere orders have always been the best observed; doubtless, because the feelings of the mind receive more depth and permanency from austerity of principle and action. This was at least the opinion of the ancients; for the Egyptian priests and some sects of Greek philosophers, to arrive more securely at perfection, lived in retreat and abstemiousness. But it is in a religious life, that we must look for the cause of that attachment which it inspires. Divine love gives all our feelings one uniform direction, and it is always the inconstancy of our desires that renders us uneasy and unhappy. Moreover, this devout life fills the soul with a sublime peace, and the only peace on earth, which is at once susceptible of enthusiasm and tranquillity.

This reasoning will have no weight with a certain class of persons, who, tainted with the pride of modern philosophy, "consider as useless, whatever has a tendency to preserve or revive the faith of a people, and recall to the mind those grand and magnificent institutions, which were established for the happiness of man, and which we owe to the genius of Christianity. There are even believers in the doctrines of Christ, who understand not the things which are spiritual. But, however this may be, it is worthy of that religion, which alone knows the secret of the human heart, as well as the real wants of society, to open an asylum for those generous beings who cannot possess a divided heart; for those beings especially, who, disgusted with the world, and no longer able to endure the immense void which the love of its pleasures has produced in their souls, retire to a holy solitude, to calm their minds, and to enjoy, in the renunciation of all created things, something substantial and inaccessible to the rust of time."

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTICE

WILLIAM LOUIS VALENTINE DUBOURG,

LATE ARCHBISHOP OF BESANCON, IN FRANCE,

AND

FORMERLY BISHOP OF NEW ORLEANS.*

In looking back upon the deceased members of our hierarchy, upon those distinguished "prelates who have spoken to us the word of God," it is a source of proud satisfaction to behold them all entitled to our veneration, not only for the exalted character with which they were invested, but also for the eminent virtues which they exhibited in their life and actions. Among these successors of the Apostles, the M. Rev. William Louis Dubourg occupied a most conspicuous station. It was the will of Divine Providence, that he should move in a more extensive field of usefulness than is generally assigned to the sacerdotal or episcopal office, and for this reason, thousands have been left behind him to bear testimony to his spirit of holy enterprise in the cause of truth, and who, we flatter ourselves, will hail with joy the publication of a memoir, destined to perpetuate amongst us the memory of his ardent and disinterested zeal.

William Louis Dubourg was born on the 14th of February, 1766, at Cape Francais, in the Island of St. Domingo. Having been sent to France for his education, he there resolved to embrace the ecclesiastical state, and prosecuted his studies in the Seminary of St. Sulpitius. At this period he was under the direction of Rev. Mr. Nagot, who was afterwards sent to this country, in 1791, and was first Superior of St. Mary's Seminary, in Baltimore. In this pious and enlightened clergyman, Mr. Dubourg found a guide worthy of his promising disposition, and soon enjoyed his affection and confidence; insomuch so that he was appointed by him superintendant of an establishment which had been recently commenced at Issy, near Paris, and had for its object the preparation of youths, who aspired to the clerical state, for their entrance into a theological seminary. This excellent institution, however, had scarcely been opened, when the revolutionary storm dispersed its elements, and frustrated the views of its pious founder. The same unfortunate circumstances compelled Mr. Dubourg, who had been preparing himself for graduation at the celebrated Sorbonne, to leave Paris and retire to the bosom of his family at Bordeaux. But he had not long enjoyed the company of those who were most dear to him, when the spirit of religious persecution becoming still more violent, he left his native country and went to Spain. From Spain he sailed to America, and arrived in Baltimore in December, 1794.

Full of esteem for the Society of St. Sulpitius, and particularly attached to Rev. Mr. Nagot, superior of the seminary at Baltimore, Mr. Dubourg conceived a strong desire to be associated with that useful body, and having applied to Mr. Emery, then Superior General of the Community, he was placed on the list of its members in 1795. The Sulpitians are a congregation of clergymen, who devote themselves particularly to the education of those who are destined for the ecclesiastical profession. Their founder was the Rev. John James Olier, a man whose extraordinary sanctity and indefatigable zeal eminently qualified him for the execution of the project he had long entertained, of forming a society whose principal care would be, to instruct the aspirant to holy orders, in the science and virtue of his sacred calling. In 1641, he repaired, with a few companions, to Vaugirard, near Paris, where he laid the foundation of his infant community, and he soon had the consolation of witnessing its extension, which was already a flattering prognostic of its future usefulness. At the time of the revolution in France, the Sulpitians had established seminaries in many provinces of the kingdom; they had even traversed the Atlantic and opened an institution in Lower Canada. But, upon the creation of the See of Baltimore, Mr. Emery, desirous of contributing to the prosperity of religion in the United States, despatched Mr. Nagot to London, for the purpose of conferring upon the subject with the Right Rev. John Carroll, first bishop of Baltimore, who had been recently consecrated at Lulworth castle. Bishop Carroll was much gratified in hearing a proposal of this nature, and having cheerfully acquiesced in the wishes of the Sulpitians, Mr. Nagot with several gentlemen of the Society, embarked for America, and arrived in Baltimore on the 10th of July, 1791. Here they opened a seminary for the education of ecclesiastical pupils, who for several years were but few in number, and for this reason, when Mr. Dubourg landed on the American shore, he found many of the Sulpitians engaged in the holy ministry. He himself resided at St. Mary's, applying himself particularly to the study of the English language.

In 1796, he was sent by bishop Carroll to the college at Georgetown, in the District of Columbia, where he filled the office of President for upwards of two years. Mr. Flaget and Mr. Babade having gone to Havana in 1798, for the purpose of opening a college, Mr. Dubourg soon followed them to aid in the undertaking. But this establishment, though commenced under favourable auspices, was soon discontinued in consequence of the opposition arising from national and political prejudices; and Mr. Dubourg with Mr. Babade, returned to Baltimore in August, 1799, accompanied by a number of young men who had been placed under their charge for instruction.— Though urged by circumstances to abandon their project at Havana, these gentlemen had deservedly gained the confidence of many of the inhabitants. Having left behind them a deep impression of their virtue and learning, and the facilities offered at that epoch for the acquisition of the French and Spanish languages being duly appreciated, an academy was no sooner opened in Baltimore, than the influx of pupils from the West Indies was greater than could be conveniently accommodated, before the erection of the buildings now occupied as the college. At a later period, however, the political fears awakened by the education of these youths in the United States, induced the Spanish government to despatch a frigate to this country in 1803, ordering the return of all its subjects to the island of Cuba. Mr. Dubourg being in Havana in 1802, had been apprized of the probable execution of this measure, and he sailed from that place to N. Orleans with a view to re-establish his academy in this city; but meeting with unexpected difficulties, he came to Baltimore with scarcely a hope of continuing his institution on this side of the Atlantic. He now looked to France as the field of his future labours. Here new obstacles presented themselves; the distracted state of the government afforded but little prospect of accomplishing his design, and at length, after much deliberation upon the subject, he concluded to remain in Baltimore, as the place best suited to his collegiate occupations.

Until this period, the pupils educated at St. Mary's were exclusively foreigners, no American having yet been admitted, through regard for the rising establishment at Georgetown, which at that time was deemed sufficient for the patronage extended by our own countrymen. Towards the commencement of the year 1804, the affairs of the new institution in Baltimore, assumed a very encouraging aspect, and justified the hope of its subsequent prosperity. How could the result have been different, when we consider the tact and untiring zeal of its illustrious founder? To promote the education of youth was his particular talent. His happy manner in winning their affection, in conciliating the confidence of their parents, in securing the co-operation of those who were worthy of the public favour, together with the general wisdom of his administration, could not fail to insure the success of the undertaking, and to place it, as the event has proved, on a solid and permanent basis.

Though actively engaged in the government of the college under his charge, Mr. Dubourg found many other occupations for the exercise of his zeal. The disasters of St. Domingo had driven to our hospitable shore a considerable number of Catholic families and of coloured people, many of whom were most piously inclined; others were destined by Divine Providence to find in the severe afflictions which they suffered, a means of rousing them to a sense of duty, and to the practice of religion. A native of St. Domingo himself, Mr. Dubourg naturally felt a deep solicitude for the welfare of his countrymen, who had been despoiled of their property, and forced to seek an asylum in a land of strangers. Prompted by this laudable spirit, but still more by the law of universal charity, he used all his influence to supply their temporal and spiritual wants. All were objects of his benevolent attention; but to the people of colour he was particularly devoted. With the aid of Rev. John Tossier, ex-superiour of St. Mary's seminary, he established a congregation among them which for many years assembled regularly in the lower chapel of St. Mary's. It was afterwards confided to the care of Rev. Mr. Joubert, and became the origin of his religious association, well known under the name of Oblates or Sisters of Providence.

The better to encourage and sustain the practice of piety among the male portion of the community, Mr. Dubourg formed another society similar to those which exist in many Catholic countries, having for its object the exercise of fraternal charity and the steady performance of the Christian duties. The regulations by which it was governed, were well calculated to promote these important ends, and maintain among its members a spirit of religion as well as of friendly intercourse in health or sickness, in prosperous or adverse fortune. Many of the most respectable inhabitants of Baltimore, remember with consolation the monthly meetings, at which they united in the reception of the Sacraments, and were so powerfully solicited by mutual example to pursue with zeal the "one thing necessary." Many of them also will doubtlessly join us in the fervent hope that this society, which for several years has discontinued its operations, will soon be re-organized amongst us. When we consider the extensive and salutary influence it must necessarily exercise, in controlling the moral feelings and perfecting the relations of man with his fellow-beings, we cannot but wish the same blessing extended to every part of the country, for the spiritual and even the temporal happiness of our brethren.

In providing for the actual wants of the Catholic community, Mr. Dubourg looked forward also to the future interests of religion. We are indebted to his wisdom and activity for the elevated and commanding site which the Cathedral of Baltimore now occupies. Bishop Carroll, finding it necessary to erect a more spacious edifice for the accommodation of the Catholics in that city, had made his final arrangements to commence the building on the lot of the old Cathedral or St. Peter's, when Mr. Dubourg called on him, expressly to suggest the importance of procuring a more eligible position on the summit of the hill. The good bishop at first listened very unwillingly to the proposal; his plans had been matured; every thing was prepared to carry them into execution; and then, where were the twenty-eight thousand dollars for the purchase of the lot? This was nearly the amount of what had been collected for the new church. At length, after much conversation, he asked Mr. Dubourg if he would raise the funds for this purpose, to which having replied affirmatively, Mr. Dubourg left him, with a promise to return at the end of the week, and report his prospect of success. In a few days, he informed bishop Carroll that he had collected ten thousand dollars, principally among the mechanics of the city, and that the richer class, with a few words of exhortation from their chief pastor, would supply the remainder of the sum. In fact, the day following, bishop Carroll appealed in a special manner to the more wealthy portion of his congregation, and thirteen thousand dollars were soon added to the first contribution, and the ground immediately purchased, the benevolent proprietor having, in consideration of its intended destination, deducted five thousand dollars from the price he originally demanded.

With a mind always active, and ever prepared to advance the cause of religion, Mr. Dubourg let no opportunity escape of promoting this important end. He was particularly zealous in encouraging the processions of the Blessed Sacrament, which for several years were conducted with much solemnity and edification, on the extensive grounds of St. Mary's seminary, and at St. Patrick's church, Fell's Point. To remove the prejudices of those who were opposed to our holy faith, and strengthen the belief of Catholics themselves, he began a course of conferences, in which he reviewed and examined all the main proofs of Christianity, and the rule by which we are to be governed in the investigation of religious truth. These conferences, which many still remember as highly interesting and instructive, were commenced in the form of dialogues, and afterwards reduced to that of discourses similar to those of Mr. Frayssinous in France.

During the year 1809, a project was realized under the direction of Mr. Dubourg, which will render his memory dear to every class of society, as long as the eminent services rendered to religion and humanity by the sisters of charity, will have a claim to our grateful recollection. It is well known by those who witnessed the establishment of this pious and benevolent association in this country, that we owe its origin among us principally to the zeal and activity of Mr. Dubourg. Mrs. Seaton, of New York, a lady of distinguished birth and education, and a convert to the Catholic faith, desirous of consecrating herself to God and the service of her neighbor, made known her intentions to that enlightened clergyman, in whom she found a guide worthy of her generous spirit and heroic undertaking. Under his spiritual care, she became still more determined in her resolution to quit the world, and in conjunction with a few others who were anxious to follow her example, she commenced that life of poverty, humility, and devotedness to the cause of charity, which she believed to be her vocation from God. This little community, formed at first in Baltimore, was removed in 1810 to the spot now occupied as the Mother House near Emmitsburg, Md., the funds of the institution having been furnished by the liberality of Rev. Mr. Cooper, an American clergyman, and a convert to the Catholic religion. Here, retired from the distractions of the world, it has ever since been a most extensive nursery of charity, piety, and useful knowledge, dispensing its blessings on every side, extending its salutary influence to the remotest parts of the United States, and by the poverty and self-denial of its members, enriching all who come within the sphere of its beneficent and sacred ministry.

An important step taken by Mr. Dubourg and his friends, was, not to permit any thing to appear in the public journals of the city against the doctrines of the Catholic church, without requiring the same paper that had published the offensive article, to admit also its reply. On one occasion, an editor having refused to comply with this requisition, Mr. Dubourg informed him that in this case, his communication would be inserted in another journal, with a statement of the fact, that it had been rejected by the very paper which had provoked the discussion. This observation had the desired effect; the editor preferring to be guided by an apparent liberality, than to suffer the consequences of an unjust and bigoted policy. We may ascribe, in a great measure, to this firm and decided course, pursued with that prudence and moderation which always place a good cause in its best light, the respectful tone which the Baltimore journals, more than the papers of other cities, have since observed on the subject of the Catholic religion.

Besides that occasional exchange of paragraphs in the daily papers, the alarms of sectarianism at the progress of Catholicity, gave rise to farther and more resolute attacks. The "Companion," a weekly periodical published in Baltimore, having repeatedly alluded in terms of commendation to the erection of St. Mary's College, strictures of the most rancorous character were opposed to it, and the consequence was a long and serious discussion. We refer to the controversy in which Mr. Dubourg was engaged in the year 1811, against the Presbyterian Synod of Baltimore. The clerical members of the Presbytery had watched for some time, and with no little apprehension, the increasing prosperity of the institution over which he presided, the second founded in this country under the direction of the Catholic clergy, and the first admitted to the rank of university; and, roused by this fearful advancement of popery, their zeal at length burst into open hostilities against its conductors. Through the agency of Mr. Knox, they issued a proclamation under the title of a "Pastoral Letter," inculcating various duties, but referring in a special manner to the religious education of youth, and calling upon the faithful to "watch," and not to place their children under the guidance of wolves. This was but a worthy precedent to the appeals of a similar kind, which have been witnessed of late in many parts of our country, and will no doubt meet with the same success; that is, be dismissed with the contempt which an unprincipled and fanatical zeal will always receive at the hands of a liberal and enlightened public. This open attack upon the College was answered in a pamphlet, entitled, "St. Marys Seminary and the Catholics at large vindicated," which was followed by a defence of the "Pastoral Letter." But this soon had a rejoinder, "The Sons of St. Dominic," which closed the controversy; and left a very favourable impression upon the public mind. The good, which this last vindication of Catholic principles seemed to have produced, suggested forcibly to Mr. Dubourg the utility of starting a religious periodical, the object of which would be to furnish a lucid and comprehensive exposition of our tenets, and a refutation of every charge that prejudice might array against them. But at this epoch he was called to another sphere of action, having been appointed by archbishop Carroll, administrator apostolic of the diocese of New Orleans. That See erected in 1793, under the Spanish government, had been vacant since the year 1802.

Mr. Dubourg, on his arrival at New Orleans towards the close of the year 1812, immediately turned his attention to the wants of his immense diocese; nor were these by any means inconsiderable. Religion was in a most deplorable condition; but a few clergymen distributed over its vast territory; scarcely a church in which the faithful could assemble to hear the words of eternal life; no institution that offered an asylum to the innocent and penitent heart; no seminary of learning to dispense the blessings of classical and religious instruction; the child reared in ignorance and the forgetfulness of duty, the adult debarred from a participation of the sacraments; all classes of society living in a woful indifference upon the subject of their eternal welfare; such was the scene of desolation he was compelled to witness. If we add to this, the opposition he met with on the part of those whose interests he had identified with his own, whose happiness was the only object of his sighs and fervent prayers to heaven, if we advert to the insulting treatment that so often responded to his apostolic and undaunted zeal, what a combination of causes to shake his constancy and afflict his benevolent heart! But he had a soul that had learned to soar above all the difficulties and embarrassments of life; and with confidence in Him who had sent him to cultivate this wild and unproductive field, he entered with courage upon the laborious task, devoting himself without reserve to the welfare of the flock committed to his charge.

Such was the spirit of virtue and enterprise that watched over the nobler destinies of Louisiana, when the thrilling cry of war was sounded through its fertile plains, and threatened to put an end to its peace and prosperity. Having learned that the British troops were preparing to invade the city of New Orleans, Mr. Dubourg was among the first to share the troubles and animate the hopes of its citizens; and looking much more to the protection of Him who "is the supreme arbiter of human destinies" than to the strength of human arms, he called upon his people to assemble in public and solemn prayer, to humble themselves in the presence of the Almighty, and to expect their deliverance from Him who beheld the "justice and holiness of their cause." So ardent was the patriotic feeling, so genuine was the sentiment of religion breathed forth in every line of the mandate which he addressed to his flock on this occasion, that the commander-in-chief of the American army in that district, Major General Jackson, expressed to him his highest approbation of the measures he had adopted, and requested him to have them published and circulated among the people. But after having aided, by his humble supplications, to achieve the glorious victory that delivered our country from a state of anxious suspense, and caused every heart to overflow with joy, is he not still more worthy of our admiration in the beautiful address, with which he hailed the brave and intrepid Jackson, on his return from the battle-field to join in a solemn thanksgiving for the favour and protection of heaven? How eloquently does he congratulate him on the splendid success of his arms, while he attributes it to the gift of Him who holds the fate of empires in his hands! How noble and elevated the position which the minister of God here occupies, instructing the conqueror in the knowledge of his own weakness, and pointing to Him from whom all true greatness is derived, to whom all the honor and praise are to be awarded! After alluding to the brilliant triumph of the American over the British forces, and to the duty of referring it with gratitude to the Sovereign Disposer of events, he continues: "To Him our most fervent thanks are due for our late unexpected rescue, and it is Him we chiefly intend to praise, when, considering you, General, as the man of his right hand, whom he has taken pains to fit out for the important commission of our defence, we extol that fecundity of genius, by which, in an instant of the most discouraging distress, you created unforeseen resources; raised, as it were, from the ground, hosts of intrepid warriors, and provided every vulnerable point with ample means of defence. To Him we trace that instinctive superiority of your mind, which at once rallied around you universal confidence; impressed one irresistible movement upon all the jarring elements of which this political machine is composed; aroused their slumbering spirits and diffused through every rank that noble ardour, which glowed in your own bosom. To Him, in fine, we address our acknowledgments for that consummate prudence, which defeated all the combinations of a sagacious enemy, entangled him in the very snares which he had spread before us, and succeeded in effecting his utter destruction, without once exposing the lives of our citizens. Immortal thanks be to his Supreme Majesty, for sending us such an instrument of his bountiful designs!—A gift of that value is the best token of the continuance of his protection, the most solid encouragement to us to sue for new favours. The first which it emboldens us humbly to supplicate, as it is the nearer to our throbbing hearts, is that you may long enjoy, General, the honor of your grateful country, of which you will permit us to present you a pledge in this wreath of laurel, the prize of victory, the symbol of immortality.* We have insisted, at some length, on this circumstance in the history of our distinguished prelate, as well to prove his fond desire for the welfare of our country, as the happy talent he possessed of securing the esteem of all virtuous and honorable men.

A few months after this transaction, which took place in January, 1815, Mr. Dubourg embarked for Europe, where he hoped to obtain some zealous clergymen for the service of his diocese, and funds for the erection of various institutions. Having proceeded to Rome, he made known to the common Father of the faithful, the suffering state of his mission, and received from him many testimonies of his esteem and paternal regard. He had not been long in the eternal city, when the Sovereign Pontiff, in compliance with the request of archbishop Carroll, appointed him to the see of N. Orleans, which he accepted with fear and trembling, and he was accordingly consecrated on the 24th of September, before his departure from the Roman capital. In passing through Italy and France on his return to America, he endeavoured to provide by every possible means for the wants of his diocese, and induced several fervent ecclesiastics to share with him the perils and fatigues of his arduous mission. At length, having made every arrangement for leaving Europe, he set sail from Bordeaux, with upwards of thirty companions, on board the Caravane, a French ship of war, which Louis XVIII. had graciously offered to convey them to our shores, and after a passage of sixty-five days, they landed at Annapolis, in the state of Maryland, on the 4th of September, 1817. Many of the gentlemen who were destined for the diocese of N. Orleans, had already preceded bishop Dubourg to this country the year before. Of those who came with him from France, the greater number remained nearly two months at Annapolis, where they were entertained by the munificent hospitality of the late venerable Charles Carroll of Carrollton. Mr. Dubourg, in the meantime, visited Washington, having previously sent a number of young clergymen to Baltimore, where he soon joined them. Here he was warmly received by his former friends, and was invited to perform several functions of the episcopal office, after which he proceeded on his way to St. Louis, where he had resolved to fix his residence, until he should deem it expedient for the interests of religion to remain in New Orleans.

At Bardstown, bishop Dubourg and his fellow-travellers had the happiness of meeting their friends who had left Europe before them, and who, since their arrival in America, had been preparing themselves, particularly by the study of the English language, for their future labours. From this place, where they found much to console and edify them, they departed for St. Louis, accompanied by bishop Flaget, who was very desirous of performing the ceremony of instalment. On the 28th of December, Mr. Dubourg landed below St. Genevieve, and took possession of his diocese, by planting a cross, the glorious instrument of our redemption, and chanting with his clergy the hymn Vexilla Regis prodeunt. Two days after, he was received at St. Genevieve with all the solemnity that the place could afford, and on the fourth of January, 1818, he made his pontifical entry into St. Louis, amid the joyful acclamations of the inhabitants. Having arrived at the church, he was conducted to his chair by bishop Flaget, who expressed to him, with his usual fervour and apostolic spirit, the unmingled satisfaction he experienced in beholding him in the midst of his flock, and the people seemed universally to be animated with the same lively feelings at the contemplation of so interesting a scene, and one which was the harbinger of so many blessings for them and their posterity.

From that moment, bishop Dubourg pursued with unremitting zeal, the vast career of usefulness that lay open before him, and with the aid of the fifty-three gentlemen who had followed him for the purpose of labouring in the same holy cause, and whom he had stationed in different places, he soon began to witness the progress of religion, and every thing around him assume daily a brighter aspect. But the difficulties he had to surmount in the accomplishment of this great work, are almost incredible. The following extract from one of his letters, will show likewise how energetically he met them. "As I could not penetrate into the capital of Louisiana without exposing the sacred character with which I was invested, I thought it more prudent to commence the attack at those points of my diocese, which were the least ably defended; judging that here, as in a citadel, I might assemble my forces, and gradually obtaining possession of the surrounding country, the strongest place would ultimately be compelled to yield. For this reason, the vast territory of Missouri was the first theatre of our labors; and here we had to contend with obstacles of every kind, profound ignorance of religion and the prejudices arising from it, universal corruption, the disregard of every thing like principle, absolute poverty, not having even whereon to lay my head, and more than fifty persons depending on me for their support. Retiring into the forest, we there raised with our own hands a spacious cabin to shelter us from the weather, and laid the foundation of another edifice.* Convinced that Europe could not supply him with a sufficient number of missionaries, he turned his attention to the formation of a native clergy, commencing the seminary and college at the Barrens, which he placed under the direction of the Lazarists,† and regarded as the principal support of his diocese. Shortly after, he established another college at St. Louis, which he subsequently, in 1823, confided to the care of the Jesuits, who, having opened a novitiate at Florissant, form at present a distinct province in the West. The ladies of the Sacred Heart and the sisters of Loretto, whom he had called to his assistance, with the Ursulines who had existed for nearly a century at N. Orleans, were his resources for the education of young ladies, and for the gratuitous instruction of the poor and the people of colour.‡ Notwithstanding these numerous objects that demanded his continual vigilance, our worthy prelate left nothing undone to promote the great work that had been committed to his care. In St. Louis he secured a comfortable mansion for the bishop and his

and N. Orleans. When bishop Dubourg left Louisiana, he had established three houses of the Sacred Heart, and two of Loretto.

clergy, constructed a new cathedral, and elsewhere at different points erected churches, and provided amply for the religious instruction of the Indians. Though obliged, in the capacity of chief pastor, to superintend the various institutions he had formed, he was almost incessantly occupied in performing the functions of a missionary, attending to several parishes at a considerable distance from St. Louis, and labouring with a zeal and activity that rendered him at once the admiration and example of his people.

From St. Louis bishop Dubourg went annually to New Orleans, until the year 1823, when he thought it advisable to make it the place of his residence. The opposition which had at first been raised against him in that city, had now subsided; his long forbearance having prevented many scandals and difficulties, that would perhaps have been occasioned by a more rigid exercise of authority among the discontented members of the clergy, who at length seemed as anxious for his return as the most favourably disposed among the faithful. But in leaving St. Louis, it became necessary for him to have the aid of a coadjutor, who would continue the eminent good which he had commenced in that flourishing region. The gentleman selected by the Holy See for this important station, was the Rev. Joseph Rosati, at that time superior of the seminary at the Barrens, whose consecration took place in the parish of the Ascension, on the 25th of March, 1824, and was attended with circumstances that afforded the utmost consolation to the officiating prelate.

About a year before this event, bishop Dubourg had learned with indescribable joy, that the "Association for the propagation of the faith," had commenced its operations in France; an object which he had long and anxiously looked for, and which he knew would be the means of consolidating his plans and rendering immense services to religion in the United States.* In fact, it was the funds obtained from this source, that enabled him, in a great measure, to form many of the parishes that he established along the Mississippi river, nearly forty in number, and to continue the excellent institutions of which we have spoken. The language he used in a letter to the members of the Association, is well deserving of notice, as it contains in a few words a well-merited eulogy of the society, and a powerful incentive to aid in the execution of similar projects. "In proposing to yourselves," he remarks, "a vast sphere for the exercise of your zeal, you have secured the interest and support of all who are animated with the love of God. The idea of carrying the flambeau of religion at once to the remotest points of both hemispheres, is as dazzling to the imagination as it is influential upon the heart. What conception could be more truly Catholic than this? Who that has any piety, even among the least favoured of fortune, would not deem it an honor and a pleasure, to acquire, at so trivial a sacrifice, the glory of co-operating in this noble work?"*

The Ursulines, whose situation as a religious community, had become less favourable to their holy pursuits, and to the duties of their academy, by the daily improvement of the city around them, had removed their establishment two miles below N. Orleans; while the house which they formerly occupied, was now partially used as an episcopal residence, but principally as a college, conducted by Rev. Michael Portier, assisted by three other gentlemen. At the elevation of Mr. Portier to the see of Mobile, the college was superintended by Mr. Martial, whose death arrested the tide of its usefulness. It was the intention of bishop Dubourg to remove this institution to the parish of Lafourche, where he proposed also to erect a seminary, having received for this purpose twelve hundred acres of land in that district; but before he could realize this fond object of his hopes, he was transferred from the see of N. Orleans to that of Montauban, in France, leaving behind him such an amount of labour, so many splendid monuments of his enterprize and apostolic spirit, that we follow him, as it were, with regret, to another theatre of his zeal, and dwell with painful emotions on the epoch that closed his brilliant career on this side of the Atlantic. Were we to particularize the circumstances that induced him to leave this country, and which originated in the hypocrisy and treachery of the malicious Inglesi, we would only multiply the reasons that compel us to admire his eminent goodness of heart and disinterested ardour to promote the interests of religion. However remarkable the prudence, the perseverance, the wisdom of a prelate, the peculiar character of those around him will sometimes render it expedient for the welfare of his flock, that he should place the government of his diocese in other hands. It was with such motives that bishop Dubourg accepted an appointment in Europe, which in evidencing the lofty esteem entertained for him abroad, contributes, in conjunction with another event, to reflect a high honor upon the American episcopacy. Like bishop Cheverus, of Boston, at a former period, he was called from the U. States to occupy one of the most important Sees in France, and though in a country renowned for the pure and exalted character of its clergy, his amiable piety and rare qualities obtained for him a distinguished rank, not only in the exercise of the episcopal charge, but, what is far more creditable to his virtue, in the regard and affections of his people. In June, 1826, he set sail for Europe, and took possession of his See on the 19th of November.

The diocese of Montauban which consists of the department of Tarn and Garonne, contained at this time a population of 242,000 souls, for whose service bishop Dubourg had three hundred and fifty-three priests at his disposal, with one hundred and one students of theology and philosophy in his seminary, and one hundred and five at their preparatory studies. As in all the dioceses of France, he had a great number of religious establishments; the sisters of charity, like those whom he introduced into this country, served four hospitals; the sisters of Nevers, three others; the Ursulines had three academies and schools for the poor; the sisters of mercy had two houses under their care for the education of the poor and the orphan; there were two monasteries of Carmelites, and several other pious associations, among which was that of the Brothers of the Christian Doctrine, who had a school of four hundred boys. All these institutions must have proved a source of immense consolation to our zealous bishop, who understood so well the blessings they confer upon society, and had always been so desirous to commence them in the district confided to his administration. In this encouraging and prosperous state of things, he had only to follow in the footsteps of his worthy predecessor Cardinal de Cheverus, and by the same spirit of conciliation and true charity, attract all to the esteem and practice of our holy religion.

After the revolution of 1830, bishop Dubourg manifested on various occasions the zeal and courage of a true pastor, in defending the cause of religion and that of his clergy. By the firmness which he constantly evinced, the authorities of the city and the department, and even the ministers of Louis Philippe, to whom he appealed, in two remarkable instances, against the illegal proceedings of the times, were forced to respect the rights of conscience and the practices of the church, and afford to the inhabitants of Montauban, that protection which was then so often denied in other cities. He averted from the Catholics of his diocese, a repetition of the impieties which had been witnessed in the capital. But observing, under all circumstances, the proper lines of prudence and moderation which a chief pastor should never lose sight of in times of political commotion, he continued to enjoy the favour and approbation of all parties.

He had been six years bishop of Montauban, when, in February, 1833, he was appointed the successor of Cardinal de Rohan, in the Archdiocese of Besancon. His health, however, had been greatly impaired. Having visited the waters of Luxeuil without receiving any benefit, he repaired to his new See, and was installed on the 10th of October, his strength daily declining and not permitting him to perform any public function. His mental faculties, however, still retained their wonted energy, as may be seen from the pastoral letter which he published on his accession to the See of Besancon, and which is a beautiful specimen of language, as well as of genuine piety. Extracts from it were inserted, at the time, in our papers. We cannot refrain from noticing the following passage, equally indicative of his noble heart and elegant taste. "Churches of Louisiana and Montauban! the holy alliance is broken that successively identified my existence with yours. But the bands of paternity are not loosed; it shall always be true, that I have been your spouse, and your children have been mine. Your prosperity and theirs shall, therefore, be the object of my most ardent prayers, and an exhaustless source of joy to my heart. Louisiana and Montauban, beloved names! I unite you together in this effusion of my heart, because you were never separated in my affections. In passing from one to the other, I felt that no change had taken place in my first love; that the sphere of my affections was only enlarged; and I have become sensible how a father may experience all the force of parental tenderness for the last scions of his old age, without diminishing the love he had for his first-born."

During the short duration of Mr. Dubourg's archiepiscopal government, he procured two pastoral retreats for his numerous clergy, amounting to about nine hundred priests; but notwithstanding his utmost desire to join them in person, his enfeebled state permitted him to assist only once at those edifying duties. On the 1st of November, he received the Pallium from the hands of bishop Porcet, of Langres, who also performed for him several ordinations. When the Jubilee was opened, he united with fervour, from his bed of sickness, in the devotion of his flock and its pastors, and often requested the clergymen around him, to suggest to his mind such thoughts and affections as were suited to his suffering condition. With a lively faith, and an humble fear of God, tempered by a firm and tender reliance on his mercies, archbishop Dubourg endeavoured by day and night to sanctify this last trial of his existence, and looked with calmness and resignation for the moment of his earthly dissolution. Kind and amiable, patient and grateful to all who approached him, he took pleasure in recommending himself to their prayers, and leaving with them some pledge of their remembrance. He himself gave all the directions for his funeral, providing against superfluous expense, as well as vain ostentation, and extending his attention to every particular, like archbishop Carroll, who, at the approach of death, perceiving one of his priests looking for a book in his library, and imagining at once that he wished to consult the ceremonial, upon the mode of proceeding after his demise, told him, with the utmost calmness, where to find it, and what use should be made of it. Such was the humility of Mr. Dubourg, that when his friends alluded to the life he had so usefully spent in the service of God, and urged that reflection as a motive of confidence in his infinite mercy, he appeared to suffer some uneasiness, expressing at the same time a fear of not having sufficiently corresponded to the favours of the Almighty, and his only desire to hear of better things which he constantly held in view, repeating occasionally, and with much feeling, a passage from the holy scriptures. In these sentiments of fervent piety, he expired, on the 12th of December, 1833, in the 65th year of his age. On the 14th, his remains were borne to the tomb, accompanied by a numerous clergy, a vast concourse of people, and all the civil and military authorities.

In portraying the character of archbishop Dubourg, we will repeat what has already been advanced in this notice, that few prelates were ever more actively and extensively engaged in laboring for the cause of truth. Gifted with a strong mind and persevering spirit, he evinced, from early life, that talent for enterprize and government, which was so fully developed at a maturer age. A lively imagination, great sensibility and readiness of expression; a quick perception of things, with a mind of comprehensive grasp, fertile in expedients, and generally happy in the selection of those which were most effective; an invincible courage and firmness in the execution of what he deemed well calculated to promote the honor of religion; a command over the hearts of others, arising from his powers of conviction and amiable manners, but always prompted by a pure intention; a cheerfulness of disposition, sometimes, however, clouded by mental and bodily fatigue, the almost inevitable consequence of his perpetual solicitude, frequent watchings and laborious duties; such were partially the excellent qualities that distinguished our illustrious prelate. If to these we add his ardent faith, his tender piety, his strong attachment to the church; the strict attention he paid to all the public ceremonies prescribed in the ritual and pontifical; the zeal with which he discharged the functions of the holy ministry, instructing the child or reclaiming the sinner from the paths of vice, in the confessional or at the bedside of the dying Christian; if we take into view his charity in relieving the wants of suffering humanity, his forgiving heart, his habits of sobriety, his literary taste, his due preference of the sacred sciences, his pulpit elocution, which was particularly remarkable for its unction, a pure and elegant style, and a most happy use of the scriptures, we will discover still more clearly the admirable virtues, that rendered him so eminent in usefulness, and won for him universal esteem. As to the faults that may have blemished his public career, it would indeed be extraordinary that human nature, weak as it is, and launched into so boundless a sphere of action, should not have exhibited some degree of imperfection. But consider the immense good which Mr. Dubourg accomplished, and in a country where he had to struggle with so many difficulties and suffered so many contradictions. Driven from his native land by the French revolution, which had disappointed his earliest hopes, his zeal for the interests of religion seemed to have acquired a new ardour, in the midst of trouble and opposition. A stranger in the U. States, he met with a few virtuous associates, who like himself were destitute of all the resources that commonly insure success: pecuniary funds, a knowledge of the people and their language, patronage of influential friends, confidence of the public, none of these means were at his disposal; he had to create them all. But in the name of heaven he set out "as a giant to run the way," and what was the result of his efforts, may be gathered, in some degree, from this imperfect sketch of his labours. When we reflect that the jurisdiction of archbishop Dubourg extended at one time over the vast territory which is now distributed into five episcopal districts; when we look back at the colleges, the religious institutions, the dioceses that sprang into existence and flourished under his wise administration; the innumerable buildings he erected, the zealous and heroic clergymen whom he provided for the service of his people, the long and toilsome journeys he undertook for their welfare; when we consider the various positions in which he stood with legislatures, governments, kings and their ministers; his connection with religious communities and their heads, with boards and trustees, with literary and scientific men, with friends and adversaries; if we follow the man, the priest, the bishop, through so many responsible and trying relations, we will not stop to examine the imperfections of frail humanity; they all vanish before this galaxy of brilliant and virtuous deeds, like spots in the firmament swallowed up in the gorgeous light of the mid-day sun. We will rather exclaim as he did, in contemplating the astonishing progress of religion in the West; a Domino factum est istud, et est mirabile in oculis nostris, this is the Lord's doing, and it is wonderful in our eyes.* We will rather burst forth into a canticle of fervent thanksgiving, to glorify God who "hath visited and wrought the redemption of his people,"† and entertain for the distinguished individual, who was instrumental in the production of so much good, the fond hope awakened by those words of inspiration: "fear not, I am thy protector, and thy reward exceeding great."‡

CATHEDRAL OF BALTIMORE.

The See of Baltimore, which comprises the State of Maryland and the District of Columbia, was erected by Pius VI., in 1789, and was made an Archbishopric by Pius VII., in 1808. The diocese is now governed by the Most Rev. Samuel Eccleston, who is also Administrator of the Diocese of Richmond. He was consecrated in the Cathedral of Baltimore, by the Most Rev. James Whitfield, on the 14th of September, 1834.

ECCLESIASTICAL SEMINARIES.

THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY,

AT BALTIMORE, MD.

The Rev. gentlemen of this Institution, and of the College attached to it, are members of the Society of St. Sulpitius. The Sulpitians are a congregation of clergymen, founded in 1641, at Vaugirard, near Paris, by the Rev. John James Olier, for the purpose of instructing aspirants to the ecclesiastical state, in the knowledge and spirit of their sacred calling. They have seminaries in most of the provinces of France, one at Montreal in Canada, and one in Baltimore. The Superior General resides in Paris. The Institution at Baltimore, was commenced at the solicitation of archbishop Carroll, in 1791, when the Society was disbanded in Europe by the horrors of the French revolution, and many of its members received the crown of martyrdom for their generous adherence to the true faith. Upon the restoration of peace, however, Mr. Emery, the Superior General, who had been confined in the prisons of Paris for sixteen months, gathered round him a few young men whose vocation had triumphantly weathered the political storm, and succeeded in re-establishing his society in France, and placing it on a very prosperous footing. The first superiour of the seminary at Baltimore, was Rev. Francis C. Nagot, who was succeeded by Rev. John Tessier, D. D. ex-superiour. It is now under the charge of Very Rev. Lewis R. Deluol, D. D. and has sixteen students, two of whom are deacons, twelve belong to the diocese of Baltimore, three to New York and one to Boston. The other Rev. gentlemen who reside in the Seminary, are:

Very Rev. John Tessier, D. D.

" Rev. Hector Joubert.

" Rev. Peter Fredet, Prof. of Theol. and Eccl. Hist.

" Rev. Francis L'homme.

" Rev. Gilbert Rayment.!

" Rev. Michael Gallagher.

MOUNT ST. MARY'S THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY,

NEAR EMMITSBURG, MD.

A Seminary was established at this place in 1809, by the Sulpitians of Baltimore, for the education of boys who evinced a desire to embrace the ecclesiastical state. It soon became a flourishing institution, and youths were admitted without any special regard to their future employment in the sacred ministry. In 1819, it was ceded by the Sulpitians to the Rt. Rev. John Dubois then president of the college, to whose zealous exertions and those of the Rt. Rev. G. Bruté, it is chiefly indebted for the services it has rendered to religion and society. At that period, a class of theology was opened for the convenience of those who aspired to holy orders, and the seminary has since been a theological as well as classical institution. The present number of students is twenty three, ten of whom attend the class of divinity.

Rev. John McCaffrey, *Superiour.*Rev. Philip Borgna, *Director and Prof. of Theology.NOVITIATE OF THE SOCIETY OF JESUS,

AT FREDERICK, MD.

The order of the Jesuits was founded by St. Ignatius of Loyola, in 1534, when he and his companions, six in number, bound themselves by the three vows of poverty, chastity and obedience, in the church of Montmartre, near Paris. He afterwards added to these obligations the vow of special obedience to the sovereign Pontiff, that he might dispose of his society, as he should think proper, for the propagation of the gospel throughout the world. This admirable institute was confirmed by Paul III. in 1540, under the name of the Society of Jesus, and its members were called Jesuits, from the Church of Jesus, which belonged to them in Rome. St. Ignatius, superior general of the order, soon had the consolation of witnessing its wide and rapid diffusion, and the most signal blessings accruing to the Church from the zeal of his missionaries, not only in Europe, but even in America and the East Indies, where they endured every hardship and sacrificed their lives, in endeavouring to instruct the ignorant, civilize the fierce inhabitants of the forest, and open to them the way of eternal life. The services which this society has rendered to religion and humanity, are almost incredible. Even the enemies of the faith which animated its members to so many deeds of heroic virtue, have most eloquently eulogized their noble efforts in every undertaking connected with the illumination of the human mind, the cultivation of the sciences, the education of youth, and what is still more important, the salvation of souls. The good they effected was universal in its character as well as in its sphere of operation. While religion places a Xavier, a Francis Borgia, an Aloysius Gonzaga among her proudest ornaments; the names of Bourdaloue, Larue, McCarthy will ever shine upon the list of orators; Suares, Petau, Garnier will always be ranked among those who have drawn most copiously from the deep sources of sacred learning; history will boast of her d'Orleans', her Longuevals, and literature of her Rapins, her Vanieres', her Com-mires, &c. &c.

When Lord Baltimore arrived on these shores, he had with him four Jesuits, Fathers White, Copley, Harkey and Parrot, who served the infant colony and resided principally at St. Inigoes, St. Mary's county, Md. which is still in possession of the Jesuits. From that period, the Society of Jesus was the support of religion in the province of Maryland, both in the time of peace and of persecution, establishing congregations at various points, which to this day bear testimony to the apostolic spirit of their zealous founders. About the year 1720, F. Grayton and others introduced Catholicity into Pennsylvania. The first bishop of the U. States was chosen in this body. Towards the close of the 18th century, the Jesuits commenced a college at Georgetown, D. C. which is at present in a very flourishing condition. They have now three other colleges for the education of youth, which are all in a prosperous state. The mission of the Jesuits in this country is divided into two provinces, the eastern and western. The novitiate of the society for the eastern district was formerly at White Marsh, Prince Geo. co. Md. but for several years past it has been fixed at Frederick. The Very Rev. Thomas F. Mulledy, D. D. is superior of this mission, and Rev. Francis Dzierozinski is master of novices, who are thirteen in number—5 scholastics and 8 brothers. The superior of the western mission is Very Rev. Peter Verhægen. The novitiate is near Florissant, St. Louis co. Mo. where there are fifteen novices, 9 scholastics and 6 brothers, under the direction of Rev. Joseph Van Assche.

ST. CHARLES' COLLEGE,

SIXTEEN MILES WEST OF BALTIMORE.

This is the title of an institution, destined for the preparatory education of boys, who have a desire to embrace the ecclesiastical state. It was founded by the liberality of the venerable Charles Carroll of Carrollton, who granted for this purpose an extensive tract of land, and provided funds for the commencement of a building, which has since been nearly brought to a state of completion. It is 80 feet long, 60 feet in depth and three stories high, with a spacious back-building, and presents an imposing aspect from the Frederick road, from which it is not more than three hundred yards distant. When we consider the noble destination of this edifice, and the urgent want of such an establishment, to secure the vocation of those whose early aspiration is to devote themselves to the service of religion, we cannot but deeply regret the existence of the obstacles that retard its progress, and ardently sigh for the moment when it will be opened for the reception of the pious and youthful candidate for the holy ministry. In June, 1836, an effort was made to commence a fund, which has for one of its objects to aid in the continuance of this important work. But so far, the contributions levied on the faithful have not been sufficient to justify any considerable advances upon the building; and hence, it stands unfinished and unoccupied, while the diocess whose wants it was intended to supply, is daily suffering from this unhappy circumstance.

It may appear a matter of surprise, that since the first establishment of Catholicity in this country, it should have yielded so few native clergymen to the Church. How shall we account for the phenomenon, that the United States, under whose free and liberal government religion has every facility for exercising its happy influence and extending its genial sway, have not yet furnished their proportion of clergymen? Are the youth of this country little inclined to embrace the clerical state? Are there but few comparatively who aspire to this eminent and holy profession, to secure with greater facility their own salvation and that of their neighbour? No; there is a vast number of young persons, who from their infancy manifest an inclination of this kind, which, if judiciously cultivated, would lead them eventually within the pale of the sanctuary. But it too frequently happens that this propensity gradually disappears; and the fond hope of the parent who had looked forth with so much confidence to the moment, when the child of her heart would be consecrated to the service of the altar, is found to be an idle dream. Like the flower nipped in the bud, the vocation of these tender youths is lost, before they have reached the age of maturity. Unprotected from the storms that continually agitate the life of man, what other result could be expected than the shipwreck of their pious inclinations? Exposed to the influence of bad example, is it a matter of surprise that they should catch the infection, and dazzled by the glittering prospects that fancy pictures to their view, they launch out upon the world, unmindful of the dangers that await them, and which at an earlier age they were so solicitous to avoid? If there is a scarcity of clergymen, therefore, the deficiency is to be attributed, not to the small number of candidates for holy orders, but to the unfortunate change which a defective education occasions in their sentiments and dispositions. To prevent this evil is the main object of St. Charles' College. Destined only for the education of Catholic boys, who wish to qualify themselves for the sacred ministry, it will be the security of their morals and the safeguard of their virtuous intentions. Free from those dangers, which would necessarily be incurred by associating with boys of different habits, of different religions and different views, they will have comparatively no difficulties to encounter in the attainment of their pious wishes. Being all animated by the same desire, and all tending to the accomplishment of the same end, far from being for each other, as is too often the case in secular institutions, a subject of scandal, a source of human respect, a stumbling-block in the path of duty, they will walk hand in hand and be a mutual encouragement in the prosecution of their laudable design. Here also they will pursue a course of studies peculiarly adapted to the profession which they have in view. The reading of the holy scriptures, the study of ecclesiastical history, and a special attention to other branches connected with their sacred calling, will at once have a tendency to cherish and mature their first intentions, and prepare them for the subsequent study of theology. Another advantage enjoyed in a house of this kind, is the moderate expense which will be necessary for the support and education of the pupils. From the very nature of the establishment, these objects will be attained much more economically than is practicable in ordinary institutions.

If such are the blessings to be anticipated from St. Charles' College, we can certainly have no purer or more laudable wish than to see it in successful operation. Whether we look to our own wants or those of generations to come, it has a strong claim upon our benevolence, and appeals loudly to the liberality of those whom Providence has gifted with the riches of this world. While we pray, then, the Lord of the harvest that he may send labourers into his vineyard, let us contribute, according to our means, to the support of an institution which is destined to provide the diocese with a sufficient number of clergymen, by cherishing under its holy influences their first offerings at the shrine of apostolic zeal.

ST. MARY'S COLLEGE—Baltimore.

ST. MARY'S COLLEGE enjoys the advantages of a most healthy and pleasant situation, in the north-western part of the city of Baltimore. The buildings are sufficient for the accommodation of one hundred and fifty boarders, and afford the facility of appropriating a separate room to each class of the various literary departments. The halls for meals, study and recreation, are spacious: the dormitories airy, and divided into separate alcoves, one for each pupil. The grounds for the recreation of the students, are extensive and adorned with trees.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The Hebrew, Greek, Latin, English, French and Spanish languages; Poetry, Rhetoric, Natural and Moral Philosophy; a complete course of Mathematics, with practical applications to Mensuration; Surveying, Drawing Maps and Plats, for which operations the college is furnished with all the necessary instruments; Geography and the use of the Globes; Writing, Book-keeping, Music, Drawing and Dancing.

GRADUATION IN THE FACULTY OF ARTS:

The course required for the degree of Bachelor of Arts, comprehends—Mathematics as far as Conic Sections, inclusively; Geography; the Greek and Latin Languages; Rhetoric, Moral and Natural Philosophy. "The candidates shall undergo all examinations that will take place during their stay at the college. The last year they shall write and deliver a speech on a literary, scientific, or moral subject, a copy of which shall be left to the college."

"Students from other colleges, in order to be admitted to the degree of Bachelor of Arts, must have attended the classes of the college, at least during a year. Previous to their being received among the students, they shall undergo a general examination, on which will depend the classes into which they shall be entered."

The college terms are:—Washing, per annum, $18, mending, $12, Doctor's fees, $8, charges of infirmary, $2. A separate bill will be furnished for remedies, and such extraordinary expenses as might be incurred during sickness.

Clothing, pocket-money, books and stationary, may be procured either by the college or the parents, who reside in the city. The annual charge for stationary, is six dollars. Books are furnished by the college at the current prices. As for clothing and pocket-money, when they are to be furnished by the college, a deposite of fifty dollars, which will be returned at the final departure of the students, must be left in the hands of the treasurer.

Should a student be withdrawn before the expiration of a quarter, no deduction will be made for the remaining time, nor will any be allowed for the vacation, during which the boarders are welcome to stay in the college.

Boarders must be supplied at their entrance, with a cot, mattress, pillow, two pairs of sheets, and three blankets; a silver tumbler and spoon; at least eight shirts, eight pairs of stockings, eight cravats, eight handkerchiefs, two pairs of shoes, a hat, the uniform of the college, and two other suits. Half-boarders with a silver tumbler and spoon.

The following are the names of the gentlemen attached to the institution:

Rev. John J. Chanche, D. D. President.

Rev. Edward Knight, Vice Pres't.

Rev. Hector Joubert, Professor of French.

Rev. John Randanne, Prof. of Latin Literature.

Rev. Francis L'homme, Prof. of Greek.

Rev. Augustin Vérot, Prof. of Math. and Nat. Philos.

Rev. Peter Fredet, Prof. of History.

Rev. Alexius A. Elder, Procurator.

Rev. Gilbert Raymont.

Rev. Adolphus Williamson.

The number of students in the college is 180; 95 boarders, 85 externs.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE,

IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The COLLEGE is situated on the northern bank of the Potomac, and commands a full view of Georgetown, Washington, the Potomac, and a great part of the District of Columbia. Its situation is peculiarly healthy. The distance between the College and the Capitol being only an ordinary walk, the students have an opportunity of hearing, occasionally, the debates of Congress, and the pleadings of the Supreme Court; always, however, attended by their Prefect.

The course of ordinary studies is completed in seven years; at the completion of which, if the scholar have made sufficient proficiency, he may receive the degree of Bachelor of Arts. When a scholar presents himself to be received into the college, he is examined by the Prefect of Studies, and placed in that class for which his prior acquirements may have fitted him. He then passes in regular succession to the end of Logic and Moral Philosophy. If he remain longer, and study the higher branches of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, he may take the degree of Master of Arts.

The academic year commences on the 15th of September, and ends on the 31st of July.

The annual pension for board, tuition, washing and mending linen and stockings, for use of books, (philosophical and mathematical excepted) pens, ink, and writing paper, slates and pencils, medical aid and medicine, is $200. All charges must be paid half yearly in advance.

No extra charges except those which are specified, viz: the Italian, Spanish, and German languages, and the books necessary for their study, Music, Drawing, Fencing, and similar accomplishments, all which will form extra charges.

If parents wish the College to supply their sons with clothing, a deposite is required by the College equivalent to the probable expense for clothing for six months. The term clothing is understood to comprehend shoes, caps and any and every article of wear. None of these will be furnished by the College, unless a deposite, equivalent to the probable expense, be made.

With regard to pocket money, it is desired that little should be granted: whatever sum parents or guardians may choose to allow their sons or wards, must be deposited in the hands of the President of the College, who will give it out to the students in such manner as he thinks the occasion requires.

Half boarders are received at $90 per annum, to be paid half yearly in advance.

The following Rev. gentlemen are attached to the Institution:

Very Rev. Thomas F. Mulledy, D. D., Provincial.

" William M'Sherry, S. J., President.

" Fidelis Grivel, S. J.

" Joseph A. Lopez, S. J. Minister and Prof. of Spanish.

" George Fenwick, S. J. Prefect of Studies.

" Stephen Gabaria, S. J. Prof. of Theol. & Ethics.

" James Ryder, S. J. Professor of Philosophy.

" James Curley, S. J. Professor of Mathematics.

" Virgil H. Barber, S. J. Libr. & Prof. of Math.

" Lewis Debarth.

The number of students in the College, is 130. There are besides, 21 scholastics, six of whom are professors of the languages, and 26 lay brothers.

MOUNT ST. MARY'S COLLEGE.

NEAR EMMITSBURG, FREDERICK CO., MD.

Mt. St. MARY'S COLLEGE is situated in a romantic and beautiful part of Frederick County, Md., embosomed in woods and retired from the distractions and moral dangers of a city. The site is peculiarly healthy, and is supplied with the purest water by a spring gushing from the rock. It is distant fifty miles from Baltimore, eighteen from Frederick, Md., twelve from Gettysburg, Pa., and two from Emmitsburg. The buildings are sufficient for the accommodation of one hundred and forty boarders. The various halls and rooms are spacious, airy and comfortable.

The system of education embraces the Hebrew, Greek, Latin, English, French, Spanish and German Languages, the Mathematics in general, with practical applications of the principles of Mensuration and Surveying: the drawing of Maps and Plots, Geography, History, Poetry, Rhetoric and Oratory—Intellectual Philosophy, Logic, and Ethics, Natural Philosophy, Chemistry, Botany, Zoology, &c. &c.

TERMS.

BOARD AND TUITION, including the entire classic and scientific course, together with the modern languages, also, doctor's fee, washing and mending of clothes, use of bed and bedding, payable half-yearly in advance, per annum, $182; Music and Drawing are extra charges. Medicines are furnished at the apothecary's rate, and seldom add to the bill of expenses. Parents and Guardians, if they prefer it, can pay a sum which will be in full for all the branches of education taught in the College, for boarding, clothing, use of books, stationary and other expenses, except Musical and Mathematical Instruments and pocket money.

The following are the Rev. gentlemen attached to the Institution:

" Honoratus Xaupi.

" L. Obermeyer.

ST. JOHN'S LITERARY INSTITUTION,

FREDERICK CITY, MARYLAND.

This school, now in operation eight years, continues to afford the means of acquiring a classical education, on terms accommodated to all.

The number of enquiries of late, from distant parts of the country, respecting the institution, are thus briefly answered. Each scholar is required to pay, on entering, fifty dollars, which entitles him to a place in the school, until he completes the course adopted by the institution, without any other charges for tuition. Three dollars a year are to be paid also in advance by each student, for fuel, ink and servants' wages. Parents unable to make the donation of fifty dollars, (which is applied to pay off the debt incurred for the buildings) can have their sons educated, by paying the sum above mentioned for fuel, &c. No scholar received unless he knows how to read, and bears a good moral character.

The institution aims chiefly at a classical education, without losing sight of the English and Mathematical departments. French is also taught. Rules for conduct are prescribed, and enforced by the superintendence of one of the professors.

There are two examinations each year; the one private, the first week in March; the other public, the last week in July, after which bulletins are sent to parents, stating the proficiency, conduct, &c. of their sons. On the first Tuesday in August, the exhibition and distribution of premiums take place at 3 o'clock, P. M.; from this day the annual vacation commences, and ends on Monday after the 15th of September;—no other vacation during the year.

Four or five boarding houses have been opened for the accommodation of boys from a distance, and others may be found—their charge is $100 per annum, for board, washing and mending, payable half yearly in advance. Should a student be taken home on account of sickness or in vacation, a proportionate deduction will be made, for the time of his absence, by the proprietors of boarding houses.

The undersigned does not receive boarders, but prescribes regulations to the respective houses, and sees as much as he can, by himself or others, that they are observed. Strict attention is paid to religious instruction, as also to religious observances, both essential to form the moral character of youth.

JOHN McELROY.

The following are the Rev. gentlemen attached to the Institution:

Rev. John McElroy, S. J., Superiour.

" Benjamin A. Young, S. J.

" Edward McCarthy, S. J.

" Peter P. Kroes, S. J.

" John T. McGerry.

The number of students at this time is 110.

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

CONVENT of the VISITATION of the B. VIRGIN, at Georgetown, D. C.

The order of the visitation was established in 1610, at Annecy, in Savoy, by St. Francis of Sales, bishop of Geneva, and Jane Frances Fremiot, Baroness of Chantal.—Originally it was merely a congregation of young women and widows, who were bound by simple vows, and employed themselves in visiting and comforting the sick and the poor, adopting as their model the example of charity exhibited by the Mother of God in her visit to St. Elizabeth. Some years after, St. Frances was induced to convert his society into a religious order, with the obligation of keeping the cloister, observing the solemn vows, and reciting the office of the B. Virgin. It was confirmed as such by Paul V, in 1618. As one of the main objects of the institute was the sanctification of persons who were advanced in years, or of a delicate and feeble temperament, its holy founder did not impose the exercise of much bodily austerity; but this deficiency was amply supplied by that life of recollection and disengagement from creatures, which it is the spirit of their rule to practise in an eminent degree. To encourage this perfect abnegation among his religious, he would have them possess nothing as their own; and hence, every year they change their room, their books, their cross, and in general whatever is used in the community. This admirable order increased so rapidly, that St. Frances de Chantal had the consolation, before her death, of seeing eighty-seven branches established in France and Savoy. It extended afterwards into Germany, Poland and Italy. To enlarge the sphere of their usefulness, the sisters of the visitation generally devote themselves in part to the instruction of female youth in the virtues and knowledge suited to their sex. They have four convents and houses of education in the United States, viz: at Georgetown, Baltimore, Kaskaskia and near Mobile.

The institution at Georgetown was commenced in 1799, by the Rev. Leonard Neale, who was subsequently archbishop of Baltimore.* Having met with many difficulties in the execution of his design, no particular institute was at first adopted for the ladies who had placed themselves under his spiritual guidance. But, after long and mature deliberation, he fixed upon the order of the visitation, and by a special grant from the Holy Sec, established its observance in his pious community. There are at present 48 professed sisters, 5 novices, 4 postulants and 3 out-sisters in the convent.

Convent of the Visitation of the B. Virgin in Baltimore, Md.

This community, with the Academy under its direction, was founded in November, 1838. Eleven sisters were transferred from the convent of Georgetown, for the purpose of commencing the new establishment, and took possession of the house which they now occupy, at the corner of Green and Mulberry streets. An extensive lot, however, has been lately procured in a select, central and healthy part of the city, on which a spacious and commodious edifice, one hundred and twenty-five feet long, forty-four deep, and four stories high, with a basement, is now rapidly advancing. It is expected that the building will be ready for the reception of the sisters before the summer. They are at present fourteen in number, 11 professed and 3 novices.

LADIES' ACADEMY OF THE VISITATION, B. V. M.

IN BALTIMORE, MD.*

The ladies of the Visitation have lately established an academy for the instruction of young ladies, at the corner of Mulberry and Green streets, in the city of Baltimore. Their discipline and mode of instruction will be the same as at their institution in Georgetown. The course of instruction, commencing from the elements of a junior education, comprises Orthography, Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, Grammar, English Composition, Geography, the use of Maps and Globes, Sacred History, Profane History, Ancient and Modern; Chronology, Mythology, Rhetoric, Philosophy, Popular Astronomy, French and Spanish Languages, Music on the Piano Forte, Harp and Guitar, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting in water colours, Painting on velvet, Plain and Ornamental Needle-work, Tapestry, Lace-work, Bead-work, &c.

The ladies charged with the duties of the academy, will be vigilant in requiring by every mild, yet efficient means, an exact compliance with every rule of the institution, and the forms of polite deportment. Premiums are awarded at the end of the year to the pupils who may have excelled in their respective classes.

The Protestant young ladies attend at the church hours, and are expected to observe the general regulations of exterior worship.

The letters written or received by the young ladies, are examined previously to their delivery. With the approbation of their parents or guardians, they may be allowed to visit once a month; they must, however, have returned before night. The annual vacation commences on the last Thursday of July. The exercises re-commence on the first Monday in September. Age of admission, from 7 to 14 years.

Boarders pay the current charges semi-annually, in advance; day scholars, quarterly. As the recess forms a part of the exercises of the academy, no deduction, on that consideration, is made from the semi-annual and quarterly account. When a quarter has been commenced, the parents become subject to the full expense of board and tuition. Boarders are required to bring with them the ordinary table furniture, consisting of two knives and forks, two silver spoons, a silver tumbler, six table-napkins, and six towels. They are also to be provided with bed and bedding, or pay ten dollars per annum if furnished by the institution. The parents and guardians of the young ladies who reside at a distance, are respectfully requested to designate some correspondent in the city, who will be charged to liquidate their bills when due.

The present number of pupils in the academy, is 59; 11 boarders, 48 day-scholars.

SISTERS OF CHARITY,

ST. JOSEPH'S, NEAR EMMITSBURG, MD.

The society known under the name of the Sisters of Charity, was established in the year 1633, near Paris, by St. Vincent of Paul, with the aid and co-operation of Madame le Gras, a lady of high rank, but still more distinguished for her eminent virtues. She was the first superior general of the society. The mother house is at Paris, where it was fixed in 1641. The intention of St. Vincent in forming this congregation was, to administer relief and comfort to his fellow beings in every department of suffering humanity. "Accordingly, attendance on the sick in hospitals and private families, the visiting of prisons, the education of the poor, and the performance of every work of mercy, engage the attention and solicitude of his pious daughters. Their society is certainly one of the most useful that have ever been established, and has never failed to command universal admiration in those countries in which it was known." Voltaire himself, opposed as he was to every thing that bore the appearance of Christianity, could not refrain from pronouncing its well-merited eulogy. "Perhaps we shall never witness on earth," says this writer, "any thing beyond the sacrifice of youth, of beauty, and frequently of high birth, which is made by these tender females, to assuage in our hospitals, every species of human misery, the very sight of which is so humiliating to our pride and so shocking to our delicacy." The Sisters of Charity soon spread themselves over the different kingdoms of Europe, and towards the close of the last century numbered four hundred and twenty-six establishments, thirty-five of which were in Paris alone. At the time of the French revolution, this number was considerably diminished; but even at the present day, they have upwards of three hundred houses in Europe, containing about two thousand five hundred sisters, continually occupied in relieving the wants of their afflicted fellow creatures.

The first introduction of this excellent institute into the United States, was in the year 1809, at Baltimore, in the state of Maryland. By the zealous exertions of Rev. William Dubourg, then president of St. Mary's College, Mrs. Seaton, a lady of great respectability and a convert to the Catholic faith, and a few companions who, like herself, were desirous of consecrating themselves in a special manner to the service of God and their neighbor, formed themselves into a community, which was removed in 1810 to the site now occupied by the mother-house, near Emmitsburg, the funds for the purchase of a new lot and the erection of a more extensive building, having been furnished by the munificence of Rev. Mr. Cooper, likewise a convert to our holy religion. The rule observed by these sisters, is that framed by St. Vincent of Paul, with a few modifications to adapt it more particularly to the wants and customs of this country. The government of the society is vested in a superiour and vice-superiour, called mother and assistant-mother, and two counsellors, all of whom are elected every three years by a majority of votes. No one can hold the place of mother for more than two terms consecutively. The sisters take simple vows and for one year only, at the end of which they are at liberty to leave the society, if they think proper. No remuneration is made to them for their services in hospitals, charity-schools, &c. except what is barely sufficient for their clothing and to provide for the contingency of sickness. The present superiour of the society, is Mrs. Rose White. At St. Joseph's there are forty-two professed sisters, forty novices and ten postulants. Besides this institution and the academy connected with it, the Sisters of Charity have charge of thirty-five other establishments in different parts of the United States, in which there are one hundred and seventy-nine sisters, many of whom are employed in academies and hospitals, and the remainder in educating gratuitously between two and three thousand poor children and nearly 1000 orphans.

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY.

This Female Seminary is pleasantly situated, in a healthy part of Frederick county, Md. half a mile from Emmitsburg, and two miles from Mt. St. Mary's College. It was incorporated by the legislature of Maryland in 1816. The buildings are convenient and spacious. The present number of pupils is 118.

The Sisters, who conduct the establishment, consider themselves obligated to parents and to their pupils, not only for a christian and virtuous education; but particularly for that intellectual improvement, that refinement of manners, and that physical care, for which the young ladies are particularly confided to them.

cations, or for the remainder of a quarter when a pupil is finally removed before its expiration, unless sickness or some unexpected occurrence requires the removal.

At intervals of six months, accounts will be forwarded to responsible persons; particular arrangements in relation to pupils and to the collecting of their bills, are made when necessary.

All the pupils are required to observe the RULES and REGULATIONS adopted for their improvement and for good order. A mild, firm, motherly and sisterly care watches over the young ladies, at all times and in all places. No visits are received or paid by the pupils, unless authorised by parents. Epistolary correspondence is subject to the same regulation and is liable to the Mother's inspection.

Letters of inquiry may be directed to the Mother Superior, St. Joseph's House, Emmitsburg, Md.

CARMELITE CONVENT, Baltimore.

The Order of the Carmelites is one of the most ancient religious communities in the Church. They received their rule in the year 1209, from Albert, Patriarch of Jerusalem. From Mount Carmel, the place of their institution, the Carmelites soon spread themselves over different parts of Europe, and furnished the Church with many of its most distinguished prelates, orators and writers. The rule, though rigid, is not severe: and experience has proved that it may be observed by persons of a very delicate constitution.

The Carmelites fast eight months in the year, wear woollen clothing, and sleep on straw beds. They never eat flesh meat except in case of sickness, when the physician prescribes the use of it. The sick obtain every comfort the house can afford.

The austerity of their rule having been mitigated by Pope Eugenius IV., the Carmelites were no longer obliged to keep the cloister; but in the 16th century, St. Teresa restored the Order to its primitive discipline.

The community now established in Baltimore, was founded in 1790, by the Rev. Charles Neale, who brought with him from Europe four nuns, three of whom were Americans, and one an English lady. They settled in Charles county, Md., and under the direction of their pious founder, they soon became a flourishing convent. The members of this branch of the Carmelite Order, observe the reformed rule of St. Teresa. They recite the Divine Office, and offer up their daily prayers, fasts, and other good works, for the benefit of souls, the necessities of the Church, and particularly for those who labour in the vineyard of our Lord.

ST. JOHN'S FEMALE BOARDING SCHOOL,

FREDERICK, MARYLAND.

THE Sisters of Charity having erected a large and commodious house in Frederick, in part for an Orphan Asylum, intend devoting certain apartments in it to the accommodation of Boarders, who will be instructed in all that is useful in a plain English education. It is believed that such an institution will be desirable to many of our citizens in this section of the country, as well as those at a distance. The terms being very moderate, will enable parents to give their daughters a useful education, and this without interfering with the liberal patronage extended to other Boarding Schools. The situation of Frederick gives it many advantages—the delightful country which surrounds it, the facilities afforded by the rail road, the uniform good health of the citizens, bespeak for this Institution a share of patronage commensurate to its advantages. The Boarders will be at all times under the immediate care of the Sisters, who will pay strict attention to their morals and propriety of conduct.

REGULATIONS FOR BOARDERS.

No one received for a shorter space of time than six months. The age of admission from 8 to 14 years of age, unless, in extraordinary cases, this rule might be dispensed with. The Boarders not permitted to visit or receive visits without the parents' or guardians' special permission. There are two examinations each year, the one private, the second week in March; the other public at the end of July; after each, bulletins are sent to parents, stating the proficiency, conduct, &c., of their daughters. On the Wednesday after the first Tuesday in August, the distribution of premiums will take place at 9 o'clock, A. M.—from this day, the annual vacation commences, and ends on Monday after the 15th of September—no other vacation during the year. No distinction will be made in the admission of scholars on account of religion.

TERMS.

BOARD and TUITION, as also WASHING and MENDING, per annum, $100.

Doctor's Fees and Medicine, $3 per annum.

MUSIC, DRAWING and FRENCH, will be taught, if required, at the usual prices.

THE MISSES McNALLY'S SEMINARY*For Young Ladies,

N. WEST CORNER OF CHARLES AND CENTRE STS., BALTIMORE.

The Misses McNally, some of them natives of France, and all of them educated in the capital of that country, under the care, and in the house of their father, a member of the University of France, have formed an establishment in Baltimore for the education of a limited number of young ladies under a certain age.

The course of instruction will comprise French, Italian, Music, Piano and Harp, Drawing, Embroidery, Fancy Work and Tapestry, History, Belles-Lettres, Geography, and daily Composition in French.

TERMS.

The entire scheme of instruction, with board, mending, books in the French and Italian languages, the same in Latin and Greek Classics, Stationary, (no extra charges whatever,) per annum, $450.

Pupils have the privilege of omitting, wholly or temporarily, Music, Drawing, Dancing, for which, deductions are made, for Music $100, Drawing $40, Dancing $40 per annum.

SCHOOL FOR COLOURED GIRLS.

UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE SISTERS OF PROVIDENCE.

The Sisters of Providence are a religious society of coloured women, established in Baltimore by Rev. H. Joubert, on the 5th of June, 1829, with the approbation of the Most Reverend Archbishop Whitfield, and acknowledged as such by the Holy See, on the 2d of October, 1831, under the name of Oblates, Sisters of Providence. His Holiness Gregory XVI. has also granted them many spiritual graces and favours. They renounce the world to consecrate themselves to God and the Christian education of coloured girls. The present number of Sisters is 14, besides 3 novices.

The object of this institute is one of great importance; greater, indeed, than might at first appear to those who would only glance at the advantages which it is calculated to impart to a great portion of the human race, and through it, to society at large. In fact, these girls will either become mothers of families, or household servants. In the first case, the solid virtues, the religious and moral principles which they acquired when in this school, will be carefully transferred as a legacy to their children. Instances of the happy influence which the example of virtuous parents has on their remotest lineage, in this humble and naturally dutiful class of society, are numerous. As to such as are to be employed as servants, they will be instructed in domestic concerns, and the care of young children. How important then, will it not be, that these girls should have imbibed religious principles, and have been trained up in habits of modesty, honesty and integrity!

The Sisters of Providence occupy a three-story house, which they have purchased in Richmond street, opposite to Park street, in the north-western section of the city.

Besides the care bestowed on their religious education, girls of colour are taught English, French, Cyphering and Writing, Sewing in all its branches, Embroidery, Washing and Ironing.

TERMS.

For the use of books, day scholars pay annually,	37

Boarders pay an extra charge for books and stationary, the care of the sick, washing and mending—unless parents choose to attend to these objects in person—the whole may be furnished by the school for the sum of $24 annually,—but in case of protracted sickness the doctor's bill is added.

The pupils are to be provided, at their entrance, with bed and bedding—they may be furnished by the Sisters for $8.

During the vacation, the boarders are allowed to remain in the school, and no deduction will be made should they spend it with their parents.

There are at present 56 scholars in the institution; 16 boarders, 40 externs.

CHARITABLE RELIEF SOCIETY,

ESTABLISHED IN BALTIMORE, OCTOBER 1ST. 1827.

"THIS charitable association is placed under the protection of Mary and Martha, two sisters; the one noted for her contemplative piety, the other for her active and solicitous care for the person of our Saviour. It has for its great object, the visiting of the sick, and particularly the poor sick, in order to afford them spiritual assistance and consolation, and as far as in its power temporal relief; and like Mary and Martha, to call for Jesus, and invoke his mercies and favours, when a brother or sister falls sick; "Lord, behold he whom thou lovest is sick. And Jesus loved Martha and her sister Mary, and Lazarus," St. John, xi. 3. The ladies who compose this society, strive to unite the piety of Mary to the activity and zeal of Martha, in order to promote their neighbours' salvation, as well as to increase their own merits in the sight of God."

The association consists, at present, of 70 members.

FEMALE MUTUAL RELIEF SOCIETY.

ESTABLISHED IN BALTIMORE, APRIL 27, 1834.

"Before all things, have a mutual charity among yourselves; for charity covereth a multitude of sins." 1 Peter, ch. iv.

"The principal object of this association, as its name indicates, is to provide for its members a resource in the time of sickness, when those who depend on their own industry for support, are often thrown upon the kindness of friends and acquaintances who are not always able to assist them." Besides the temporal assistance afforded to the members during life, and the means furnished for their decent interment after death, there is a frequent communion of prayers and spiritual exercises enjoined by the rules of the Society, which tends greatly to cherish among them a spirit of charity and true piety. Ladies of any rank in society, provided they are practical Catholics, become entitled to the benefits of the Association, by paying a monthly contribution of 25 cents. The present number of members is between 60 and 70. A house will soon be procured, which will serve as an infirmary for the sick, and also as a temporary residence for such as have no employment.

LADIES' ORPHAN SOCIETY,

ESTABLISHED IN BALTIMORE IN 1831.

This association, at its commencement, was known under the name of the Sewing Society; but it has lately adopted that of the Ladies' Orphan Society. Its object is one of a most benevolent character, to aid the funds of "St. Mary's Female Orphan Asylum and Free School," in Franklin street. "The principal contributors are young ladies of taste and ingenuity, who devote a portion of their time to the execution of fancy work of every description," for the benefit of that institution. Any lady who pays one dollar annually, is considered a member of the society.— Since its establishment, the ladies have held three fairs, the proceeds of which, with the profits accruing from the sale of fancy articles, have given to the Asylum an average sum of 1000 dollars per annum.

CALVERT MALE BENEFICIAL SOCIETY

OF BALTIMORE, INSTITUTED IN APRIL, 1835.

The object of this association, is to afford relief to its members, when prevented by sickness from pursuing their ordinary occupations, and to provide after their death for the assistance of their widows and orphans.

TOBIAS SOCIETY.

ESTABLISHED IN BALTIMORE, JANUARY 1, 1828.

"Tobias daily went among all his kindred, and comforted them, and distributed to every one as he was able out of his goods. He fed the hungry, and gave clothes to the naked, and was careful to bury the dead, and they that were slain." Tobias, ch. i. 19, 20.

This charitable association has for its object the decent burial of Catholic coloured persons. It is governed by excellent regulations tending to the practice of religion and the special exercise of fraternal charity.

Mutual Relief Societies for Coloured Persons in Baltimore.

The monthly contributions of those who belong to these societies, form a fund which is applied to the relief of the members in the time of sickness, and after death, to the payment of their funeral expenses. There are two institutions of this kind among the Catholic coloured people of Baltimore.

DIOCESS OF RICHMOND.

The diocese of Richmond, which comprises the State of Virginia, was created in the year 1820, and the Rev. Patrick Kelly, a native of Ireland, and President of Birchfield College, near Kilkenny, was appointed its first bishop.—Soon after his consecration, he hastened to America where he laboured indefatigably for the welfare of his flock.

Having been selected, in consideration of his declining health and great merits, to fill the sees of Waterford and Lismore, which had been some time vacant, he returned to Ireland in July, 1822, and continued to discharge with zeal the duties of the episcopal station. He died on the 8th of October, 1829. Since the translation of bishop Kelly to Ireland, the diocese of Richmond has been under the charge of the archbishop of Baltimore.

FEMALE ACADEMIES.

ST. VINCENT'S FEMALE BENEVOLENT SCHOOL,*

MARTINSBURG, VA.

THIS School, under the care of three sisters of charity, was established at Martinsburg, Berkely county, Va., in January, 1838. The location of the town, is in a remarkably healthy part of the country, and the site of the Academy is unquestionably the most desirable in the borough. The buildings are really fine and commodious, in a retired situation, and protected by lofty trees, which afford the children every convenience for healthy amusements in the extensive enclosure by which they are surrounded.

To implant moral and religious principles, together with the rudiments of science and literature, was the primary object of its foundation. To exhibit "religious communities" in their true colours, and remove the veil of misrepresentation from the eyes of such as are not determined to remain wilfully and obstinately blind on this subject, was a second motive. Framed for these purposes, the school has been rendered easy of access by reducing the charge for day scholars to the very moderate sum of $3 entrance per annum, and 12½ cents monthly, in advance; for boarders, to $90 per annum, payable always half yearly in advance. No distinction is made among the pupils on account of poverty or religion; but to guard the character of the institution, and the morals of its pupils, no one from a distance will be received, without satisfactory testimonials of previous good conduct; nor is any day scholar admitted, unless the reputation of both parent and child stand fair. Order and uniformity require that all assist at the exercises of public prayer and religious worship with respectful demeanor. The discipline of the school is that of a well regulated family, combining firmness with affection. To excite emulation, weekly tickets are given to the most deserving: the classes are monthly inspected, and twice during the year an examination will take place in the presence of such of the parents as reside in the neighbourhood.

Each boarder is required to bring with her a sufficient supply of clothing for the season, with at least four towels; and if parents desire that their further wants in this particular be supplied by the directress of the school, they will please leave on deposit a sum sufficient for the purpose. Books will be furnished on terms as moderate as possible, and it is preferred for many reasons, that they be purchased at the school. The annual vacation commences on the 1st of July, and the duties of the school are resumed on the 1st of August. During the recess, and at no other time, are children from a distance allowed to leave the school; and no deduction is ever made for such absence, as the expenses of the Institution must continue, and it is optional with the parents to take their children home, or leave them with the "sisters." Nor is any deduction whatever, made, in case a child leave school after having commenced a quarter. The system of instruction embraces Spelling, Reading, Writing, Grammar, Composition, Arithmetic, Geography, History, Philosophy, and Fancy Needle and Bead work, and Tapestry.

ST. VINCENT OF PAUL'S SEMINARY,*

AT LAFARGEVILLE, JEFFERSON COUNTY, NEW YORK.

This seminary, the exercises of which will commence on the 20th inst. is situated on the main road from Watertown to French Creek, about three quarters of a mile from the village of Lafargeville. The location is pleasant, healthy, and retired; peculiarly favorable to that attention of mind to the objects of study, which in every period of life is the great secret of success in the acquisition of knowledge. On the other hand, a vigorous state of the body, besides forming the constitution of future life, is almost essential to the student for the sustainment of those mental exertions which the acquirement of education demands. As contributing to this, it may be mentioned, that the ample grounds attached to St. Vincent's Seminary, will afford in the free, pure air, every opportunity for those bracing exercises of body, which will develope and invigorate the frame of the student, without exposing him to any contact or intercourse with vicious associations. In their recreations, as well as at study, the boys will be under the care and inspection of a Prefect.

The course of studies will embrace all the branches that are usually taught in such institutions of learning: English Reading, Grammar, Writing, Composition, Rhetoric and Poetry; History, Geography, and the use of the Globes; Mathematics, with practical applications to Surveying, Mensuration, and Drawing Maps; Natural and Moral Philosophy; Greek, Latin, French, German, Spanish and Italian.

As the object for which this seminary is established is not so much to realize profit, as to bring the advantages of a good education within the reach of a larger number, no pains shall be spared to forward the pupils in their studies, and thus secure the object in view. The better to accomplish this, the number of professors will be increased in the proportion of one to ten pupils. The seminary will commence with six professors, Rev. Francis Guth, Rev. Mr. Moran, Rev. Mr. Haes, with three tutors highly competent by character and acquirements to the business of teaching.

Pupils of every religious denomination are admissible. No interference will be had with the faith of any that are not Catholics; but as distinction of sects in the seminary would be subversive of order and harmony, so essential in a house of education, all shall be required to conform to the public religious observances of the house, which are Catholic.

No boy, who has been expelled from any other seminary of learning, can be admitted at St. Vincent's.

The government will be strict and firm, but at the same time, mild and paternal. Corporeal chastisements shall not be used, except in cases of violent resistance on the part of the pupil. Unconquerable indolence, or insubordination that cannot be remedied by moral correctives, shall be followed by a request from the superior to the parent or guardian to withdraw the subject, which request all will consider themselves as bound by the terms of admission to attend to. The last measure of punishment is the expulsion of the pupil from the seminary.

The duty of observing the rules, and of respectful obedience to the authority of the superior and teachers, is to be recognized by the parents and guardians, as well as the pupils. No student can be allowed to dispense with, or violate any of those rules, without the special permission of the superior.

The academic year will commence on the 16th of September, and close on the 31st of July.

No pupil can be admitted for a period of less than one year—and the expenses of each must be paid semi-annually, in advance. Each student must be provided with two summer, and two winter suits, besides an over-coat. He should have, also, at least half a dozen of shirts, half a dozen pairs of stockings, half a dozen of towels, and such other articles of dress and clothing as will serve him from year to year. If it be required that the seminary should provide him with these articles, money must be left in the hands of the procurator for that purpose. Pocket-money, also, if allowed, must be left in the same way to be given out as the parent or guardian may direct.

TERMS:

(SEMI-ANNUALLY, IN ADVANCE.)

Boarding, tuition, use of bedding, and doctor's fees per annum, - - - - - $112 00
 Washing and mending, - - - - - 8 00
 Books and stationery will be furnished by the seminary, at cost.

The modern foreign languages, for those who study them, will form an extra charge of $10 per annum, each.

The abundance and comparative cheapness of provisions in the neighborhood of the seminary, will, it is hoped, enable the superior to afford boarding and tuition at the above moderate prices. Should he be disappointed in this respect, by the experience of the first year, those interested will be advised of any change that may be made, before the commencement of the second. Applications for the admission of pupils may be made to the "Superior of St. Vincent's Seminary, near Lafargeville," or through any of the Catholic clergymen in the city, or throughout the state of New York.

Connected with this institution is an ecclesiastical seminary, in which there are nine theological students.

DIOCESS OF BOSTON.

The diocese of Boston, which embraces all the New England States, viz: Massachusetts, Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Connecticut, was established in 1808, by Pius VII., and the Rev. John Cheverus, at that time associated with the Rev. Dr. Matignon in the pastoral care of the Boston congregation, was appointed its first bishop. Upon his translation to the see of Montauban, in France, the Right Rev. Benedict Fenwick was charged with the government of the Diocese. He was consecrated by the Most Rev. Ambrose Marechal, in the cathedral of Baltimore, on the 1st of November, 1825.

It lies in Penobscot co. in township No. 2, fifth range, between the Salmon and Moluncas rivers. The object of this purchase was to induce those among the Irish Catholics, who were desirous of purchasing small farms of from 50 to 100 acres, to settle together, as they could thus be more easily provided with a priest, and enjoy the benefits of their religion. The settlement promises well, and consists at the present time, of about thirty or forty families;—and is daily increasing. The soil is of first rate quality, and the situation exceedingly healthy.

VERMONT.

BURLINGTON—St. Mary's Church, alas! is now no more! This beautiful edifice, erected by the contributions of the faithful, only a few years ago, was set on fire during the night of the 11th of May, 1838, by a band of fanatics in hatred of the Catholic religion, and reduced to ashes! The Catholics of this district, 1000 in number, have now no place of worship in which they can assemble to pray, even, for their persecutors! How long in a country, called free, is this state of things to continue?

The citizens of the town of Burlington called a public meeting and appointed a committee to inquire into this unwarrantable act, and to report. They did inquire, and in their inquiry found out more than they thought it prudent to report. The fact is they will never report. O land of freedom! shall we say that the respectable inhabitants connived at this horrid outrage, and that it is consequently a stain upon the entire city and country?

The Rev. Jeremiah O'Callighan, for the present, officiates in a poor humble private house. He has to visit a large district of country—in a portion of which the Catholics are both numerous and respectable.

Castleton.—A neat property has been here purchased for the celebration of the divine mysteries. The Rev. John B. Daly attends the Catholics in this vicinity, as well as those at Pittsford, Middlebury, Poultney, Wallingford, Bellows-Falls, and Claremont, N. H.

GERMAN CONGREGATION.

This congregation has existed only for a few years. It consists at present of about sixty or seventy families. They have as yet no church of their own; but are allowed by the bishop to assemble in the cathedral of the Holy Cross, between the hours of eight and ten on Sundays.

INSTITUTIONS.

MOUNT ST. JAMES',

WORCESTER, MASS.

This institution is situated on a most delightful eminence which bounds the flourishing town of Worcester on the south, called by the Indians, (it being the site of their former village,) Pakachoag, or "hill of pleasant springs."

This eminently healthful location, which, as a seat of learning, is not surpassed by any spot in New England, is within a few moments walk of the centre of Worcester, and junction of the rail-roads from Boston, Albany, and New York. Attached to the institution is a farm comprising about sixty acres of excellent land.

The course of instruction comprises all the branches of a sound, correct, and practical English and classical education, the same as is pursued in all other similar establishments throughout the country.

When the pupils are well grounded in the essential rudiments of Spelling, Reading, and Grammar, they proceed, according to the time they are to remain, to Writing, Arithmetic, Book-keeping, Geography, Ancient and Modern History, Composition, Astronomy, &c. &c.

Every attention is taken to impress on the minds of the pupils, the importance of virtue, and due attendance to their various religious and moral duties. As the care of health is also of great importance in every well regulated university of learning, the students of this institution are, during pleasant weather, occasionally employed from one to two hours per day in some manual exercise, thus to invigorate their bodies and render them fit for their avocations in after life. They are at all times, as well when permitted to go abroad, as during the time allotted to recreation, under the vigilant care of a prefect.

The quarterly terms commence on the first of January, April, July, and October. There are two examinations in the year: the first on the last Thursday of March, the second on the first Monday in August, when there is a vacation, during which the pupils may visit their parents, if requested, till the first of September, when all return to recommence their studies.

The expenses for boarding, lodging, washing, mending, and tuition, and for the use of books, pens, ink, paper, slates and pencils, are eighty-five dollars per annum, to be paid semi-annually or quarterly in advance; and to those who pursue a classical course, there is an extra charge of five dollars per quarter, and the expense of finding their own classical books.

Each student, who, upon entrance, should have completed his eighth year, must be provided with two suits of wearing apparel, one of which should consist of a round blue cloth jacket and pantaloons, together with a cloak or overcoat for winter. All articles of clothing will be provided by the bursar, if required, as cheap as can be purchased at Boston, or New York.

The expense for young gentlemen farther advanced in life, of whom there are a number who attend during the fall and winter months, is twenty-seven dollars per quarter, which is the entire charge for boarding, washing, tuition, stationary, fuel, &c.

All communications to be directed to

REV. JAMES FITTON, Pres't.

N. B. The most direct route to the institution from the South, is by the steamboat from New York to Norwich in summer, and New London in winter; whence, by the Norwich and Worcester rail-road, a pleasant journey is made in a few hours.

URSULINE CONVENT OF MOUNT BENEDICT,

CHARLESTOWN, MASS.

About the middle of the fifth century, when the Pagan Saxons devastated the kingdom of Britain, many of its inhabitants fled for refuge into a part of Gaul, then called Armorica, but subsequently Little Britain. Others took shelter in the Netherlands, and formed a settlement near the mouth of the Rhine. Among the number of these holy pilgrims, were St. Ursula and her companions, who endured a glorious martyrdom in defence of their virtue, cheerfully becoming victims to the exterminating ferocity of the Huns, rather than submit to the infamous rites and abominable practices of heathenism.

St. Ursula, who was the model and guide of these holy virgins, and led them so triumphantly through the contest they were destined to sustain for the cause of religion, has long been regarded as a model and patroness of those who undertake the christian instruction of young females. To commemorate her heroic virtues, and imitate, as far as practicable, her edifying example, many religious establishments have been founded throughout the christian world.*

In the year 1537, a society of twenty-seven members was formed at Brescia, in Lombardy, by Angela Merici, a pious lady of that city, for the purposes of applying particularly to their own sanctification, administering relief to the sick and afflicted, and superintending the education of female youth. It was the desire of the community that they should adopt the name of their blessed foundress;† but to this she would by no means consent, prevailing on them to take the name, and invoke in a special manner the patronage of St. Ursula, who had been the leader of so many generous virgins in the paths of christian perfection. This institute was approved by Paul III. in 1544, under the name of the society of Ursulines; and in 1572, St. Charles Borromeo procured from Gregory XIII. a renewed confirmation of the society, by which it became a religious order, and its members were obliged to keep the cloister. Many of the cities of Italy, Switzerland, and Flanders, encouraged and obtained the services of these excellent women. Towards the close of the sixteenth century, an establishment of Ursulines was formed at Aix, in Provence, with the permission of Clement VIII. and shortly after, two of these ladies were sent to Paris, for the purpose of regulating an establishment that had been recently founded by Madame de Ste. Beuve, a lady of high birth and distinguished piety. In June 1612, the congregation at Paris was declared by Paul V. a religious order under the rule of St. Augustin, and the members were bound to enclosure, and by the usual solemn vows, to which they added a fourth, requiring them to educate young persons of their sex. From this house sprang most of the Ursuline establishments that were subsequently formed in France and other places. Notwithstanding the privileges granted to these associations by Gregory XIII. and Paul V., many houses of the Ursuline rule still adhered to their original discipline, and took only simple vows. The Ursulines of Chavagnes, founded in 1805, who have several institutions in France, appear to be governed by regulations very similar to those at first introduced by St. Angela. They visit and nurse poor sick people, and devote themselves to the education and gratuitous instruction of young females.

* See Discourse of the Right Rev. Dr. England, on the occasion of giving the habit of the Ursuline order to a young lady.

† She was canonized by Pius VII. in 1807.

At the commencement of the seventeenth century, a colony of Ursulines originally from a congregation formed at Bordeaux, by archbishop De Sourdis, zealously undertook to establish their institute at Quebec in L. Canada, and subsequently some of the sisters from Paris uniting with them in their project, they by common consent adopted the Parisian obedience, and after many severe trials, succeeded in creating a highly respectable institution.

About a century since, another monastery of Ursulines of a different congregation was formed at New Orleans, and upon the transfer of Louisiana to the United States, it was guaranteed the protection of its rights and property. During the attack and defence of that city, when the British were repulsed by the American troops, under the command of General Jackson, the ladies of this establishment, with a self-devotion, which the ex-president has frequently eulogized, gave the most efficient aid, especially in furnishing such supplies and assistance as they could command, for the solace and comfort of our wounded soldiers. Since that period, they have removed to a commodious and elegant monastery, about two miles below the city of New Orleans, where they have a flourishing academy for the education of young ladies.

In December 1834, an Ursuline institution was commenced at Charleston, South Carolina, by the zealous exertions of the Rt. Rev. Dr. England. Finding in his diocese no institution for female education, that combined so many advantages as he knew could be united in an establishment of this order, he for some years solicited the assistance of the Ursulines near Cork, in Ireland. At length his request was acceded to, and a convent was founded in Charleston, consisting of three professed nuns, and a young lady who was soon after admitted as a novice in the order. Connected with the convent is an academy for female youth.

The community of Ursulines alluded to in the title of this article, was formed in 1820, by the late Cardinal de Cheverus, at that time Bishop of Boston. Rev. John Thayer, a Presbyterian clergyman of Massachusetts, who afterwards embraced the Catholic religion, and was ordained for the ministry of the church, had strenuously endeavored to procure the means of establishing a house of this order in his native state, and at his death, left the funds he had amassed for this purpose in the hands of the Rev. Dr. Matignon and Bishop Cheverus. The Bishop fulfilled the trust reposed in him, by establishing in the city of Boston a colony of Ursulines from the monastery of Quebec. From the confined premises on which the convent was originally located, the ladies removed in 1826, to Charlestown, and occupied the farm-house at the foot of Mount Benedict, until the main building on its summit was finished in the year 1827.

In the mean time, the reputation of their academy for female education was widely extended, and the number of pupils from all the New England and many of the Southern states and the British provinces, rapidly increased, so that in the year 1829, it was found necessary to add two large wings to the building for their accommodation. Such was the prosperous condition of this beautiful and highly useful establishment, when it was destroyed by a Protestant mob on the night of the 11th August, 1834. Its ruins "still blacken the vicinity of Bunker's hill, and cast a dark shade upon the soil of Massachusetts."

The ladies of this institution removed, shortly after the destruction of their convent, to the city of Quebec, where, during the last three years, they enjoyed the hospitality of the good Ursulines of that city. But having lately returned to Boston, they occupy a large and convenient house, which they have opened as a Young Ladies' Academy. In this a select number only of boarders is received, but any number of externs will be admitted to enjoy the benefits of the school, which is conducted upon the same plan that was so successfully pursued on Mount Benedict, and which embraces all the various branches of a polite education, together with the usual accomplishments of music, drawing, painting, &c.

COLLEGES, CONVENTS AND SCHOOLS.

ST. PHILIP'S COLLEGE—Cote du Nord-est.

Near Detroit, Michigan,

UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE

RT. REV. DR. REZE, BISHOP OF DETROIT.

The course of instruction pursued in this college will embrace the Latin, Greek, French, and English languages, Poetry, Rhetoric and Oratory—Reading, Writing, Geography, Mathematics and Book-keeping. A favorable opportunity to become well conversant with the French language, will be found in the intercourse with the pupils, whose native tongue is French.

The price of the scholastic year is fixed at the moderate sum of 100 dollars; including board and tuition, payable quarterly in advance. Washing, mending, medical attendance and medicine, at the expense of the parents. No deduction will be made for absence except in cases of protracted sickness or dismissal, neither in consequence of a student's leaving the College before the end of the quarter.

Rev. J. DE BRUGN, President of Studies.

ST. ANN'S HIGH SCHOOL.

DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

This school or seminary, under the patronage of the Rt. Rev. Dr. Rézé, bishop of Detroit, is superintended by William McDonagh, late principal of the English, Classic and Mathematical Academy, Great ship street, Dublin.

Youth are here speedily, yet solidly prepared for College, for mercantile or professional pursuits, and the strictest attention is paid to the formation of their morals and manners.

English, so difficult of attainment, to those unacquainted with its idiom, is facilitated "in transitu," by grammatical analysis, and proper pronunciation of the language.

Composition and Declamation are practised at stated periods—the varieties of style pointed out, and oratorical action and delivery exemplified and elucidated.

In Penmanship, peculiar pains are taken in tracing its various forms, whether plain, angular, text or ornamental; whilst Geography, that delightful study, is illustrated by the best maps and the use of the globes.

With these subjects, the system embraces, Arithmetic, both mental and by figures—Book-keeping by single and double entry—Euclid's Elements of Geometry, with other consecutive and useful branches of Mathematics. Ancient and Modern History, Natural and Moral Philosophy, Botany, French, the Greek and Latin classics, and, in a word, every thing calculated to form the character of the scholar, the gentleman and the christian.

In performing this arduous, though "delightful task," of rendering the rising pupil useful to society, and happy in himself—the Principal calls for the co-operation of parents and guardians, to quicken the child's diligence in his studies at home, and cause his prompt attendance at school hours; whilst on his part and that of his assistants, he pledges himself to devote all that attention and assiduity to the duties of his avocation, which their importance and his experience tell him they demand.

TERMS.—For the English course, viz. Orthography, Reading, Grammar, Geography, Writing, Arithmetic, Composition and Declamation—$5 per quarter.

For Greek and Latin, with the above items, as also Book-keeping, Geometry, and the higher branches adverted to above, $8 per quarter. French, $4 per quarter.

Fuel one shilling per month during the cold season.

☞ Payments to be made quarterly in advance. No deduction for absent days, unless those occasioned by sickness.

Further particulars to be known by applying to Mr. McDonagh, at the school-house, which is situated on the French church lot, corner of Randolph street and Michigan avenue; or to the Right Rev. prelate, the very Rev. Mr. Badin, Rev. Mr. O'Cavanagh, Gen. John R. Williams, or Hon. Judge McDonel.

ECCLESIASTICAL, RELIGIOUS, CLASSICAL, AND CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS.

The ECCLESIASTICAL SEMINARY of St. Francis Xavier, at Cincinnati, has for its object to educate young gentlemen for the service of the church. It contains at present fourteen students, under the direction of Rev. Joseph Stokes.

CONVENT OF DOMINICANS, at St. Joseph's near Somerset, Perry co. The following gentlemen reside here: Rev. N. D. Young, Prior, Rev. J. H. Clarkson, Rev. George J. Wilson, Rev. A. F. Van de Weyer.

There is a college now in progress of building on the Convent grounds, which will soon be finished, and will afford young gentlemen as many facilities for acquiring a thorough English, Classical and Mathematical education, as are enjoyed in other literary institutions of the Union. The prospectus of this establishment will be published next year.

CINCINNATI ATHENÆUM.

A good education is universally considered the greatest blessing which a parent can confer upon his child. It prepares him to occupy, at a more mature age, a useful if not conspicuous station in society, and to hold in proper estimation those social duties he will be required to fulfil. We can say with confidence, that unceasing efforts have been and shall continue to be made, to secure to the pupils of the Athenæum this advantage.

The collegiate course embraces the Greek, Latin, English, German, French and Spanish languages. Special attention will be given to the various branches of Mathematics, Elocution, History, Writing, Geography, the use of the Globes, and in general to whatever is usually considered essential to a complete course of English studies. As the study of the Latin language will not interfere with the acquisition of these branches, we trust that every pupil will be permitted to obtain a knowledge of the ancient classics. The brilliant works of the ancient philosophers, historians, orators and poets, have preserved their lustre through all preceding ages; they diversify the labour of study, by their elegance of conception and purity of diction, and are universally admitted to be a correct standard of taste; while the methodical arrangement of thought and the judicious distribution of time, which a regular course produces enables the youthful mind to learn many things simultaneously, without confusion or embarrassment of its ideas. We hope, therefore, that these sources of elegant, polite and useful knowledge, will not be sealed to the pupils of the Athenæum, by an unenlightened preference for what is falsely termed the useful to the ornamental.

A new and splendid philosophical apparatus has been lately imported from Paris for the use of the college.

THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

AT VINCENNES.

The Rev. gentlemen of this institution and the college attached to it, are members of the Society of Eudists. This is a congregation of clergymen established in 1643, at Caen, in France, by Rev. John Eudes, whose object was to form young men for the clerical state, and supply the church with zealous missionaries. Before the French revolution, the Eudists were about 100 in number, and had the charge of fifteen seminaries in France. Dispersed at that period of anarchy and persecution, they united again in 1826, under the direction of Abbé Blanchard, whom they elected their superior general. The seminary and college at Vincennes were founded in 1837, by the Rt. Rev. S. Bruté. There are six students in the seminary.

COLLEGE OF VINCENNES.

This new institution was founded by the Right Rev. Dr. Bruté, and it is hoped will obtain a due share of the esteem that other Catholic colleges have uniformly enjoyed throughout the United States. Dr. Bruté was formerly president of St. Mary's college, in Baltimore; afterwards the superior of the ecclesiastical seminary attached to the college of St. Mary's, near Emmitsburg, so long under the care of Dr. Dubois, now bishop of New York. When he was appointed to the newly erected see of Vincennes, it was expected that some institution would be established under his direction in that town, so favorably situated for education and the cultivation of literature and the sciences.—The first attempt to meet the desire of his special friends and of his fellow-citizens, is now making. As usual, it is under many untried difficulties; the bishop, however, is confident that success may at least sufficiently justify the undertaking, and knowing the abilities, intentions, and devotedness to duty, with which his friends begin their task, he recommends their enterprise with honest earnestness, and trusts to Providence and parents for its greater future development.

The exercises of the college begin on the first Monday in September. Virtue as well as knowledge being the object of a sound education, the discipline of the college will be mild and parental, but all its rules properly maintained. Boarders will not be admitted more than fifteen years old, or less than ten, nor from other institutions without proper testimony.

As for the religious exercises of the house, the pupils will all be required to attend them, as it is necessary for the good order of the house; but there will be no interference with their liberty of conscience. The course of instruction will embrace successively, all the branches of classical education. Competent teachers are secured.

DIOCESS OF DUBUQUE.

This diocese which comprises Iowa Territory, was created by his present Holiness on the 28th of July, 1837, and the Very Rev. Mathias Loras, Vic. Gen. of Mobile, was appointed its first bishop. He was consecrated at that place on the 10th of December of the same year, by the Rt. Rev. M. Portier, assisted by the Rt. Rev. A. Blanc.

The only church in this diocese is that of St. Raphael's at Dubuque. The Rt. Rev. Mathias Loras has just arrived from Europe with two priests, Rev. Joseph Cretin and Rev. John Anthony Pelamourgues, and four sub-deacons, prepared to enter upon the important mission confided to his care.

DIOCESS OF ST. LOUIS.

The Diocese of St. Louis embraces the state and territory of Missouri, the state of Arkansas, and the Western moiety of the state of Illinois. It was established by Pope Leo XII. on the 14th of July, 1826, and the Rt. Rev. Joseph Rosati, Bishop of Tenagre, and Coadjutor of Right Rev. William Dubourg, was appointed to the See on the 27th of March, 1827. He was consecrated on the 25th of March, 1824.

ECCLESIASTICAL INSTITUTIONS.

ST. MARY'S THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY,

AT THE BARRENS, PERRY CO. MO.

This institution was commenced in 1818, by the zealous exertions of the Rt. Rev. William L. Dubourg, at that time bishop of New Orleans, who placed it under the direction of the Lazarists or priests of the mission: Since its establishment, it has furnished a considerable number of clergymen for the holy ministry in different diocesses of the U. States. The present number of students is 22, eight of whom attend the class of divinity, five that of philosophy, and nine are engaged in their preparatory studies. The following are the Rev. gentlemen attached to the seminary:

Very Rev. John Timon, C. M. Superiour.

Rev. Joseph Paquin, C. M. Assistant.

Rev. John B. Tornatore, C. M. Prof. of Divinity and S. Scripture.

Rev. Joseph Mignard, C. M. Professor of Philosophy.

Rev. B. Rolando, C. M. Prof. of Sacred Liturgy and Ceremonies.

Rev. Donatian Olivier, aged 94.

Novitiate of the Congregation of the Mission,

AT THE BARRENS.

The Congregation of the Mission was established by St. Vincent of Paul, at Paris, in 1626. The object of this illustrious benefactor of mankind in founding this society, was to afford instruction to the country people, to form young men for the holy ministry, to assist and redeem those who were held in slavery on the Barbarian coast, and to furnish missionaries for the conversion of infidels. It was confirmed by Urban VIII. in 1632. The community having removed from their first location to the priory of St. Lazarus, the priests of the mission were from this circumstance commonly called Lazarists. Before the year 1792, when all religious institutions in France were destroyed, as far as human impiety could contribute to their abolition, the Lazarists had the charge of forty-nine seminaries in that kingdom, and had established houses of ecclesiastical education or missionary stations in various parts of the world. At present they have several seminaries and colleges in Europe, and render immense services to religion by their numerous missions in Asia Minor and the East Indies. They have two seminaries in the United States. Their principal house is at Paris.

The priests of the mission commenced their labours on this side of the Atlantic, in the year 1818, when they were charged by the Rt. Rev. William L. Dubourg, with the direction of his diocesan seminary and college, in Perry co. Missouri, and were placed at various points for the exercise of the holy ministry. The community in Missouri, numbers at present upwards of sixteen priests, who devote themselves to the performance of the same duties, five novices under the direction of Rev. Bartholomew Rolando, four students and seven lay brothers. Besides the gentlemen above named, there are at the Barrens, Rev. John Odin, C. M. Procurator of the Community.

" John Rosti, C. M.

" Joachim Alabau, C. M.

" John B. Escoffier, C. M.

Novitiate of the Society of Jesus, at Florissant, St. Louis county, Missouri.

The Fathers of the Society of Jesus began their labours in Missouri, in the year 1823, at the solicitation of the Rt. Rev. Wm. L. Dubourg, who provided an establishment for the commencement of the mission, at Florissant, sixteen miles from St. Louis. Shortly after, they opened a college in this place for the education of Indian youths, bishop Dubourg having obtained the partial co-operation of government in this important and benevolent undertaking. They also established a Novitiate at Florissant, and formed a separate province of their society. Subsequently, in 1829, they took charge of the college at St. Louis, and at a still later period, they opened similar institutions in Kentucky and Louisiana.

The present number of novices at Florissant is sixteen. The clergymen who reside there are Rev. Joseph Van Assche, S. J. Master of Novices, and Rev. John L. Gleizal, S. J.

COLLEGES.

ST. MARY'S COLLEGE,

BARRENS, PERRY COUNTY, MISSOURI.

Conducted by the Priests of the Mission. V. Rev. J. Timon, Prest.

The neighborhood in which this college is situated ranks among the most healthy in the west. A high, rolling country, salubrious air, and ample space for exercise, will, through the paternal vigilance of the tutors, ensure and fortify the health of the youthful student.

The course of instruction embraces Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, Geography, use of the Globes, Book-keeping, History, Poetry, Algebra, Geometry, Theoretical and Practical Surveying, Astronomy, Moral and Natural Philosophy, Chemistry; the French, Spanish, German, Italian, Latin and Greek languages. The Faculty being empowered to confer degrees, exact the same conditions from the candidate for academic honors as are exacted in other Colleges or Universities; but they freely admit young gentlemen, who, seeking but a commercial education, do not wish to study the Latin and Greek languages, and who do not graduate. The professor for each of the modern languages, named above, will be one for whom that language is his mother tongue, and who speaks it in its utmost purity.

The terms, including boarding, tuition, washing, mending, doctor's fees, and use of library, are $150 per annum, payable half yearly in advance. Should parents wish their children to be furnished by the college with clothing, bed, and bedding, &c., they will please to deposite in the hands of the treasurer, a sum sufficient to meet the probable expense. Half-yearly communications on the health and progress of the pupils will be addressed to parents or guardians. The scholastic year begins on the 2d of November, and ends on the 26th of September. The present number of students in the college is ninety-seven; eighty-eight boarders, nine externs.

ST. LOUIS UNIVERSITY.

MISSOURI.

This literary establishment was incorporated by an act of the Legislature of the state, on the 28th of December, 1832, under the name and style of the "St. Louis University," and empowered to distinguish merit by literary honours and rewards, and generally, to have and enjoy all the powers, rights and privileges usually exercised by literary institutions of the same rank.

PLAN OF INSTRUCTION.

The course of instruction embraces both a mercantile and classical education, but so conducted, that the student may apply himself to either or both of these, according to his destination or the desire of his parents.

The Mercantile Department embraces Reading, Writing, the English and French Languages, Poetry, Rhetoric, History, Geography, Mythology, Book-keeping, Arithmetic, Algebra, Geometry, the use of the Globes, Trigonometry, Mensuration and Surveying.

The Classical Department, besides the above specified subjects, comprises the Latin and Greek languages, Logic, Metaphysics, Moral and Natural Philosophy, and the higher branches of the Mathematics.

The Spanish, if required, is taught to the students of both departments, without any additional charge.

The English is the ordinary language of communication in all the classes, the French and Spanish excepted; but the students speak French and English indiscriminately, during the hours of recreation.

TERMS.

The terms, including all the branches above specified, as also washing, mending, doctor's fees and stationary, payable half yearly in advance, are $150 per annum, and $10 entrance. Music, drawing, and extraordinary attendance during sickness, form extra charges. Medicines and school-books are furnished at store prices.

Should the parents wish to have the washing and mending done at home, a deduction will be made of $15 per annum; and should they wish to employ a physician different from the one in attendance, or run the risk of paying a full bill, a deduction of $4 per annum will be made; and $6 will be deducted if the stationary be furnished by the parents.

Half-boarders are received at the rate of $75 per annum, and $5 entrance. They breakfast, dine and study at the University.

No deduction is made for absence, except in case of sickness or dismissal.

The following are the Rev. gentlemen in the Institution:

Rev. Peter J. Verhægen, S. J. Superior of the mission of the Society of Jesus in Missouri, and President of the Faculty of Arts and Board of Trustees.

Rev. John A. Elet, S. J. Rector of the University, and Vice President of the Faculty.

Rev. James Van de Velde, S. J. Vice-Rector and Chancellor.

Rev. Theodore De Theux, S. J. Prof. of Dogm. and Mor. Theol. and Treasurer of the Board.

Rev. George A. Carrell, S. J. Prof. of Rhetoric and Belles-Lettres, and Secretary of the Faculty.

Rev. Joseph Van Swevelt, S. J. Prof. of Mathem. and Nat. Philosophy.

Rev. Aloysius M. Pin, S. J. Prof. of Metaphysics and Chemistry.

Rev. John B. Emig, S. J. Prof. of Ancient Languages.

Rev. Gerard Aelen, S. J. Prof. of Modern Languages.

Rev. Bartholomew Krynen, S. J. Prof. of Languages and Librarian.

Rev. Peter Verheyden, S. J. Prof. of Architecture and Drawing.

Rev. Theodore De Leeuw, S. J. Chaplain.

There are moreover seven scholastics, who are employed as assistant tutors, while they pursue the study of divinity, and eight lay-brothers for the various domestic departments. At the late commencement, the number of boarders was 136, of externs, 24.

SCHOOLS.

St. Louis Catholic Day School, containing 80 scholars, under the care of Messrs. McDonald and Bartelet. These gentlemen follow under the direction of the Rt. Rev. bishop, a rule similar to that of religious communities devoted to the instruction of youth. They are willing to associate with themselves any young men of good conduct, who have a vocation to join them in their pious undertaking. They hope to obtain from one of the communities of France some good and experienced brothers, and it is their intention to adopt their Institute, and propagate it amongst us with the blessings of a solid and virtuous education. The Rt. Rev. Prelates and Rev. Pastors of the different dioceses in the Union, are earnestly solicited to encourage this institution, by fostering the vocation of such young men as might be called to that state of life, and directing them to St. Louis.

Catholic Day School, at St. Charles, Mo. Michael Hoey, S. J. Teacher. Number of pupils 50.

CONVENTS AND ACADEMIES FOR YOUNG LADIES.

LADIES OF THE SACRED HEART.

The religious congregation that bears this name, was established about the commencement of the present century, and is governed by a rule formed upon that of the Society of Jesus. The members of this community devote themselves particularly to the polite education of young ladies. They have numerous establishments in Europe, and five in the United States. The mother house is at Paris, where the Superior General resides. Besides their boarding academies, they have also houses for the gratuitous instruction of the poor.

In the year 1818 five members of this order emigrated to this country at the request of the Right Rev. William L. Dubourg, bishop of New Orleans, and established themselves at Florissant about 15 miles from St. Louis. In 1822, through the generosity of Mrs. Smith, a wealthy lady of Louisiana, they opened another house of education at Grand Coteau, Opelousas. A few years after a third institution was commenced at St. Michael's, Acadia county, Louisiana, where a spacious and beautiful building was erected by the liberality of the Catholic clergy of that state, and a large number of the inhabitants. For this foundation the ladies of the Sacred Heart are indebted principally to the influence and indefatigable exertions of Rev. C. De la Croix, pastor of St. Michael's. The monastery in St. Louis was founded in 1827, by John Mullanphy, who gave to the ladies a large brick building, with 25 acres of ground, within the limits of the city. The object of this donation was the education of a certain number of poor orphan girls, who are maintained by the institution. To every one of these ten dollars are granted on their entering the house, and five dollars every year. Besides the orphan asylum, the ladies of the Sacred Heart have here a flourishing academy for the instruction of female youth. They have another establishment in the town of St. Charles, Mo. The novitiate of the congregation is at St. Louis. The number of sisters in the five institutions of the Sacred Heart is 88, most of whom are natives of this country, and have joined that society to perpetuate the blessings of a virtuous and accomplished education.

Convent and Academy of the Ladies of the Sacred Heart, St. Louis, Missouri.

do. do. do. for the higher, $10 per ann.

No deduction is made to the pupils for any absence unless occasioned by sickness.

The number of religious in this institution is 20; number of young ladies, boarders, 60; day scholars, 110. Orphans educated and supported in the establishment, 30.

Convent and Female Academy, of the Ladies of the Sacred Heart.

AT ST. FERDINAND,

Commonly called Florissant, about fifteen miles from St. Louis. Price of boarding and tuition, $80 per year. Madam Philippine Duchesne, Superiour. Number of religious, 5; of young ladies, boarders, 26; of externs, 30; of orphans, 1.

Convent and Female Academy, at St. Charles, Mo.

Conducted by the ladies of the same religious order. Madam Lucille Mathevon, Superiour. Number of religious, 8; of young ladies, boarders, 30; of externs, 36.

CONVENT AND FEMALE ACADEMY OF THE SISTERS OF LORETTO,

AT BETHLEHEM, PERRY COUNTY, MO.

Near St. Mary's Seminary.

Mother Mary Agnes Heart, Superiour.

The course of instruction in this institution, embraces Reading, Writing, Grammar, Arithmetic, Geography, History, Painting, French, Needle-work, Embroidery, Music, &c. A great maternal care will be taken of the health and morals of the pupils. Young ladies of any religious profession will be received without the least preference. Though the teachers profess the Catholic religion, yet no one shall be in the least troubled with regard to her peculiar religious opinions, nor will any undue influence be used over her belief.

The rates of tuition will be $10 per annum for the common branches of an English education, including plain sewing; five dollars a year more will be required if painting and embroidery be taught; five dollars per annum extra for French, and ten dollars per annum extra, if the Piano be taught.

Should any of the young ladies wish to board, they can be boarded at the house at $1 per week, but none will be received for less than three months. The washing and mending will, if required, be done for $10 per annum. The payment is required to be made half in advance. Parents will please to send beds and bedding with their children.

DIOCESS OF BARDSTOWN.

The Diocese of Bardstown, which embraces the state of Kentucky, was established by Pius VII., in 1808. The present Bishop of the Diocese, the Rt. Rev. Benedict J. Flaget, was consecrated on the 4th of November, 1810. The Rt. Rev. John B. David, who was associated with him, having resigned the coadjutorship, was succeeded by the Rt. Rev. Guy J. Chabrat, who was consecrated on the 20th of July, 1834.

*The Rev. S. T. Badin, a native of France, was the first priest ordained in the United States. He was promoted to the holy order of priesthood by the venerable archbishop Carroll, on the 25th of May, 1793, in St. Peter's church at Baltimore. As the distant congregations of Kentucky had been destitute of a regular pastor since the departure of Rev. C. Whelan, O. S. F. in 1790, the newly ordained clergyman was sent to that district in September, 1793. He travelled on foot to Fort Pitt (Pittsburg,) through a thinly settled country, and from Limestone (now Maysville) to Lexington, where he officiated on the first Sunday of Advent, after a tedious and perilous journey of nearly three months, through an immense wilderness every where beset with hostile savages. There being no church or chapel for divine worship, he was obliged, at the different points which he visited, to offer the holy mysteries in miserable cabins. For upwards of three years he was the only missionary in Kentucky, continually occupied in visiting the sick and performing other duties of the ministry. As late as the years 1803 and 1804, only two priests had come to share his labours in the West, the Rev. and venerable Donatien Olivier, now 94 years of age, and the late pious, learned and laborious pastor of Detroit, Rev. G. Richard, formerly a representative of Michigan, in Congress. If we consider the rapid progress of Catholicity since that period, and reflect that 200 priests are now scattered over the same tract of country which thirty-four years ago was served by only three; if we look at the great number of churches, seminaries, colleges, convents, academies and other institutions that have sprung into existence, and the holy sacrifice offered in more than five hundred places, who will not acknowledge that the finger of God is here?

In 1830, Mr. Badin, at the age of 62, having been frequently solicited by the Indians, began a mission among the Pottowatomies. He was engaged in these arduous duties for several years, but succeeded in baptizing only about 200 of the tribe. The late Rev. L. De Seilles, who followed him, instructed and baptized about 800 in the space of four years. We cannot but regret that these Indians, who were so fervent in the practice of the Christian duties, and an example for many among their more civilized brethren, have lately, by a most iniquitous proceeding, been forced from their possessions, against their will, when their customs were nearly similar to those of the whites, and they consented to be governed by the same laws that tolerate other tribes in the Union.

DOMINICAN CONVENT,

IN WASHINGTON CO. NEAR SPRINGFIELD.

The Dominican order takes its name from its founder, St. Dominic, a native of Calahorra, in Spain. Having gone to France with the bishop of Osma, for the purpose of opposing the progress of Albigensen heresy, he succeeded, by his fervent exhortations, sincere charity, and persevering zeal, in converting to the Catholic faith a great number of the heterodox party. It was there he laid the foundation of his religious order, which was approved in 1215, by Innocent III. and confirmed the following year by Honorious III. under the rule of St. Augustine, which St. Dominic modified by particular practices of austerity. His object was to furnish the church with a body of men, who by uniting the exercises of retirement and contemplation with the study of the ecclesiastical sciences, would promote their own sanctification, and be qualified, particularly by the function of preaching, to labor successfully for the salvation of others. The Dominicans, soon after their institution, spread rapidly over various parts of the world. At one time the order was distributed into forty-five provinces, several of which were in Asia and America, besides twelve reformed congregations that adhered more strictly to the original spirit and constitutions of their holy founder. There would be no risk of exaggeration in asserting that at the period of which we speak, the Dominicans amounted to one hundred and fifty thousand in number. In every department of sacred and profane learning, they have been eminently distinguished. Very many among them have been placed on the catalogue of saints, three have occupied the chair of St. Peter, more than sixty have worn the purple, several have been patriarchs, six hundred archbishops, more than a thousand bishops, and since the time of St. Dominic the office of Master of the Sacred Palace at Rome, has always been filled by a member of his order. His principal duty is to maintain the dignity and prevent the abuses of the press, by the exercise of an enlightened censorship in relation to all matters connected with the art of printing. The superiour general of the Dominicans resides at Rome.

There are two houses of this order, in the United States, one at St. Rose's, Washington county, Kentucky, and the other at St. Joseph's, near Somerset, in Ohio. The former was founded in 1806, by the Rt. Rev. Edward Fenwick, late bishop of Cincinnati, and the latter in 1818. Very extensive improvements have been lately made in the establishment at St. Rose's. The buildings have been much enlarged and beautifully finished. The community consists of several fathers, viz:

Rev. Joseph Jarboe, Prior.

" Thomas Polin, Master of Novices.

" Charles D. Bowling, Procurator.

" Samuel Montgomery.

" J. V. Bullock.

" J. H. McGrady.

The noviceship for the order in this country, is kept here, and has at present several promising young men professed, and a few lay-brothers.

COLLEGES FOR YOUNG MEN.

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE,

BARDSTOWN, KY.

This college is situated in the suburbs of Bardstown. The site is beautiful, and equally as healthy as any in the state, or perhaps in the Union.

The branches actually taught, are the languages, viz:—Latin, Greek, French, Spanish; Mathematics in all the branches; Latin and English versification; Rhetoric, including Composition and Elocution; Mental Philosophy, Natural Philosophy, including the elements of Chemistry; Pneumatics, Electricity, &c., illustrated by experiments. The apparatus for Natural and Experimental Philosophy, is as complete as any in the western country, and will be occasionally increased by new invoices from Europe.—History and Geography, with the use of the maps and globes, are taught with peculiar attention.

The present number of students in the College is 100.

MOUNT MERINO SEMINARY,

KENTUCKY.*

This Literary Institution is beautifully situated in a remarkably healthy part of Kentucky, on the Stage Road, ten miles from Brandenburg, and fourteen from Hardinsburg.

The Proprietors and Conductors of this establishment, having been engaged several years in the management of the Bardstown College, have acquired no inconsiderable experience in the education of youth. After an examination of different parts of the West, they have selected Mount Merino, a very extensive, healthy and beautiful farm.

The location possesses, in a high degree, the various requisites for a permanent seat of learning. It is in the circle of a polite neighborhood, and easy of access, being only ten miles from the Ohio, on a good road. The students will here enjoy all the advantages of retirement from the distracting scenes of town and city. In this retirement it will be easy to concentrate their thoughts and enlist their energies in the ardent pursuit of knowledge. The Conductors will labor, with unremitting assiduity, to impart a liberal and useful education, and to prepare their pupils for the active and responsible duties of life: Whilst particular care will be taken to invigorate and develop the mental faculties, by close and patient investigation, no less attention will be given to the inculcating of the moral and social virtues. The students will be accustomed to treat each other in a friendly, polite and respectful manner.

The end of education is mental power, moral excellence and corporal vigor; and that system is best, which secures these in the highest degree. How far the conductors of this establishment shall succeed, time must show. With some aptitude for the instruction, and experience in the education of youth; with a determination of devoting their best energies to this object, together with the advantages of location and other facilities, they flatter themselves they will be enabled to meet the expectations of the public, and impart a practical education, such as is best adapted to the wants of the community, at an expense so moderate as to bring it within the reach of every industrious class of society. The students will be engaged, either in study or recitation, ten hours per day, with, however, intervals of relaxation, sufficient to preserve health and vigor. The instructors, forming but one family with the students, will be with them at all times; hence but few restraints will be necessary to secure application to study and regular discipline.

Particular care will be taken of the small boys, both as to their comfort and proper instruction in the first rudiments, an important part of education, too often entrusted to careless or incompetent hands. The buildings are good, and at present sufficiently ample to accommodate fifty boarders, and as many day-scholars. Should the patronage justify it, other buildings will be erected as soon as needed. A sufficient number of competent teachers will be at all times engaged.

THE FOLLOWING BRANCHES WILL BE TAUGHT.

Spelling, Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, English Grammar and Geography, with the use of Globes, Book-keeping, Rhetoric and Declamation, History, the French language, the Greek and Latin Classics, Logic and Mental Philosophy. Mathematics, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Surveying, Mensuration, Conic Sections and Astronomy, to which will be added soon, Civil Engineering, and lectures on Agriculture.

Each student will be required to study thoroughly the branches undertaken, but he will be advanced as rapidly as his proficiency will permit.

The year will be divided into two Sessions. The first Session begins on the 1st of September, and ends on the 7th of February. The second Session begins on the 23d of February, and ends on the 1st of August.

The month of August will be vacation, with a recess of two weeks in February.

CONVENTS AND ACADEMIES

Conducted by the Sisters of Loretto.

CONVENT AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL OF GETHSEMANI.*

Although there now exist in our State, several flourishing and highly useful schools and academies for the education of young ladies, it must nevertheless be apparent to all, that many parents and guardians are prevented by their circumstances from availing themselves of the advantages of those institutions. Many indeed would prefer sending to an institution whose only object would be to afford means of acquiring a plain and competent education, on the most moderate terms. Considering this, and desirous of accommodating all classes of their fellow-citizens, the conductors of the Loretto Female Academy have resolved to establish a preparatory school of this sort, wherein young pupils may be instructed in the elementary and most indispensable branches. For this purpose, they have selected Gethsemani, a beautiful, retired, and healthy situation, on Pottinger's creek, near the Green river turnpike, about twelve miles from Bardstown. The only branches taught will be Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, English Grammar, Geography, and Plain Sewing.

DIOCESS OF NATCHEZ.

The Diocess of Natchez, which comprises the State of Mississippi, was established by Gregory XVI. on the 28th of July, 1837. The Rev. Thomas Heyden, of Bedford, Pa. who was nominated to the See, has declined the appointment. The Catholics of Natchez are occasionally visited by a clergyman from New Orleans.

DIOCESS OF MOBILE.

This Diocess comprises the State of Alabama and the Territory of Florida.

The Right Rev. Michael Portier, was appointed Vicar Apostolic, by Pius VIII. in 1825, and was elevated to the Episcopal Chair, in 1829.

INSTITUTIONS.

COLLEGE OF SPRINGHILL, Alabama,

of Mobile.*

The site of this institution is within seven miles of the city of Mobile. The high elevation of Spring Hill, which is at least one hundred and fifty feet above the level of the city, renders it a desirable place of residence; hence it is already thickly settled and built upon by very many of the most respectable citizens of Mobile. The college is a splendid pile of the Doric order, and has been considered by many intelligent visitors equal to any building of the sort in the Union. During nearly eight years since its establishment, the number of students has never been less than one hundred, and seldom less than one hundred and twenty-five, and yet it is a remarkable fact, that there has not been a single death or case of bilious fever amongst the students or professors during that period. The regular and daily prevalence of invigorating sea breezes during the summer; the clear and serene atmosphere; the excellency of the water; the facilities for bathing; and the nature of the soil, wholly incapable of producing noxious vapours, in addition to the strict and punctual attention bestowed upon the students, must secure the continuance of such healthful prosperity.

TERMS.

1st. The price of the scholastic year is fixed at two hundred and sixty dollars; one half payable semi-annually in advance.

2. The equivalent for this sum includes the board of the pupils, their washing, mending, lodging, (with some few exceptions) tuition, books, stationery and whatever else appertains to their studies.

The following gentlemen are attached to the institution:

Rev. Peter Mauvernay, President.
 Rev. M. D. O'Reilly, Vice-President,
 Rev. Julian Priour, Procurator,
 Rev. Francis Martinet, Prefect of Studies,
 Rev. J. M. Portier, Professor.

ACADEMY FOR BOYS, at St. Augustine, East Florida, under the direction of the Rev. P. Hackett, who has an assistant teacher. The preparatory branches usually required to enter the colleges of this country, are well taught in this institution.

SCHOOL FOR BOYS, at Mobile, Alabama, under the patronage of the bishop.

CONVENT AND FEMALE ACADEMY

Of the Visitation of the B. V. Mary,

AT SUMMERVILLE, WITHIN THREE MILES OF MOBILE.

This sisterhood and pious order had to contend with the difficulties usually attending such establishments at their commencement. Their present systematic organization and laudable exertions cannot fail to realize their own expectations, and those of their patrons and friends.

SEMINARY FOR YOUNG LADIES, at St. Augustine, East Florida, conducted by the ladies of the Retreat. Their pious and edifying conduct, their superior acquirements, and their success in discharging the duties of their avocation during several years in the city of Charleston, ensured to them a willing reception from the citizens of St. Augustine. It is hoped that the great worth of these ladies will be duly appreciated by the public.

SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, at Mobile, under the patronage of the bishop.

ORPHAN ASYLUM AT MOBILE.

This refuge of suffering humanity having been completed, is now under the direction of the "Charitable Catholic Ladies' Society of the city of Mobile." Great credit is due to this society for the philanthropy which actuated its members, in rescuing from wretchedness, ignorance and depravity, so large a portion of unfortunate children, as are always to be found in populous cities. The society has been, and will continue to be aided by every well-wisher of his species. It has already received a very handsome donation from an humble individual. The house occupied as the asylum was furnished by the Right Rev. Dr. Portier, and is well suited to that purpose in point of space and situation. It is contiguous to the stately brick building now used as a temporary cathedral.

DIOCESS OF CHARLESTON.

The Diocese of Charleston, which comprises North and South Carolina and Georgia, was established on the 12th of July, 1820, and the Rev. John England, P. P. of the Union Brandon, Diocese of Cork, Ireland, and Vic. For. and secretary of the Diocese, was appointed its first bishop. He was consecrated in the church of St. Finnbar in the city of Cork, on the 21st of September, of the same year, by the Rt. Rev. John Murphy, bishop of Cork, assisted by the Rt. Rev. Kieran Marum, bishop of Ossory, and the Rt. Rev. P. Kelly, bishop of Richmond, Va.

The same clergyman attends two or three times a year, Macon and its vicinity, and several stations in the Western part of the State; as also the Catholics of the vicinity in Alabama, Diocese of Mobile, at the request of Rt. Rev. Dr. Portier.

Locust Grove, Purification of the BVM.—Rev. Peter Whelan, who also visits Abbeville in South Carolina, and Louisville, Sparta, Milledgeville in Georgia, two or three times a year.

The Western railroads, those in the Cherokee country to the Tennessee river, and the upper portion of the road from Augusta to Athens, are in charge of Rev. Gregory Duggan who has been appointed missionary along those lines.

Ecclesiastical and Classical Institutions.

SEMINARY OF ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST, Charleston, S. Carolina, under the direction of the Rev. Richard S. Baker, in which the small number of candidates necessary to sustain the missions of the Diocess, are educated. The present number of students is two.

SOCIETY OF ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST.

The Society of St. John the Baptist, is a voluntary association, which creates by subscriptions and donations a fund to aid in the education of candidates for orders, and for supplying very poor and extremely destitute missions. The Bishop is President, the Vicar is Vice President.—The Priests of the Diocess and twelve lay gentlemen, chosen at the annual meeting, form the committee for management. Treasurer, Rev. R. S. Baker; Recording Secretary, Patrick Canterell; Corresponding Secretary, Thos. Martin. There are branches in Augusta and Savannah, of which the Pastor in each place is ex officio President.

ASYLUM FOR AGED AND INFIRM CLERGYMEN.

The clergy of the Diocess have by their own voluntary contributions, created a small fund, for the basis, it is to be hoped, of a larger one, and which it is to be expected will be increased by the contributions of the laity, for supporting aged, infirm or destitute clergymen. This fund is at present, vested in the Bishop and two priests, as trustees, and by a statute of the diocess, each priest is bound, henceforth, to contribute thereto, in proportion to his means.

DAY SCHOOL for boys at Charleston, in which an extensive course of classical education is carefully taught.

CONVENTS AND ACADEMIES FOR YOUNG LADIES.

CONVENT AND FEMALE ACADEMY

Of the Sisters of our Lady of Mercy,—Charleston, S. C.

The number of sisters at present is fourteen; their Superioress is Sister Aloysius McKenna. They make annual simple vows, but after five years probation, they are allowed to extend the period for which they bind themselves. It is to be hoped that in a short time they will be able to be placed in a more convenient situation, their present dwelling, though good and well placed, being far too small for their purposes. They can accommodate only a limited number of boarders, from five to fourteen years of age. The boarders are divided into two classes. Those under eight years pay for board and tuition $125 per annum, quarterly in advance. Those over the age of eight years, $150 per annum, quarterly in advance.

They have a day school in which their pupils are taught at the usual rates charged in the city.

CHURCH VESTMENTS.

The Sisters of Providence, in Baltimore, Md. take the liberty to inform the public, that at the suggestion of several of the Right Reverend Bishops and Reverend Clergymen of the United States, they have made arrangements to keep constantly for sale an extensive assortment of clerical vestments. The materials for these vestments have been procured from France, at a very considerable expense, and were most of them subject to heavy duties. The Sisters of Providence humbly hope, that the effort which they have thus made to render themselves useful, will meet with the approbation and patronage of the Reverend Clergy.

The following is a list of the vestments which they have on hand, or may procure. Should orders be received for any of them, after they have been disposed of, others exactly similar can be procured in a short time, as a permanent arrangement to that effect has been made with the manufacturer in Lyons.

FRENCH BOOKS, CHURCH PLATE, &c.

F. LUCAS, Jr. takes pleasure in informing the Catholic Clergymen throughout the U. States, that he has made such arrangements with his correspondents in Paris, Lyons, and Brussels, as will enable him to import any Theological, Classical, or other works, that are published in Europe. He can also extend his orders to all kinds of church plate and ornaments, from the best manufactories in Paris.

Having also made arrangements with one of the best manufacturers of Plated and Silver Ware, in Sheffield, he is prepared to take orders for any church plate or ornaments, either plated or silver. The Sheffield plate is of a quality well known for its durability, and is considered nearly equal to silver. Any one desirous of procuring this manufacture, which is cheaper than silver, can be readily accommodated. The assortment, in part, consists of Candlesticks, various sizes; Remonstrance, Chalice and Paten, Ciborium, Thurible, with chains. &c. Altar Cruets, silver Pix Box, silver Oil Stocks, Crosses, Crucifixes, Lamps, Asperges, Holy Water Pails, Offering Dishes, &c. &c.
